Frightened Passengers Hurriedly Taken Off Listing Craft.

HUDSON RIVER ECHOES TO ALARM WHISTLES

LIFTING FOG BANKS FREE BOUND SHIPS

Algonquin Proceeds to Dock After Wednesday's Harbor Crash.

New York, Dec. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—More than 500 passengers, many on the verge of panic, were hastily transferred from the West Shore ferryboat West Point, midstream in the Hudson River off West Forty-second street, after 7 o'clock tonight when the craft was rammed below the waterline by a railroad float proceeding up the river.

Most of the passengers were taken aboard a boat of the Electric Ferry, which drew alongside and tied up to the disabled craft. Later they were landed at the West Twenty-third street slip of the Electric Ferry.

The West Point had left her West Forty-second street slip in Manhattan at 6:55 o'clock, and was proceeding to Weehawken when in some unexplained manner the car float struck her amidship, cutting through her hull. Water poured through the break and the West Point began listing to port. Many passengers were jolted from seats in the cabins and a concerted rush for life preservers began.

Whistles Call Aid.

The master of the West Point sounded a distress call on her whistle and soon other craft in the river joined in the signals. The Electric Ferry Co. boat and several tugs were soon at the scene. The bow of the car float was wedged in the gap for only a few minutes before the tide swung her free.

The crew of the West Point assisted the frightened passengers, most of them Jersey commuters bound for home, to climb through the cabin windows of the West Point into the cabin of the other ferryboat and onto the decks of the tugs. By this time the West Point was listing dangerously and the cargo of trucks and automobiles was rolling from side to side in the gangway.

Only about ten minutes was required to make the transfer of passengers, but apparently it seemed hours to the crew, who lived up to their training and never once let the situation get out of their hands. Some of the women passengers became hysterical. Others bemoaned the fact they had lost Christmas gifts they had bought in the usual hectic day of shopping.

Pulled to Mud Flats.

When the last passengers were off, five tugs of the New York Central Railroad pulled the West Point, in a sinking condition, to the mud flats opposite Weehawken.

The car float responsible for the accident was reported by police to be owned by the Erie Railroad. She was not badly damaged in the crash and proceeded to her destination with about twenty carloads of coal.

A bright, cold sun, aided by a 30-mile-an-hour breeze, swept the harbor clear of fog today and permitted a fleet of 50 imprisoned liners either to reach their piers or get to sea.

Algonquin Docks at Last.

One of the first to steam up the bay was the Clyde-Mallory liner Algonquin, which figured in the collision Wednesday at Ambrose Channell Light Vessel which sunk the Furness-Bermuda liner Fort Victoria.

The Algonquin bore only slight scars on her bows from the collision. Her 140 passengers took the whole incident very calmly—including their unexpected stay of two days in the fog of the lower bay.

In the meantime, officials of the Clyde Line and Government steamboat inspectors began the work of fixing responsibility for the crash.

Capt. J. W. McKenzie, of the Algonquin, was interviewed as soon as he landed, after which the Clyde officials made an official statement, throwing much of the responsibility on the Fort Victoria.

The Clyde officials added that the Fort Victoria, thye had been informed, was discharging her pilot when the crash occurred, was not at anchor and was not signalling.

Passengers Not Excited.

W. J. Lowe, assistant director o the Furness-Bermuda Line, when told of the Clyde statement, merely said of the collision: 'It was simply an unfortunate catastrophef that can be blamed on heavy fog."

The passengers who streamed ashore when the Algonquin docked all agreed

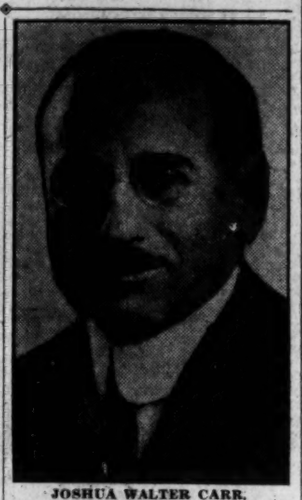
Joshua Walter Carr Ends Life by Bullet

Building Association Aid Was Worried About Ill Health.



JOSHUA WALTER CARR.

Fear of dying from the same throat malady which ended the life of his father, a dread aggravated by steadily declining health, drove Joshua Walter Carr, 64 years old, secretary of the Perpetual Building Association and a director of the Federal-American National Bank, to fire a fatal bullet through his brain yesterday afternoon in his home, 4527 Georgia avenue northwest.

Choosing a time when he knew his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Carr, was out shopping, Mr. Carr left his desk at his offices apparently in the best of spirits for his home, stood beside his automobile in the basement garage of the residence and fired a single bullet from a .32-caliber automatic revolver.

Returning home about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Mrs. Carr observed his overcoat and other personal effects, which led her to investigate. To Tenth Precinct police, she said she found her husband lying lifeless on the garage floor with his pistol gripped firmly in his right hand. Dr. Alfred C. Norcross, of 818 Taylor street northwest, pronounced him dead from a bullet which entered the right temple and pierced the head.

Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, coroner, upon examination, issued a certificate of suicide, with ill health as the motive.

Dr. Nevitt and police were told that Mr. Carr had been suffering from a throat ailment, together with

BOARD PROBES BOLLING CRASH FATAL TO FIVE

NO NEGLIGENCE FOUND IN SAFETY MEASURES

"Everything Fine," Pilot Said Before Take-Off; Was Expert Flier.

REPRESENTATIVE WAS MAKING FIRST FLIGHT

He and His Secretary Took Davison Plane for Their Holiday Visit Home.

An official investigation of the crash at Bolling Field yesterday morning, which cost the lives of a member of Congress and four companions, was under way yesterday afternoon. The committee conducting the investigation is composed of Maj. Robert A. Hale, Medical Corps; Capt. Ernest Clark, Air Corps, and Lieut. Ronald A. Hicks, Air Corps.

Meanwhile, the broken bodies of Representative William K. Kaynor, of Massachusetts, and Stanley B. Lowe, his secretary, were started by train to their homes in Springfield, Mass., which they had hoped to reach by noon yesterday in the airplane to prepare for the holidays. Representative Kaynor, a member of the House military affairs committee, also had planned to inspect a National Guard unit near his home.

The others killed in the same crash, the cause of which is at present veiled in mystery, were Capt. Harry A. Dinger, pilot, considered one of the most experienced pilots of trimotored planes in the Air Corps; Arthur A. McGill, of Brookline, Mass., and Private (first class) Vladimir Kuzma, Air Corps mechanic. Representative Kaynor, Lowe, and Capt. Dinger were all married.

Military Rites for Dinger.

The body of McGill is being held by the Air Corps pending arrangements to be made by his son, R. K. McGill, of Boston, who arrived in Washington at 8:50 o'clock last night.

Capt. Dinger will be buried in Arlington Cemetery with military honors Monday morning at 10 o'clock. His former comrades from Bolling Field will fly over the grave with a blank file in their formation in his honor.

Disposition of the body of Private Kuzma has not yet been arranged. Advices are awaited from his father, Theodore Kuzma, 44 Perry Hill, Shelton, Conn.

Witness Accounts Vary.

Accounts of eyewitnesses of the crash differed considerably, as is usual in such cases. The crash occurred so unexpectedly and at such a low altitude that there was hardly time for any one to receive a clear impression of what had happened.

According to some officers at Bolling Field, the big trimotored Fokker had taken off, climbed at a normal angle, and had reached an altitude of 300 feet. There Capt. Dinger put it into a normal left turn, evidently intending to reverse his direction and take up his course north. The direction of the wind had made it necessary to take off in a southerly direction.

After he had completed about 100 degrees of the 180-degree turn, the plane was seen to nose down sharply and swing toward the right, striking the ground with the right wing tip first. It fell not more than 50 feet from the spot where Lieut. George Cuddihy, Navy pilot, met his death November 25, when the British plane

ROVER AID HITS GRAND JURY AT POLICE HEARING

Shea Says Inquisitorial Body Was Brutal to McPherson.

SHELBY ADMITTED BUNGLING, IS CLAIM

Chance Avers Inspector Held Department in Error.

FOREMAN DESCRIBED AS "MENTAL MISFIT"

Allen, Recalled as Witness, Fails to Add to Facts Already Known.

The Shelby-Kelly trial yesterday lifted the curtain of secrecy to give to the public for the first time one amazing view after another of the behind-the-scenes development of the sensations which have made the McPherson case one of the most extraordinary in the history of the National Capital.

Merritt O. Chance, foreman of the July grand jury which indicted Robert A. McPherson on charges of the murder of his wife, Mrs. Virginia McPherson, and brought the charges against Inspector William S. Shelby and Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, was described as "a mental misfit drunk with his temporary authority as foreman of the grand jury."

The July grand jury subjected Mr. McPherson, who appeared before it as a voluntary witness who had waived protection, to such a "brutal and barbarous third degree" that finally some of the jurors themselves rose in rebellion and demanded the conduct of the jury be changed.

Mr. Allen in Charge, Claim.

Robert J. Allen, former policeman, sat in an anteroom and directed the jury's examination of witnesses, the jury keeping an assistant United States District attorney busy "running back and forth to find out what questions Mr. Allen wanted asked."

These were sworn statements made by Walter M. Shea, one of the assistant District attorneys who was assigned to aid the grand jury in its investigation of the McPherson death.

Mr. Allen, recalled to the witness stand by Maj. L. E. Atkins, chairman of the special board hearing the charges against Mr. Shelby and Mr. Kelly, told the trial board under oath: "When it comes to telling the truth when it hurts me, I'm going to forget. I'm here to protect Robert J. Allen, that's all. When the truth interferes or hurts any of my ideas I'm going to forget. I'm no longer a good and conscientous public servant like I was when I was a member of the police force."

Mr. Shelby Admitted Bungling, Claim.

Mr. Shelby, testifying before the grand jury, admitted that the police investigation of the McPherson case had been "bungled," Mr. Chance swore. Nor could defense attorney shake his positiveness on that point, despite his frequently expressed doubt or uncertainty about other matters.

The grand jury gave the assistant district attorneys a rising vote of thanks and praise at the conclusion of their investigation, although at the time Mr. Chance had in his pocket the jury's special report excoriating the police and the district attorney's office, which was presented the following morning, it was developed.

Mr. Allen sought and got from the jury permission to "sum" up the case against McPherson, and the Police Department after all other witnesses had been heard and despite the warnings of the district attorneys assisting the

FRANCE WILL INSIST ON GLOBAL TONNAGE AT LONDON MEETING

"Adequate" Protection of Coasts and Colonies to Be Demanded.

GERMAN INVITATION TO PARLEY IS URGED

Herriott Points Out New Teuton Ship Is Terror of All Navies.

U. S. FAVORS HOLIDAY IN CAPITAL VESSELS

Japan's Desire for Six-Year Cessation Is Shared by American Envoys.

Paris, Dec. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—That France will take a strong position, demanding adequate protection for her coasts and colonial possessions, at the naval parley at London, was stated today in the Chamber of Deputies by Georges Deygues, minister of marine.

Global tonnage and not tonnage by categories will be the demand of France, whose delegates will be instructed to tell the London conference that fleets should not be calculated by arithmetic but by political necessities.

"The London parley is only preparatory to the Geneva general disarmament conference," Minister Deygues told the Chamber. "France," he said, "has made more cuts in tonnage since 1914 than any other power involved in the conference, but has a fleet of light vessels which is the world's fastest and defies comparison."

Navy Becomes More Popular.

He said that in the last two years the navy had become very popular, with a doubled number of candidate for the naval colleges. France, he said, must assert herself upon the sea, "as long as the League of Nations has not the armed force to compel obedience to its decisions. At London we will place ourselves under the banner of article 8 of the League of Nations pact." The Chamber wildly cheered the minister.

M. Herriot, former premier and member from Lyons, raised two points which held great attention. First, that Germany should be invited to go to the London conference, and, second, that the freedom of the seas can not be discussed at London.

"While half the other powers," he said, "limited their naval construction at the Washington conference, Germany has worked in silence without limitation and has just launched a vessel which is the terror of all navies and yet within the limits of the Versailles treaty." He referred to the newly named Admiral Schoor, of 10,000 tons, which, by advances in construction, is able to carry 11-inch guns, whereas earlier types of this tonnage usually carried a lighter armament.

U. S. Favors Big Ship Holiday.

Japan's desire to extend the naval holiday by not replacing battleships before 1936, or even later, coincides with one of the main objectives of the American delegation to the London naval conference. Announcement Thursday night in New York by Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation, of the hope to put off battleship construction, was taken here to mean that this point was discussed in the private sessions between the American and Japanese delegates.

Secretary of State Stimson declined yesterday to discuss the statement that he had previously made plain that the United States favors postponing the battleship replacement program, arranged at the Washington conference of 1921.

The United States and Great Britain would each lay down 12 new dreadnoughts between 1931 and 1936 unless a further holiday is declared. Japan, during the same period, would

Mrs. Poindexter Dies When Operation Fails

MRS. MILES POINDEXTER.

Mrs. Miles Poindexter, wife of the former Ambassador to Peru, yesterday died at Orange, Calif., while on a visit to her son, Gale Aylett Poindexter, young naval officer. She appeared in good health when she left Washington, but became ill and underwent a delicate surgical operation from which she never recovered. She was 63 years old.

Mrs. Poindexter was a picturesque, interesting and original character. She was proud of her Indian blood. Her mother was of the Umatilla Tribe, of Washington and Oregon. Twenty years ago, when the Poindexters came to Washington, just after Miles Poindexter was elected to the House of Representatives, Mrs. Poindexter attracted attention by her independent manner and her striking appearance.

She was a pronounced brunette. In a quiet way she participated in the social life of the Capital City and was considered a charming host, full of good humor and life. However, she was comparatively unknown until 1923, just before her husband was appointed Ambassador to Peru, when some of her reports on Washington official life and society functions

DIVORCEE WILL DROP TUNNEY BALM SUIT

Counsel Asserts Mrs. Fogarty Seeks Withdrawal of Action.

DEFENSE FIGHTS MOVE

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—After her suit had lingered in the courts of law since last May, Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, divorcee, of Fort Worth, Tex., and New York City, apparently has decided to withdraw her $500,000 breach of promise against James J. Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world.

Her local counsel, Frank L. Wilder, was granted permission today to drop out of the case, and he announced later that Mrs. Fogarty had written letters both to him and to Col. Lewis Field, of New Haven, also of her legal staff, authorizing them to withdraw the suit.

Mr. Wilder said tonight the letters were written from Boston and dated November 4.

Mr. Tunney, who abdicated his throne as king of heavyweight fighters after defeating Tom Heeney, has a word, however, to say about dropping the proceedings. His counsel, Homer S. Cummings, filed a motion for judgment on Gene's cross-complaint which bars Mrs. Fogarty from prosecuting the action based upon the claim that he failed to keep his promise to marry her.

Judge Carl Foster, of Superior Court, who this afternoon granted Mr. Wilder permission to withdraw, will be asked to pass upon the motion next Friday.

Mr. Cummings said: "We will not agree to a withdrawal of the action. We want judgment in this case and hope to get it next Friday."

Before Mr. Wilder asked the court for permission to quit the case, Judge Foster overruled a demurrer filed by him seeking to have expunged from Tunney's cross-complaint the allegations that the suit was instituted to defame his character and to extort money.

Mr. Wilder contended that Tunney, who was abroad with his wife, the former Polly Lauder, of Greenwich, where he is living now, at the time the suit was filed, had sufficient defense at law.

A second suit against Tunney is pending here. It was filed by Mrs. Fogarty's husband, John H. Fogarty, one time Fort Worth plumber, who is asking $500,000, charges that the

INTERNATIONAL RUM RING LAID TO SEVEN

Indictments Declare Firm Smuggled Millions of Dollars in Liquor.

COUNT ESCAPES CHARGE

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Philip D. Gowan and William Bartels, head of the Go-Bart Importing Co., an alleged international liquor ring, and five other individuals were indicted for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws in bills handed down by a Federal grand jury today. Count Maxence de Polignac, member of the old French nobility and alleged foreign agent of the ring, was not indicted.

The ring is accused of smuggling into the United States millions of dollars worth of fine liquors from France, Great Britain and other foreign countries.

Count de Polignac is associated with several well-known French wine producers. Government officials said at the time of his arrest that they had been trying to trap him for several years.

The United States Attorney General's office explained that the charges against the count had not been dismissed and that the grand jury had not completed all phases of its investigation into the activities of the ring.

The five others indicted were Patrick Smith, George Heath, Arthur D. M. Cooley, Royal C. Gardiner and William Flynn, alias Judge, arrested in a sweeping roundup by Federal agents last July 6.

Count de Polignac was arrested at the fashionable Savoy Plaza Hotel in Fifth avenue. He was charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, under protest, and freed in $25,000 bail. He is now in France.

The count, Gowan, Bartels and 30 others were arrested in the one day by agents of the Prohibition Enforcement Department, who timed their raids to strike simultaneously at the alleged headquarters, warehouses and sales divisions of the ring.

Man Who Killed Wife Last Christmas Hanged

San Quentin, Calif., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Mario Croce, 40, of Ukiah, Calif., who killed his wife last Christmas Day, because she would not invite him to dinner, was hanged at the State prison here today.

Croce pleaded guilty to a murder charge and was one of the few men executed in this State after entering such a plea.

COLD WAVE TO SEND MERCURY TUMBLING

New Lows for Season Are Forecast for Capital in Next 24 Hours.

TRAINS FROM WEST LATE

The intense cold wave which is gripping the country in general and the Middle West in particular may leave its sting in the National Capital before the night is over.

Officials of the Weather Bureau report that while the peak of the cold wave is now centering over the Middle West, and is gradually moving eastward, the weather will remain fair and clear in this section, but the mercury will probably reach a new low level for the season within the next 24 hours.

Washington's coldest day during the current winter was on November 30, when the mercury fell as low as 11. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the kiosk in front of The Washington Post registered 24. During the day it went up to 36, but at 4 o'clock was showing unmistakable signs of a downward trend.

The official reading at the Weather Bureau recorded low as 24 degrees at 7:30 a. m. yesterday, with 31 at 4 p. m. as the day's high temperature.

Weather predictions last night indicated continued cold for today and cold weather with moderate west winds promised for tomorrow.

Although the city has felt the effects of the general cold spell only during the last 24 hours, the municipal lodging house, Salvation Army and other charitable institutions of the city reported at an early hour last night that the demands upon their several organizations for lodging and assistance had not shown any material increase.

The municipal lodging house, with accommodations for 45, cared for but 33 Thursday night, while the Salvation Army reported that it could have taken care of twice the number which applied for assistance in the

HOOVER STATEMENT IN SUGAR ROW URGED

Garner Asks Declaration as New Letter Shakes Shattuck Denial.

LATTER MAY REAPPEAR

(Associated Press.)

Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratci leader in the House, said last night that the President in justice to his office owes the country "a direct, definite and positive declaration" on the sugar tariff testimony before the Senate lobby committee.

"The statmeents in the letters of Lakin and the President's friend, Shattuck, presenting that the President of the United Sttaes has been directly and indirectly engaged in convincing with the Cuban sugar lobby to affect tariff legislation should not be permitted to go unanswered or unaccounted for," the Texan said in a statement through the Democratic national committee.

"Mr. Shattuck's denial that he had discussed sugar legislation with the President by no means disposes of the matter. There are definite statements in the letters of the sugar lobbyists that imply to the absolute contrary."

Failing a direct, positive statement by the President, Garner said "a great many people will accept the evidence as proving that the President of the United States has been participating in the secret conspiracy against the interests of his own countrymen engaged in the sugar industry.

"If the President, either personally or through his secretary, Walter Newton, did not say the things and do the things mentioned in these letters, some method should be found to punish the men who assumed to speak by his authority and who reported to the head of a foreign government that our President had committed himself to aid their plans," he said.

Garner said that if Alfred E. Smith had been elected President and the Newspaper Is Reproduced By Television Apparatus

English Concern Reveals Recent Progress Made in Transmission.

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Some possibilities of television, including the transmitted reproduction of a newspaper, were demonstrated in a laboratory today.

A newspaper was held before the television "camera," and a reproduction, faint but recognizable, was seen in the receiver. Large headlines could be read, printed pictures lost much of their detail, but retained enough so that men and women could be distinguished.

The demonstration, conducted in the New York laboratories of the Baird Television Corporation, included the transmission of a close-up of Mayor James J. Walker, June Collier, actress, and two entertainers. Photographs of several celebrities

SUNDAY POST

Features in The Post Tomorrow

The Christmas spirit is reflected in story and picture. "Bethlehem in Shrapnel Trench," a hitherto unpublished story by Coningsby Dawson, one of the popular contemporary writers, appears in the tabloid magazine. Other Yuletide features are a story tracing Christmas customs to pagan rites and a story with the jolly title, "Who is This Jolly Old St. Nick?" Also photographs of children celebrating Christmas in public and private schools here.

That fascinating writer, David Rankin Barbee, who has regaled Post readers with stories of bandits, international relations and what-not, has turned to building. He has written for tomorrow two stories, one about the new British Embassy, rapidly nearing completion, and the other about the old First Presbyterian Church soon to make way for the new municipal center.

Did you know that Washington is a port and has its custom house and collector of customs just like a coast city? Read about it in tomorrow's Post.

Criminal identification is discussed by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, who recently became a familiar figure to Washington readers when he headed the special inquiry into the McPherson case.

House Committee Refuses To Favor Convicts' Leasing

Provision is Stricken Out as Prison Reform Bills Are Approved.

The House judiciary committee yesterday, in voting a favorable report on prison reform legislation favored by the Department of Justice, eliminated a provision which would have legalized the leasing of Federal prisoners to State authorities for road construction work.

Opposition of the American Federation of Labor and the storm raised as the result of the department's recent action in entering into a contract to lease 200 Negro prisoners to the State of Georgia convinced the members that retention of the provision was undesirable.

A resolution introduced by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, last Monday, called upon the department for an explanation. The opin-

Great Britain Willing.

Great Britain has already indicated her desire to join in a further holiday in big ship construction. This end of the London agreement is therefore considered a foregone conclusion, and an assured economy regardless of what happens on cruisers, submarines and other auxiliary craft.

Secretary Stimson said yesterday that the Christmas holidays will not interrupt the work on naval matters. He will remain in Washington throughout the holidays. It is expected that Secretary of the Navy Adams, one of the American delegation, will be here, as will also Ambassador Morrow. Senator Robinson is away and Senator Reed may be too occupied with other matters to attend all meetings of the American delegates. It is certain, however, that some of the delegates will be available to carry on the work of preparing for the London parley.

Japanese Leave New York.

New York, Dec. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The 38 Japanese delegates to the London naval conference sailed for London tonight on the White Star Liner Olympic, after a busy day of entertainment and sightseeing in New York, with a parting message that the forthcoming naval disarmament conference "has little chance to fail."

The day's activities started with a luncheon at the Hotel Plaza, given for the delegation by Consul Gen. S. Sawada, at which prominent Japanese residents in this city broke bread with many prominent Wall street bankers and specially invited guests. In the afternoon there was a sightseeing tour of the city. A dinner at the Nippon Club by Japanese residents in New York concluded the day.

Girl, 16, Shot Dead In Front of Home

Sister's Fiance Is Charged With Her Murder in Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Miss Alice Williams, 16, died here today from a bullet wound inflicted an hour and a half earlier. Harry Hatterick, 18, engaged to Miss Williams' sister, Ann, was charged with murder in connection with the shooting.

The shooting occurred on the sidewalk in front of the home of Mrs. Mary Williams, mother of the girls. According to P. W. Sherlock, 29, a laundry driver, and Ann Williams, 18, who was with her sister, Hatterick was approaching the two girls when he suddenly drew a pistol and fired. The bullet struck Alice in the thigh, severing a large artery. She bled to death.

The girls' mother said Hatterick had been engaged to Ann for some time, and that they quarreled frequently.

McAlester, Okla., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Two more bodies were recovered today from the Old Town Mining Co.'s coal mine at North McAlester, bringing the total number of dead in Tuesday's disaster to 61.

The bodies were believed to be those of Manuel Merino, Mexican, and Harry Allison, Negro, who had been reported missing by William Duvall, mine foreman. Searchers previously had been through the passages from which the bodies were taken, but had overlooked them.

ARNOLD EXCORIATED IN CARAWAY REPORT

(Associated Press.)

The operations of J. A. Arnold, manager of the Southern Tariff Association, were labeled "reprehensible" in a report to the Senate yesterday by its lobby committee and the man himself was denounced by Senator Caraway as "utterly without regard for veracity" in submitting the conclusions.

The report was the fourth returned by the committee since its inquiry was instituted, and called Arnold's activities as regards legislation a "type of lobbying against which the public ought to be protected by appropriate legislation." Chairman Caraway described Mr. Arnold as having "no seeming sense of self-respect."

The bristling document, based on Mr. Arnold's nine-day interrogation by the committee, dealt not only with the activities of the Southern Tariff Association in the interest of tariff legislation, but those of the American Taxpayers League for "wise revenue legislation," and the National Council of State Legislators for repeal of the Federal inheritance tax.

Organizations Mere Aliases.

All of these organizations, the report said, were "aliases under which one J. A. Arnold, operates ostensibly to influence congressional legislation, but in fact for the purpose of making a living for himself and a small group associated with him.

Mr. Arnold was said to have collected more than a million dollars in the last four years under the names of the three organizations. After annual audits of the books all evidences of Mr. Arnold's financial transactions were destroyed, only the auditor's report being preserved, the report said, adding: "His auditor, a certified accountant, was convicted and sentenced for issuing a fraudulent certificate reciting the solvency of a corporation whose books he had examined."

The report asserted that John H. Kirby, of Houston, Tex., president of the Tariff Association, played a "negligible" part in the association's activities. His name, it said, gave only a "fictitious virtue and value" to the organization.

Caraway said on the floor that Mr. Kirby's opening statement that he contributed $2,000 a year to the association had proved to be "untrue."

Calls Him "Come-On Man"

"The books disclose that he has done nothing," Caraway added, "but to be the come-on-man, although he very modestly admitted that he was worth $30,000,000."

The report said there was "no such thing" as a Southern Tariff Association or an American Taxpayers League, as neither had a constitution, set of by-laws, or membership except "contributors."

"How business men or ordinary sagacity can be induced to contribute to Arnold's purposes," it continued, "is entirely inexplicable to your committee."

The report then went on to say that Mr. Arnold "has had no training or experience either as an economist, a statistician or a tax expert hat would fit him to be of any service in connection with revenue legislation."

Press Gag Upheld On 'Scandal Shete'

Minnesota Supreme Court Rules Suppression Law Is Constitutional.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—the Minnesota Supreme Court today for the second time upheld the constitutionality of the State's newspaper suppression law, ruling that the act does not violate the State's constitutional provision guaranteeing freedom of the press.

Attorneys for the Saturday Press, a Minneapolis weekly suppressed under the law, announced they would appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court.

"No claim is advanced," the opinion read, "that the method and character of the operation of the newspaper in question was not a nuisance if the statute is constitutional. It was regularly and customarily devoted to malicious, scandalous and defamatory matter.

"We see no reason, however, for defendants to construe the judgment as restraining them from operating a newspaper in harmony with public welfare to which all must yield."

Nurse Accused of Uttering $600 in Worthless Paper in City.

FIVE ALIASES CLAIMED

Mrs. Estelle Smith, 21 years old, of Huntington, W. Va., reputed to possess almost half a dozen aliases, was brought to this city by Detective Sergts. Ira E. Keck and Bernard W. Thompson yesterday, following her release from a Baltimore penal institution and booked on a charge of false pretenses.

The woman, a pretty nurse, has passed worthless checks totaling more than $600 in this city, according to the edetectives, who claim to have connected her with four cases and are investigating additional complaints. According to the detectives, the woman passed worthless checks on Mrs. Margaret Lindsay, 1819 Columbia road northwest; Mrs. Mary J. Curry, of the Maryland Court Apartment, and the Alice Hair Shop, at No. 1 Thomas circle northwest, in addition to gaining $41 from a local hotel through alleged false pretenses.

The police stated that the young woman is known to have operated in the Capital and elsewhere under the names of Thelma Woods, Estelle Wylie, Greta Greer, Ina Rutledge and Mrs. Paul Smith. She was recently arrested in Baltimore, police said, on a charge of passing worthless checks and sentenced to serve 60 days in jail. After serving seven days, the sentence was suspended and she was taken in custody by the local detectives upon her release.

North Carolina Town Is Hit by $50,000 Fire

Weldon, N. C., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Fire of undetermined origin today partly destroyed a two-story brick office building here with a loss estimated by fire department officials at $50,000.

Water flooded the equipment of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Exchange, situated in the building, and cut Weldon off from communication with outside points for several hours. Failure of telephone and telegraph wires caused rumors to spread to nearby towns that the entire business section here had been destroyed.

FARM BOARD MOVES IN EXPORT PROGRAM

Scouts Are Already Abroad Seeking Markets, Legge Statement Says.

ACTION BRINGS SURPRISE

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Instead of slowing up as a result of its tilt with the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Farm Board has already moved to place the farmers, through their central marketing agency, in the export trade.

According to Chairman Alexander Legge, of the board, scouts already have been sent abroad with a view to establishing markets.

While it had been the general understanding that the farm act contemplated embracing the export trade in the farmer-controlled marketing machinery which it set up, the information that agents are already abroad seeking contracts and markets created considerable surprise in the light of the controversy with the Chamber of Commerce.

The exporters are by far the most powerful of the private influences now fighting the board's policies.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the chamber's board, when appearing before the Senate lobby committee a few days ago, testified that none of his investments was affected by the board's policy, so that what he said in criticism of the policy it was pursuing was impersonal.

Extent of Effect Uncertain.

When committee members expressed surprise, he explained that his investments in the grain trade were now confined to the export business. These investments he gave as around $3,000,000.

From this it would appear that he did not know the board was pursuing a policy that affected the exporters.

As to how extensively it will affect them remains to be seen. Mr. Legge has informally expressed the opinion that the board's plan will have advanced to such a point by next year that the marketing machinery it is setting up will control between 25 and 30 per cent of the crop. Such a control as this will, of course, have its effect toward stabilizing the market but before stabilization can be wholly attained Mr. Legge considers about 50 per cent of the crop must be controlled by the farmers themselves through their cooperatives.

It would therefore appear from Mr. Legge's plans and hopes that the private export business will be affected by 25 or 30 per cent by next year and ultimately by 50 per cent.

Seek Canada Agreement.

That the board is not as pessimistic about being able to market the crop on which it lends money as are some of the equalization fee senators, is indicated by the steps that have already been taken looking to an agreement with the Canadian pool. This pool controls more than 50 per cent of the Canadian crop. If an understanding is reached between the Farm Board and the Canadian pool, the apprehension of some senators that the board will not be able to get a good price for this country's surplus will be relieved, to say the least.

There is a decided probability that there will be a further public airing of the controversy between the Chamber of Commerce and the board.

Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee, and Senator Walsh, of Montana, a member, both made known yesterday that they were not satisfied to let Mr. Legge's letter to the commmittee stand as a reply to the statements Mr. Barnes made to the committee. In his reply, made public Thursday, Mr. Legge sought to clear up two points of confusion that had grown out of Mr. Barnes' statements.

Denies Absence of Understanding.

He denied for one thing that there was no understanding with Mr. Barnes and other grain men that they were to be consulted by the board in the future whenever formulating a policy. The understanding had been, Mr. Legge wrote the committee, that the grain men could come before the board at any time with any suggestions or complaints just as might any one else interested in the board's policies.

The second point that Mr. Legge sought to clear up was that he had agreed with the grain men that the cooperative farmer borrower should not receive money from the board at any lower rate of interest than the commercial rate.

Whether Senator Caraway and Senator Walsh are dissatisfied with Mr. Legge's statements on these two points or whether they think he should make them at a formal appearance before the committee, was not developed. At any rate they want him to appear before the committee. Senator Walsh was of the opinion that he should be directed to appear. Senator Caraway did not seem to be in this mood but he planned to let Mr. Legge know that his letter was insufficient, perhaps without suggesting what Mr. Legge should do.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, Republican member of the committee, said that if any of his colleagues wanted Mr. Legge to appear he would favor it because Mr. Legge could then show what he was doing for the farmer.

For one thing Senators Caraway and Walsh are right indignant that Mr. Legge should have gone to Mr. Barnes' office for that conference with grain men which Mr. Barnes arranged. They think the conference should have been at Mr. Legge's office.

Dariy Firm Is Sued For Death of Child

Charging that his child had been frightened by operatives of a Southern Dairies truck and had fallen off and been killed, William H. Furr, of Cherrydale, Va., yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court against the Southern Dairies, Inc., seeking to recover $10,000 damages.

Mr. Furr tells the court that his son, Lawrence Frederick Furr, 8 years old, while playing with other children, climbed on the truck on December 28, last, and that he was easily frightened. The plaintiff contends that the operatives of the truck shouted at his son, frightened him and that as a result he fell off the truck and was crushed to death under the wheels of the vehicle.

The plaintiff asserts that it was the duty of the company to see that its employes should not frighten his son, and alleges that the boy was killed as a result of the negligence of the company's employes. Attorney Crandal Mackey appears for the plaintiff.

Senate Passes Bill Giving Byrd Rear Admiral Rating

(Associated Press.)

It may be Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd before long—instead of commander.

The Senate yesterday passed the Swanson bill granting the explorer the coveted rank. Favorable action by the House is awaited, and then only the mvoement of President Hoover's pen across the page will be necessary.

If and when these events occur, Byrd would be the youngest living member of that little group looked up to by the Navy's thousands—the rear admirals who are as far up as they can get in their world except periods when, in command of operations, they might be allowed to drop the "rear."

Instances of officers' "jumping" the rank of captain are as rare as the proverbial teeth of the chickens, Byrd's fellow officers said yesterday, for that rank between commander and rear admiral is "the hardest grade to make."

With the exception of some like Cary Grayson—President Wilson's physician, who received the rank at the age of 37—few officers as young have been rewarded with it during peace times. Charles Wilkes, the Arctic explorer, remained a lieutenant until he died.

Commander Byrd is 41. Except for dropping the mark of juniorship from his present title—by an act of Congress following his North Pole flight—he has come through regular promotions.

His record is unique also, in that he has been on the "retired" list all teh while he was assigned to active duty, and on leave in order to carry out the exploits that have made him a hero.

He was retired in 1916 because his athletic activities at the Naval Academy had brought him a number of injuries, culminating with a broken ankle. This accident occurred while he was working out in the gymnasium.

The prophetic remark of the Midshipmen's Annual on their comrade, back in 1912, was:

"He has already lived a life rich in experience, and he will lead a life richer still, but he will always give to life more than he asks."

Gaining only $187.50 a year, Byrd as a retired rear admiral would receive a yearly salary of $4,500. Now he gets $4,312.50.

JAIL-BREAK STOPPED BY INJURED KEEPER

Trusties and Jailers at Charleston Thwart Freedom Attempt.

YOUTH LEADS IN ATTACK

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—A group of prisoners in the Charleston County Jail today made an unsuccessful attempt to overcome their jailer and escape. William J. Bennett, jailer, and his assistant, John A. Gleason, were injured in a clash with the prisoners.

Negro trusties, cooks and kitchen helpers who armed themseives with axes, meat cleavers and other weapons, frustrated the break. Neither of the two jailers was seriously injured.

Charles Ivah, 18, of Atlanta, Federal prisoner, awaiting trial for an automobile theft, apparently was the leader of the mutiny and struck the first blow in the break for freedom.

Armed with an improvised blackjack, Ivah attacked Isaac Rogers, a turnkey and a trusty, on the second floor of the jail. Gleason and Bennett, hearing the commotion, started to investigate. Other prisoners joined Ivah in the attack and turned upon the officers.

Gleason was struck upon the head with the blackjack by Ivah afid also received a scalp cut from a trash can hurled at him by the mutineers. Bennett, after first hiding the key to the main jail door, attempted to make his way from a third floor dressing room to his office to telephone the sheriff's office.

Ivah intercepted Bennett in a corridor and attacked him with his weapon. Despite his injuries, the jailer made his way to his office and telephoned to the sheriff.

Before officers arrived the mutineers had reached the first floor and were attempting to gain freedom through the main entrance door.

WRECK OF ARMY PLANE AND FOUR OF FIVE KILLED IN CRASH

BOARD PROBES BOLLING TRAGEDY

he was testing buried itself in the earth.

Occupants Killed at Once.

The big Fokker crashed almost before witnesses realized anything was amiss. Rushing to the spot, it was found that all of the occupants were dead, their bodies badly crushed. The impact had thrown them into a heap at the front of the cabin. The bodies of Capt. Dinger and Private Kuzma were in the pilot's cockpit in the nose of the plane.

As soon as the bodies could be extricated, they were taken to the medical clinic on the field, and the War Department was notified. F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation, and a personal friend of Kaynor, rushed to the field and personally investigated the the accident. Later Mr. Davison, Representatives Allen T. Treadway and Charles L. Underhill, colleagues of Kaynor; Representative John J. McSwain, of South Carolina, and Hans Adamson, assistant to Davison, met in the office of Maj. Howard C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling Field. When they adjourned, Mr. Davison announced that he would make a statement as soon as he returned to his office.

This statement said in part:

"Every possible safety precaution was taken before the plane left the ground. I have evidence that proper inspection was made of the engines, all three of which were tested and warmed up for about 20 minutes before the flight started. So far as the plane itself is concerned, I am equally satisfied that the controls were properly inspected, also, the transport only recently came back from the factory where it received a thorough overhaul.

"Lieut. L. M. Merrick, operations officer at Bolling Field, saw to it that the passengers were properly seated. He personally secured the safety belts and saw to it that parachutes were worn.

"He also went toward the pilot compartment and asked Capt Dinger if the three motors were functioning well, to which Capt. Dinger replied, 'Everything is fine.' Lieut. Merrick further stated that he listened to the motors as they were being warmed up and that they seemed to run smoothly.

No Chance to Jump.

"From the evidence at hand, Capt. Dinger, who had more experience in piloting trimotor transports than any other pilot in the Army Air Corps, took off in a southerly direction into a 25-mile-an-hour wind climbed to what seemed to be 300 feet, turned northward, when, according to eyewitnesses, the plane began to fall. The accident occurred so quickly and at such a low altitude that no one had a chance to jump."

The plane was that which was assigned to Bolling Field for the personal use of Assistant Secretary Davison. He had lent it to Representative Kaynor for the short flight home, but Kaynor decided to go only last night. Neither he nor Mr. Lowe had ever been up in an airplane before.

According to eye witnesses, nothing out of the ordinary seemed to occur before the crash. The plane was said never to lave lost flying speed, the turn which preceded the accident was perfectly normal, and the plane neither spun nor slipped in falling.

When it struck the ground, the three Wasp engines were buried almost in the position they occupied on the plane. They were torn from their mountings, and each lay in a deep pool of oil. The rear of the fuselage was not damaged, and the tail assembly appeared to be in perfect condition. As soon as the crash happened a guard was thrown around the field, and no one was allowed to enter by automobile. Photographers managed to secure photographs of parts of the wreckage by walking down a railroad embankment which skirts the field. Some of these were later arrested at the field and held in custody for some time, but were later released.

As soon as the bodies had been removed mechanics went to work tearing apart the wreckage. The three engines were dragged to a nearby hangar, and the fuselage and wings were carted to a dump not far from the scene of the crash.

The mystery which surrounds the cause of the tragedy is deepened by the fact that Capt. Dinger had previously extricated himself from a number of emergencies caused by engine failure, and was credited with the ability to handle a transport plane under almost any condition.

Kaynor, Lowe Leave Children.

Adding to the tragedy of the accident is the fact that Representative Kaynor had six children and Mr. Lowe two, who were looking forward to having them spend Christmas at home. Mrs. Lowe was in Washington about a week ago, inspecting a home which her husband intended purchasing in Chevy Chase.

Representative Kaynor was 55 years old and was serving his first term in the House of Representatives. Although it is rare for a new member to be appointed to a major committee, he was a member of the House military affairs committee and took considerable pride in his position. Upon receiving word of his death yesterday, Speaker Longworth called attention to the esteem in which he was held by his calleagues. Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader, decided that the House would adjourn as a tribute of respect.

Mr. Lowe had been secretary to former Representative Harry Bowles, of Springfield, Mass. When Representative Kaynor succeeded Mr. Bowles he retained Mr. Lowe as his secretary. Both men lived at the Racquet Club while in Washington.

Capt. Dinger has been a pilot since 1917, when he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the aviation section of the Signal Corps. He was commissioned a captain October 27, 1928. In recent years he has spent most of his flying time as a pilot of heavy planes, similar to that in which he was killed. Last summer he made a 20,000-mile tour of Army posts with Representative Frank W. James, of Michigan, in another type of trimotored transport. He said recently that Representative James had had more than 600 hours as a passenger with himself as pilot.

Survived Angel Tragedy.

Last January he accompanied Lieut. Henry R. Angel to Middletown, Pa., on the trip which resulted in the death of Lieut. Angel and seven enlisted men when their plane, similar to that which crashed yesterday, plunged to the ground as it was taking off.

Little is known here about Mr. McGill, except that his home is in Brookline, Mass. He had been employed by the Republican national committee and lived at the Racquet Club. He was said to have been engaged to a girl in Boston, whom he was to have married in January.

Private Kuzma was 20 years old, and lived in Shelton, Conn. He enlisted in the Air Corps in June, 1927.

OPERATION PROVES FATAL TO MRS. MILES POINDEXTER

printed back home arrived here and created a sensation. She then became known as the stormy petrel of the official set.

January 29, 1923, she wrote:

"Washington—This town is gay with Christmas decorations; and if one happens to be on the streets, one can see all his friends. Last week one was likely to run into Mrs. Coolidge, or some of the Cabinet officers' wives, looking pleasant for the camera man; so I am sure, in due time, you will be able to see Mrs. Coolidge looking pleasant while she is buying her Christmas cards; and there will be others—Mrs. Davis, for instance, with three of her children, returning from a shopping trip.

"I think that she does not usually take her family out 'by hand,' as she is seen in the picture, because Uncle Sam is quite generous to the secretaries and furnishes them with automobiles and drivers so they can go about most comfortably with no expense to themselves. I never could see how the senators were so liberal wit hthe secretaries and so ungenerous with themselves."

In her story Mrs. Poindexter told of the fine junkets the Secretary of the Navy could take at the expense of the Government, and the bands his wife could have at her functions; the beautiful flowers the wife of the Secretary of Agriculture could have at her parties, and of the fall of Senator La Follette after his break with his party in 1911.

"Congress has too many blocs—the farm bloc, the railroad block, the labor block—not to mention the blockheads that seem to be there," she wrote.

Mrs. Poindexter included Senator Borah and others in her caustic comment. Her pieces, when they arrived in Washington, caused a red letter day at the Capitol. But, soon Mr. Poindexter left for Peru, and nothing more was heard of her stories, but on her return here last spring she brought with her two excellent Peruvian servants, who, later, went to Senor Alfredo Gonzales-Prada, First Counselor and Charge d'Affaires of the Peruvian Embassy. Mrs. Poiundexter did not submit to the transfer of Cornelius atnd his wife—the servants—without a protest. She complained to the president of ePru, and he ordered the counselor to return them to her. This angered the counselor and he gave up his work here.

For six months Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter have lived here. Three weeks ago she left for California to be with her son for the Christmas holidays. A few days ago Mr. Poindexter received a message saying that she was very ill, and he left for her bedside, but she died before hearrived.

"Mrs. Poindexter was a woman of fine, common sense, a close observer and keen wit," said Mrs. William A. Rodenberg, one of her friends, today. "She was passionately fond of her son and not only helped him, but other boys whenever she could. She was instrumental in educating five or six poor boys in her home State."

80 PERSONS INJURED IN TUBE TRAIN PANIC

Passengers Stampede When Smoke Fills Jammed Cars and Break Windows.

35 TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Eighty persons were injured today in a stampede as a crowded subway train, speeding through a tunnel 30 feet under the bed of the East River, was halted by a grounded third rail.

Thirty-five of the injured were taken to hospitals.

All of the 80 were suffering from inhalation of smoke from burning insulation on a conduit, and many had been trampled and cut as they beat with their fists against windows and doors in their frenzied attempts to get out of the train.

At no time were they in any particular danger from the burning insulation, which was a small blaze quickly put out by a repair crew which was already at work on the conduit and had dropped back as the train approached.

In their terror, however, the passengers would not listen to guards and a policeman who was one of the passengers. They broke the windows and clouds of smoke came into the cars.

To quell the frenzy inside the cars the guards had to open the doors before the current was off, thus adding to the danger already existing, the peril of electrocution by the third rail.

Some of the passengers made their way all the half-mile back to Queensboro plaza, in Long Island City. Others got out through the emergency exit to Welfare Island. All of those who could be controlled by the guards were placed aboard another train, heading toward Long Island City, and taken out without further difficulty.

The accident occurred as a Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit train, packed with office workers, early morning Christmas shoppers and passengers whose bundles and traveling bags indicated that they were leaving town for the holidays, was traveling through the tunnel shortly before 8 a. m.

PLAINTIFF TO DROP ACTION ON TUNNEY

conqueror of Jack Dempsey had caused his wife to obtain a divorce from him.

Mr. Wilder said tonight that he had received no direct word from his client, and had only the letter, brief in contents, authorizing him to withdraw the suit. Asked for comment on the case, he said:

"I am out of the picture now."

Attempts to reach Col. Field at New Haven were unsuccessful. It was said at his home that he was out of the city and his whereabouts were unknown.

What effect the withdrawal of Mrs. Fogarty's suit will be upon the proceedings of her former husband, is a matter of conjecture. Charles J. Martin, of New Haven, who represents him, has issued a statement indicating that he might soon withdraw from the case, but in a telephone conversation tonight he said, "I have no statement to make at this time."

Mr. Tunney recently returned from a trip abroad with his wife and they are now living in Greenwich. Several days after his home coming, Mr. Tunney made an appearance at a benefit boxing performance and since has been reported suffering from a slight cold.

In her complaint, filed last summer, Mrs. Fogarty claimed Gene proposed to her in Hot Springs, Ark., on June 3, 1923. She accepted, she said, but he had a change of heart.

In answer to this, Mr. Tunney, who about this time was holding long conversations with George Bernard Shaw on the sunny sands of Italy, filed, through his counsel, a cross complaint, alleging that whole thing was an attempt to traduce his name and character.

Silver Years

By Gertrude S. Trowbridge

"After the Golden Years of Youth, Come Those of Fine Silver."

Under certain conditions, friendship and companionship between young and old can be beautiful; under others, the association is not a happy one.

We are often told: "Keep yourself young by associating with young people." But that is too sweeping and too thoughtless a command and may induce one to drop old friends for a mirage.

An older person, if in good health, may seem comparatively young with his contemporaries and will find himself sympathetic with them in ideas because of similar length of experience. But, with his juniors, by contrast, he will always seem his full age, if not over it. If he marries a young wife, strangers will think her his daughter and create embarrassing moments. By keeping abreast of the times, he may affect the patter of his juniors but it is an alien effort. Far more appropriate and interesting would be his own sincere opinions backed by what life has taught him.

One who tries to fit himself into two generations at once is as silly as the man who, appalled by the news that he was a grandfather, said to his wife: "The baby may call you 'Grandmother' if he likes; but he has got to call me 'Cousin.'"

A woman, past middle age, with her children, once started to climb a mountain—a thing she had not done for years. She did not relish the experience. The young people dashed ahead, jumping like antelopes, from crag to crag. She followed bravely on alone, trying to keep up, but puffing and panting. From time to time, the children politely waited for her; but she felt that they found her a drag, and was sorry that she had tried to climb with them.

However, the next day, she went up the mountain again—that time with a contemporary. They climbed in a leisurely way, stopping to botanize, to see views, and to pick blueberries; altogether, missing nothing enjoyable on the trail. Years were ignored and the afternoon was joyful and exhilarating.

Age has no physical attraction for youth; but it may have spiritual magnetism that is mighty and irresistible.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Having a parking light burning is made mandatory by the District traffic code, which provides that whenever a car is parked on any street during the period from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise, it must display a white light in the front and a red light in the rear.

The parking light may be a single lamp, mounted on the left side of the car, or the two cowl lights or dim headlights in front, together with the tail light. In any case, they must be visible 200 feet in either direction.

Example: A driver parks his car on a well-lighted street and does not turn on a parking light, believing that the street lamps make it clearly visible. Though this actually may be true, he still has violated the regulation requiring a parking light.

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

TRIO IS ARRESTED IN $75 HIDE THEFT

50-GALLON STILL FOUND

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
F. O. Box 245, Vienna, Va.
Phone Vienna 64.

Burglars broke into an outbuilding at the home of Joe Money, State forest warden, near Colvin Run, and stole $75 worth of choice opossum and mink hides late Thursday night. The robbery was not discovered until yesterday morning. Sheriff E. P. Kirby was notified and immediately sent warnings to all nearby authorities and fur dealers.

Yesterday afternoon police in No. 1 Precinct arrested Edward Honesty, of Andrew Chapel, and Ralph Williams, of Forestville, both colored, when they were trying to dispose of hides to a fur dealer in Center Market, in Washington. In a statement given to the police by Honesty, who is said to have admitted the housebreaking, Williams and Floyd Norris, of Herndon, also colored, were implicated. Honesty stated Norris at that time was waiting for his half of the proceeds at a place in Georgetown.

Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity, accompanied by Washingteon police, went to the designated place and arrested Norris. Williams and Norris were brought to the Fairfax Jail by Deputy Sheriff Magarity, but Honesty was detained by the Washington police for investigation in connection with another case.

In continuance with the campaign against drinking and rowdyism in the public dance halls in Fairfax County, the police paid a visit Thursday night to Chimney Villa Dance Hall, on the Lee highway, between Falls Church and Merrifield. Charles Kenny, of Washington, and Benjamin Wilson, of Clarendon, were arrested for drinking in public. They were taken before Justice of the Peace C. T. Moling, at Falls Church, where they pleaded guilty and were fined $18, or twenty days in jail.

Late yesterday evening Sheriff E. P. Kirby and his deputies made a raid on an old abandoned dance hall, near Seminary, where they seized a 50-gallon still and destroyed six barrels of mash. A hole had been cut in the floor of the dance hall and a cave for the still and mash hollowed out under the floor. A large gasoline stove was used to run the still. The sheriff stated that no one was found but signs of recent operation were in evidence.

Seneca Tribe, Order of Red Men, at Herndon will have a community Christmas tree today and every child in the community will receive a gift. The women of the different churches have been requested to report any child who is not likely to have Christmas presents and in the case of needy persons a ticket will be issued which will entitle them to a large basket of groceries.

During the last month the county health unit, consisting of Dr. R. E. Peagans, Dr. R. W. SENSATIONS BARED IN POLICE INQUIRY jury that such a thing would vitiate the legality of any action they might take in the matter, Mr. Shea testified under questioning.

Heavrins Are Arrested.

Before the trial board had convened another chapter was being written at the Park Lane apartments, where police of the Third Precinct, acting under orders of Judge Gus A. Schuldt, arrested Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Heavrin, who had refused to appear at the trial in response to a subpena. Mrs. Heavrin protested the police entered her apartment by force.

The Heavrins were taken to police court in a patrol wagon. There they promised Judge Schuldt they would go to the trial board and answer the subpena. They walked to the Sixth police station, where the trial was being held, in the company of Capt. William G. Stott, commander of the Third Precinct. Called to the witness stand they refused to be sworn or to testify, and were permitted to go.

While Mr. Heavrin was in the trial room getting from Maj. Atkins, board chairman, a written statement that he and his wife had appeared and been formally excused, Mrs. Heavrin was in the hall outside trying to persuade a reporter to come to her apartment because she had "much valuable information" about the McPherson case and investigation. These were sensational leads and developments, she insisted.

last day and night. However, in the event of a protracted cold spell it is prepared to assist more applicants than ordinarily.

Unless snow accompanies the coming cold wave officials of the several public utilities are anticipating little, if any, delays or the crippling of their service. The transportation companies are understood to have made elaborate preparations in the event this section is visited by snow.

Train service into Washington from the West and North was being maintained, but the crack fliers of the leading trunk lines were running in some instances several hours behind schedule.

The National Capital has been rather fortunate in that the thermometer has registered below the freezing point but twice this winter.

The first cold snap came on November 30 and was of three days' duration, the thermometer dropping to 11, while on the third of the month it fell to 19. Little suffering has been reported in and about the city from the cold.

G. L. HUGHES NAMED U. S. COMMISSIONER

New Official Is Appointed When Court Is Told of Turnage's Illness.

ACQUAINTED WITH OFFICE

G. Lyle Hughes, well-known Washington lawyer, yesterday was named a United States Commissioner for the District of Columbia. He immediately took the oath of office before Frank J. Cunningham, clerk of the District Supreme Court.

The appointment was made by Acting Chief Justice Frederick L. Siddons.

While the District for a number of years had three commissioners, for the last several years Commissioner Needham C. Turnage has been handling the work of the office alone. The appointment of Commissioner Hughes is said to have followed a report to the court that Commissioner Turnage is critically ill.

Commissioner Turnage was stricken several weeks ago while conducting a preliminary hearing, and was removed to his home at 1222 Decatur street northwest. He had been confined to his home since then and is said to be suffering from pneumonia.

Commissioner Hughes has been associated with Commissioner Turnage for several years in the practice of law and is well acquainted with the duties of the office.

The new commissioner said that the appointment was made necessary by the illness of Commissioner Turnage and indicated that he would not continue to hold the office after Commissioner Turnage's recovery.

WOMAN NEAR DEATH AFTER AUTO MISHAP

Mrs. Mary Fausnaugh Was Struck by Machine in Crossing Eighteenth Street.

MAN, BOY KNOCKED DOWN

A woman was probably fatally injured, and two other persons suffered less seriously in automobile accidents in Washington yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Fausnaugh, 45 years old, of the All States Hotel, was struck by an automobile early yesterday afternoon while crossing Eighteenth street between C and D streets northwest. She was taken to Emergency Hospital where she was reported to have a fracture of the skull, lacerations of the scalp and a fracture of the left knee. Third Precinct police reported that the driver of the car was William Vernon Brown, of 304 D street northeast, who was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

While walking east on Pennsylvania avenue at Eighth street northwest, Thomas Williams, 59 years old, of the Gospel Mission, was struck by an automobile said by police to have been driven by Gerald S. Wormley, of 211 T street northwest.

Williams was taken to Emergency Hospital where he was reported to be suffering from bruises of the chest, leg and left hand.

Allen Gordon, 7 years old, of 712 G street southwest, received bruises and cuts when he was knocked down by an automobile said by police to have been driven by Harvie Lewis, of 1239 Sixth street southwest. The accident occurred while the boy was playing on the street near his home.

W., B. & A. Settles Row at Annapolis

Injunction Suit Dropped as Road Agrees to New Routing of Cars.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 20.—The long-pending controversy between municipal authorities of Annapolis and the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad, was finally brought to an amicable settlement today when the railway withdrew the injunction proceedings that restrained the city from further interfering with the operation of trolley cars from Washington and Baltimore, which were making a left turn at West street and Church Circle in order to connect with steamers of the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Line.

The dispute has covered more than a year, the city first endeavoring to enforce an oral agreement made by the late James J. Doyle, president of the railroad, to abandon its West street terminal entirely and reroute cars around the western outskirts of the city to the Bladen street terminal.

The outstanding proposition of the railway now is to abandon West street station entirely, reroute cars to Bladen street as previously suggested, and to operate only such cars through the streets as are necessary to carry out its contract with the ferry company.

same disclosures had been made regarding him, "impeachment proceedings would have been discussed in the House of Representatives before now" and "the Republican press of the United States would be ringing with his denunciation."

Lakin Letter Quoted.

With the War Department taking a hand in the reported action of former Ambassador Crowder in divulging war plan secrets to Cuban sugar interests, the Senate lobby committee yesterday followed up another phase of its inquiry concerning sugar tariff activities and received a letter saying Edwin P. Shattuck had conferred with President Hoover during consideration of the Hawley-Smoot bill.

A personal friend of the President, Mr. Shattuck testified Thursday that he never had talked on the stugar tariff with Mr. Hoover, although the man who employed him to work against an increased sugar levy said he was retained partially because of his relations with the rPesident. The letter was one to Mr. Shattuck from H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company which retains him. Dated last August 24, it was placed in the record as follows:

"Just before we last went to Cuba you had an interview with President Hoover. You underatood him to approve of Cuban newspaper criticism. I inclose translations of the two editorials from El Comague-Zano. I think that they ought to be given some publicity, but to be called specially to the attention of the White House."

Caraway Wants Facts.

Chairman Caraway, of the committee, said Mr. Shattuck would be given an opportunity to reppear for testimony in relation to the letter.

Meanwhile the War Department decided to consider reports that Maj. Gen. Crowder, who was Ambassador to Cuba after his retirement from the Army, had disclosed some plans involving maneuvers in connection with the Philippines in event of war. Senator Caraway had said at the Capitol that he would ask no investigation.

"All we want to do," said the Arkansas senator, "is to develop the facts. Any one else can take any action deemed advisable."

He had announced previously that Maj. Gen. Crowder would be called for questioning concerning his activities for a low sugar duty.

The testimony to be scrutinized by the War Department was contained in a letter Mr. Lakin wrote to M. C. Riconda, of New York, which said Gen. Crowder had learned "that the plans of the general staff provide that in case of war any attempt to keep a traffic lane open between the Philippines and the United States would be promptly abandoned."

Questioned about the letter, which was introduced Wednesday, Mr. Lakin said he thought Maj. Gen. Crowder had given him the information.

Another Lakin Letter.

Another letter placed in the committee's voluminous record yesterday was from Mr. Lakin to President Machado of Cuba and dated August 21. It said:

"You, of course, know about the hearings which took place before the Senate finance committee. In ddition to the hearings, Shattuck and I have many senators and have corresponded with many others. He also has been in constant touch with the White House and Senator Smoot.

"As you know Col. Taraga (of Havana), when he was first in Washington, saw Senator Smoot and President Hoover. Although the arrangement to see the President was ostensibly made by Senator Smoot, Mr. Shattuck had actually arranged it some weeks before Tarafa came to Washington."

Two Witnesses Questioned.

The committee questioned two witnesses yesterday—W. L. Petriken, of Denver, president of the Great Western Sugar Co., and Junior Owens, of Washington, secretary of the American bottlers of carbonated beverages, and then recessed for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Petriken said he had discussed the sliding scale proposal for sugar duties with President Hoover and Chairman Smoot and had told the President he thought it "was surrounded with a good deal of hazard."

"I called on Mr. Hoover in an informal way," he said, "and he asked me what I thought of the sliding scale."

The witness said he had called on members of Congress in connection with tariff matters and had been in Washington a good part of the time since April 1. His expenses, he said, were paid by his company.

Dividends Run to 20 er cent.

Questioned about the dividends his company had been paying, Mr. Petriken said they had averaged 15 to 20 per cent during the 23 years it had been in existence and that its original capitalization of $30,000,000 had been increased to $65,000,000.

Mr. Owens, who said he was paid a salary of $16,800 a year, testified that his organization had spent around $25,000 in advocating a low sugar duty.

If the sugar duty provided by the House bill were adopted, he added, it would increase the cost of that commodity around $4,000,000 a year for the companies affiliated with the association. That, he aded, probably cost of soft drinks.

would have to result in an increased

The witness said David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, Md., was employed, at $250 a month, as adviser in tariff matters, and that a publicity organization was paid $1,500 a month to disseminate articles pertaining to sugar.

Quizzed on Atlanta Letter.

The money, Mr. Owens said, had been paid by the Coca Cola Co. and the Hershey Co., through the firm of Pike & Co., New York sugar brokers.

Mr. Owens was questioned about a letter he wrote to Charles V. Rainwater, of Atlanta, which said George B. Francis, Mr. Shattuck's law partner, had told him Mr. Shattuck had been successful in raising money in Cuba.

"I wouldn't have written that if Francis hadn't told me," he testified.

Mr. Shattuck had denied on the witness stand Thursday that he had solicited any money in Cuba and said he didn't understand how Francis came to say that he had.

A proposal to line up Representative Ruth Baker Pratt (Republican), New York, in support of a low sugar duty, was outlined in a letter Mr. Owens wrote to Mr. Pike. The letter said:

"I think it would be a master stroke if we could get Mrs. Pratt to openly lead the fight on the floor of the House against pilfering of America's sugar bowl through an increased tariff."

The committee adjourned without questioning Mr. Owens about the letter.

Responsibility Unfixed In Motor-Crash Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Dec. 20.—Coroner J. W. Humphries and a jury of five men were unable to fix responsibility for the death of Francis Kibler, 55-year-old convict guard, who was killed near here in an automobile accident yesterday. The verdict read that Kibler met his death while on the running board of an automobile driven by Allen Cropp, of Culpeper, with which the car of Clifton Beahm, of Washington, collided.

Commonwealth's Attorney R. A. Bickers tonight said that warrants had been issued for both Beahm and Cropp and that a preliminary hearing would be held on January 18.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

ALTHOUGH the rumor that Paramount-Famous-Lasky was to take over control of the Rialto Theater in this city as a sort of corollary of a deal involving many theaters in a different and remote territory has been definitely scotched, the report has persisted that the Publix stage units would be presented in the Ninth street house regardless of any transfer of operating ownership. This also now has been impaled upon the shafts of improbability.

Upon reliable authority I am informed that the hitch in the sale of the Ninth street lease—Tom Moore still owns the property—centered in an exorbitant money demand for control of the theater. It is a similar consideration that is keeping the Publix shows off the Rialto's stage.

When I say "stage," of course, I mean "apron"—for that is about all there is at the Rialto in the way of rostrum upon which the gifted principals and agile line girls of the Publix productions might hope to strut their material. To equip the Rialto to accommodate such pretentious offerings as many of the Publix road shows really are would entail a complete reconstruction of the theater's proscenium at an almost prohibitive cost. Mr. Moore, Mr. Laemmle and Mr. Katz, of Publix, all are said to be reluctant to shoulder the burden of making over the theater. Especially is this true of Mr. Katz, who prefers to have his units play where Paramount pictures are shown. These are tied up here, and in many other strategic territories, by Loew and Stanley-Crandall-Warner.

So, despite all of the persiflage that has been bandied about concerning it, the present outlook is that in so far as Washington is immediately involved there ain't going to be no Publix.

Today's report concerning the condition of John Irving Fisher, erstwhile master of ceremonies at the Fox, who on Monday was stricken with a desperate illness and rushed to a downtown hospital, where his condition was considered critical, is such as to occasion mingled feelings of pleasure and disappointment.

Word from the sick room is that the threat of pleuro-pneumonia is pats and that Mr. Fisher is not nly out of danger but on the road to speedy and complete recovery, although he will not be discharged from the hospital and the watchful eye of his attending physician for several days to come. This portion of the day's bulletin may be relied upon to bring cheer to the hearts of his many friends in the Capital.

Not so the additional information, which comes to this desk on unimpeachable authority, that Mr. Fisher's engagement at the Fox has been terminated. It was learned yesterday from an infallible source that when Mr. Fisher is discharged from the hospital he will not return to the Fox tsage, where he has served as master of ceremonies and solo pianist over a continuous period of 38 weeks. This is the longest single engagement of any master of ceremonies in the National Capital, with the single exception of Wesley Eddy, whose term on the stage of another theater reached a final total of 75 weeks.

It is my understanding that no immediate successor will be appointed in Mr. Fisher's place, but that M. C.'s traveling with the various Fanchon and Marco stage units will function until a final selection, if any, is made.

Now I know what has been done to the sound apparatus at the Palace and Columbia. The horns to the rear of the screens, through which the sound is magnified, have been completely readjusted and their positions radically changed to accommodate a more advantageous focal point for the amplified commotions.

The horn towers have been packed in a heavy, absorbent material about an inch thick—just like Westfelt—and called (I hope I'm right) ozonite, instead of what this column said Thursday.

While I couldn't notice much difference backstage, they say the effect out front is vastly improved. So now "Mike" Cullen is worrying about wide-angle projection!

In another column of today's issue of The Post will be found—incorrigible optimist that I am—announcement of the formal presentation of the bronze plaques awarded four Washington motion picture theaters by the Exhibitors Herald-World, one of the foremost trade journals of the motion picture industry, in recognition of the high quality of their reproduction of sound pictures.

Dolores Del Rio, who made such an agreeable impression during the engagement last summer when she made a week of personal appearances in the Capital in conjunction with first presentations of "Evangeline" at the Columbia, has been named defendant in a suit for $30,000 filed by Gunther Lessing, her attorney. The plaintiff asserts merely that it is due him for "legal services rendered."

Sounds like a lot of law!

Joseph Santley, wel-known musical comedy star and vaudevillian, has joined Pathe in the capacity of director. His productions will be made on the West Coast, the first to be, probably, George Gershwin's "Treasure Girl."

Mr. Santley, who doesn't go in for titles, will be known as supervising producer and director of motion picture musical comedies.

The Christmas cards are coming in in droves, one of the loveliest so far having just arrived from Jack Connolly, European representative of Fox Movietone News, who communicates his and his family's yuletide greetings—at least that is what I suppose they are—in French from that gay Paree!

Maybe I had better look it up, at that!

You will be glad to know that all of the orchestras are busy rehearsing "Holy Night" and "A Christmas Fantasy," during which they all blow toy tin horns, in preparation for their imminent use—heaven forbid.

Not that they aren't effective numbers, but just a trifle threadbare after continuous use for the last twenty years. Or am I wrong?

Only one more week until the Warner Bros. "Show of Shows," with its 77 stars, including Winnie Lightner and "Bull" Montana in their operatic travesty, "Singing in the Bathtub." Order your opera glasses early!

And so you won't forget it, the final draft of the New Year resolutions ought to be practically ready for the printer by now.

DON'T RUSH THE COMMISSION.

Senator Harris is anxious to obtain a preliminary report from the Law Enforcement Commission on the subject of prohibition enforcement. He thinks the commission has been at work long enough to have obtained at least a "tentative" opinion concerning the workings of prohibition. Senator Harris would like to have this opinion as a guide for Congress in making further appropriations for the enforcement of the antiliquor law.

This unseemly haste runs counter to all the traditions of all the commissions that have ever been set up, and is especially repugnant to the spirit with which the Law Enforcement Commission has undertaken its task. The commission has only $250,000 with which to set up housekeeping. Considering the scope of its undertaking, this allowance is a miserly bagatelle. How can subcommissions, special agents, examiners, committees, legal counsel, technical advisers and a healthily expanding clerical force be financed on such a sum? The commission occupies only a part of one building in Washington. It has never even seen Christmas yet. What it is now, compared with what it will be, is as a wart to Ossa.

Granting that representatives of the commission have taken a look or two at the prohibition system, how can it be expected that the commission itself could render even a tentative opinion that would be a safe guide to Congress in making appropriations? The digestion of hearings and reports is necessarily a tedious process, and without digestion there can be no assimilation or nutrition. Possibly the individual commissioners could throw off snap judgments that might be illuminating, but they might illuminate the wrong path for Congress. Opinions differ in that august body as to the sum that should be appropriated for the enforcement of prohibition. Last year the demands ranged from $2,500,000 to $270,000,000. Secretary Mellon established a unique record among public servants when he actually refused to favor an increased appropriation. He turned down $25,000,000 and insisted that $2,500,000 was about all that he could use to advantage. The reverberations of this astounding reversal of form are still rechoing throughout the executive departments.

The Law Enforcement Commission should not be nagged and nudged into making a hasty report. When it is ready it will make a report, and no one need doubt that it will recommend an outlay for prohibition enforcement sufficiently large to satisfy Senator Harris. But if he should press the commission it might make a careless report that would fall short by scores of millions of the amount that he may have in mind.

COAL MINING DISASTERS.

Major mine disasters, such as that which has just brought death to more than 50 miners in Oklahoma, are shocking to the country. The thought of scores of men being blown to fragments or smothered far underground is particularly horrifying. It is surprising that greater precautions against coal mine explosions are not taken.

The cause of the Oklahoma explosion has not yet been determined, but it is believed on good evidence that the initial blast was local, and that the major explosion resulted from the subsequent ignition of coal dust which lined the sidewalls and ceilings. This is the cause of a large proportion of the more serious coal mine explosions. Reports indicate that the blast in the Oklahoma mine was not dissimilar to that which occurred at Renton, Pa., a few months ago. Three hundred men were trapped by this latter accident, but only twelve lost their lives. Operators of the Pennsylvania mine had rock-dusted its workings in accordance with the advice of the Bureau of Mines. Spraying of fine noncombustible stone dust on the walls and ceiling of coal mines tends to localize explosions of this kind and results in enormous savings of both life and money. Yet the method has not been adopted in many American coal mines, and disasters continue to occur.

Accidental deaths in coal mines are abnormally high. A recent report by the Department of Commerce shows that 1,518 men were killed during the first nine months of this year. The average annual loss of life is more than 2,500, and the average financial loss, according to the Bureau of Mines, is $188,000,000. This amounts to 14 cents for every ton of coal mined, which might represent the difference between profit and loss.

Under any circumstances coal mining is hazardous. Under present conditions, however, coal miners are exposed to needless dangers. Experience has proved that no mine is safe without the strictest safety regulations. This distressing loss of life and great economic waste should bring about closer adherence to the standard safety code.

THE BOLLING FIELD TRAGEDY.

Capt. Harry Dinger had been flying for twelve years and was regarded as one of the most capable "big ship" pilots in the Army Air Corps. The trimotored Fokker he took aloft from Bolling Field yesterday morning was one of the newest and theoretically safest ships in commission. Three hundred feet up, following a perfect takeoff, the ship got out of control and crashed to earth near the spot where Lieut. George Cuddihy, of the Navy, was killed several weeks ago. Its passengers, Representative William Kaynor, of Massachusetts; Stanley Lowe, his secretary; Arthur McGill, his friend, and the mechanic, Private Vladimir Kuzma, were killed with the pilot in the catastrophe.

The cause of this terrible tragedy probably never will be known. The ship is a total wreck, and no one survives to tell what may have occurred in that dizzy moment when the Fokker swerved from her forward course to begin the sickening maneuver that ended in the crash. Perhaps, as Capt. Dinger started a turn—an entirely justifiable maneuver at the altitude that had been reached—the left motor suddenly and without warning "went dead." Perhaps a control wire broke or jammed.

The tragedy throws a pall over the very beginning of the holiday season. It has claimed among its victims an able legislator and a conscientious, competent Army officer, and has left children fatherless. To those bereaved by the tragedy, Washington extends its heartfelt sympathy.

WORK FOR PRISONERS.

Testifying before the House judiciary committee, Attorney General Mitchell referred to the overcrowding and idleness in Federal prisons as a "disgrace to the country." In accordance with the request of President Hoover the committee has begun work on five bills which would appropriate upward of $7,000,000 to relieve overcrowding. But the problem of idleness, which breeds riots and future crimes, will apparently go unsolved.

The Government spends millions of dollars on its prisons every year to support offenders against society. It is now necessary to use millions more of the taxpayers' money to extend the facilities for keeping them idle. The policy of Congress, as outlined at the hearing, is to keep prison-made goods out of competition with regular manufacturers. Federal prisoners are confined to production for Government bureaus and institutions, which means that enforced idleness will continue to be the rule for a large majority.

A hearing conducted this week before the State Crime Commission of New York throws light on this problem. George R. Wadsworth, director of the division of prison industries, testified that competition between prison and free-labor factories is grossly overestimated. His experience shows that prison labor, based on the dollar volume of goods manufactured per industrial worker, is only 10 per cent as efficient as free labor. An ordinary industrial plant works toward the objective of quantity production. In a prison factory the important thing is reclamation of men, and the output of goods is considered a by-product.

Without entering into competition with free labor, penal institutions of the United States could be placed on a self-sustaining basis. A recent survey by the National Society of Penal Information shows that two out of six State prisons studied have their prisoners profitably employed. All the convicts in the Minnesota State Prison are at work with liberal pay. Wisconsin conducts its prison with such efficiency that it is not only self-sustaining, but yields a slight profit to the State. Why can not the Federal Government relieve the taxpayers of the burden of supporting idle prisoners in the same way?

In making vast outlays for new penal institutions, provision for employing the inmates should not be overlooked. The committee should seriously consider the advisability of building new penal workshops instead of great bastilles which will become schools of crime.

CONSTITUTION TINKERING.

The latest move to amend the Constitution is designed to change Article V, which deals with the process of making amendments. Representative Lea, of California, has introduced a resolution which would put a limit on the time during which States may petition Congress to call a constitutional convention, and change the requirements for final adoption of amendments.

The purpose behind this resolution is difficult to understand. It appears to be an outcome of a resolution which was received recently by the House of Representatives from the Legislature of Wisconsin. This document alleged that two-thirds of the States have, by legislative action, called upon Congress to convoke a convention to consider amendments to the Constitution. The concern of these guardians of the Constitution in the Northwest seems to have been taken seriously by no one except Mr. Lea.

Petitions from the States requesting a constitutional convention have been coming into Congress since the Government was first organized. They concern all varieties of proposed amendments. It appears now that the total mounts up to more than two-thirds the number of States, although no official record has been kept. On this ground it appears to some individuals who love to meddle with the Constitution that Congress is bound to call a convention for proposing amendments. Apparently to avoid this contingency, Representative Lea proposes to limit to five years the period in which such petitions may be filed.

The intent of the Constitution in this respect is plain, and nothing but a desire for tinkering with technicalities could prompt Congress to sponsor a change.

The Lea resolution does not stop with this five-year limitation, however. He would materially alter the methods of ratifying amendments. The Constitution provides that amendments shall be valid "when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress." The Lea resolution would bring about ratification by popular vote at congressional elections. A majority of the total vote cast, also a majority of the vote cast in each of two-thirds of the States, would be sufficient to amend the Constitution.

The effect of this amendment on the whole would be to facilitate tinkering with the Constitution. At the present state of the Constitution's growth any amendment to alter it is ill-advised, and a provision to make it more susceptible to the whims of the moment is not worth consideration. Thousands of amendments have been proposed and it is safe to conclude that some very useless changes would have been made had it not been for the difficult process of amendment. Let the Constitution stand as it is.

The Senate is to be commended for having taken time from its wrestling with the tariff bill to pass, without a record vote, the bill to provide free textbooks and supplies to pupils in the junior and senior high schools of the District. The bill will provide a measure of financial relief to parents to whom the schooling of children is burdensome economically or accomplished only at financial sacrifice. At the same time it will not add measurably to the tax burden. The measure now awaits action by the House. In view of the fact that a similar bill was adopted in the last Congress, little or no opposition is anticipated. Provision of free textbooks and supplies will mark a step forward in the program of free education.

Pat Sullivan, Wyoming's new senator, loves a good fight. So there's nothing wrong with his qualifications.

NEUTRALITY

By PHILIP MARSHALL BROWN,
In a letter to the New York Times.

The Times correspondent in London, Mr. James, commenting on the white paper just issued by the British government, states in his dispatch of December 13: "It is the position of the British government that under the Kellogg pact there should be no neutrals in another war. Therefore, America could not be a neutral. It is impossible to escape the conclusion that in another war America would have no neutral rights to defend."

Mr. James might have followed up this impressive logic by saying the British government further held that with no neutral rights to defend, the United States would have no need of a navy, that "parity" has no longer any significance, and that Great Britain should be free to build as many warships as she may need, to comply with her obligations under the covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact, not to mention the needs of her empire! Mr. James might furthermore have pointed out that the position of the British government left the United States with the choice of two embarrassing alternatives; either to acquiesce passively in interference with its interests on the high seas in time of war or to become a fellow belligerent with Great Britain!

If all this were true, it would be necessary for the United States to recast its whole attitude toward the League of Nations, the Kellogg pact and the problem of naval disarmament during the next few weeks before the conference on naval armaments assembles in St. James' Palace in London. Perhaps this is the very purpose of this extraordinary white paper.

But all these bold premises and imposing logical deductions are not quite so. A few outstanding facts should suffice to controvert the British position. First, war, whether "private" or "public," has not been exorcised or rendered illegal under the covenant of the League of Nations or under the Kellogg pact. Article XV of the covenant expressly envisages resort to war when all methods of peaceful settlement have failed. This covers also the Locarno agreements as well, which hang on this article. The Kellogg pact, under the interpretations agreed upon before it was signed, permits wars of "self-defense," without any definition or limitation whatever of self-defense. The use of force in defense of national rights, whether in China, Haiti, Egypt, Central Europe, Albania, Poland, Russia, or anywhere else, under utterly different conditions, is conceded.

Second, efficient sanctions to be applied against any nation violating its obligations either under the covenant or the Kellogg pact have not yet been devised. There has been no possibility of agreement on the subject. The provisions of Article XVI of the covenant, which include even "the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the nationals of any other state, whether a member of the league or not," are so preposterous that no serious attempt has been made to provide for their application. Likewise, in the case of the Kellogg pact, much has been said concerning the necessity of sanctions to make it effective—as illustrated at present in Manchuria—but nothing has been yet proposed even as a basis for discussion.

In view of these indisputable facts, to say that there can be no more neutrality, and hence that there are no more neutral rights to defend, would seem to be nothing less than an amazing assertion. One is left to infer that a very deliberate attempt is being made to influence public opinion in the United States before the meeting of the naval conference in London to agree that we will be content either with interference with our interests on the high seas in time of war or that we will become a cobelligerent as a member of the League of Nations or as a signatory of the Kellogg pact. We are to do the very thing Prime Minister MacDonald recently said we could not reasonably be expected to do, namely, be drawn into the political "messes" of Europe.

My purpose has been to suggest that American public opinion should be on the alert to resist any adroit or insidious attempts to force the United States into an embarrassing choice of alternatives with respect to its policy toward European politics, and specifically toward the political implications of the problem of armaments. Our people are generously idealistic; they are not necessarily simple-minded.

Theory of Alienation.

New York World: Entertainment of a heart-balm suit, as it has come to be called, is nonsensical, as it assumes something which is obviously untrue; that a woman is a sort of volitionless creature, incapable of any act on her own motion, and doing what she does only because she is influenced by some superior kind of will, like a trained seal. How false this is should be apparent to anybody who has ever tried to influence a woman. The theory of law on which such suits are entertained must be a relic of the days when a woman was actually regarded as an inferior order of being, a chattel which could be owned or stolen like any other chattel. The time has come, it would seem, to admit that this theory of law is a big mistake.

WINTER.

The snow is in the air,
The wind is bleak and cold,
The ground is brown and bare,
The year is growing old.

The song birds now have fled
To sunnier, warmer skies;
Still men the sidewalks tread
And men to toil arise.

The year is growing old,
Harsh winter strips the trees
Of their red and gold,
Now bitter is the breeze.

But still at break of day
Move carts along the street,
And from the sidewarks gray
Come sound of hurrying feet.

When comes our winter-time
And we from earth have gone,
Still will the town clock chime
And men go hurrying on.

When we have passed away,
Still on the busy street,
With every dawning day,
Shall sound the tramp of feet.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

When Friday comes and you can take life easy without fear of a humiliating scene in the class room next day, it is your practice to relieve the monotony of home life by reading fiction.

A little fiction won't harm you, if it's decent, but the habit of nibbling sweets spoils the appetite for dinner—and dinner is needed to make the wheels go 'round.

Yesterday a mother came to my office and asked me to give her boy a job. He isn't yet out of high school, but she thought he could absorb an education by working in a newspaper office.

Many people have that idea, but it's a mistake.

A boy who quits school in the eleventh grade, as your old dad did, can absorb a fair education by working among newspaper men—if he will go to his room after supper and study until bedtime—and keep at it 365 days in the year for a period of 25 years.

But that is the only way.

You won't have an education when you finish high school, and you won't have an education when you graduate from college.

In fact, if you finish college with the belief that you are "educated," and there close your acquaintance with books as most college graduates do, you never will know what it's all about and you will be too dumb to interest anybody but dumb people.

The ignorance of college graduates who know nothing more than they learned in college is so complete and so pathetic as to make their diplomas seem a cruel joke.

In school you merely learn how to learn.

People who can read feel superior to the poor illiterates who can't, but the man who can't read is in no worse plight than the man who won't.

If the prize is on the other side of the river, the fellow who won't swim is just as far from it as the fellow who can't.

Your only chance to know anything and be anything is to get knowledge—to learn and learn and learn.

And since the schools can't give you more than the first thin layer of knowledge, you must make books your best friends if you would avoid being a tiresome ignoramus.

That's the truth, Honey—the plain, unvarnished truth. And I am giving you this warning because you can't learn good manners if you associate with bums.

Your tastes haven't jelled yet. You can learn to enjoy respectable companions, or you can learn to enjoy shallow and foolish ones.

And you can learn to enjoy good books, or you can learn to enjoy vile and silly ones.

You can't run with both crowds. If you cultivate one you lose the other. And if you get the habit of reading trash, you never will enjoy worth-while books and never will enjoy the companionship of worth-while people. Love,

DAD.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Lack of Cooperation Between Federal and District Bodies Results in Costly Delay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The dispute as to whether or not certain employes of the District government are not unwilling to attribute shortcomings to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as alleged by Col. U. S. Grant 3d in a letter to Representative Simmons in connection with the delay in preparing plans for the proposed Alice Deal Junior High School, may not be important of itself, but the situation that has been brought to light in the incident is deplorable. The municipal architect some time earlier had attributed the delay to the fact that the park body had not finally established the highway plan for the Fort Reno area. Col. Grant, however, insisted that the plan had been delivered many months ago. Now it develops that the earlier plan had been modified by District officials and returned to the park office for its consideration, and that the modified plan had been discussed by that body at the March meeting. Whether or not it was approved has not been divulged.

Why was not the decision upon the modified plan forwarded by the Park and Planning Commission to the District Building? Why, since this was not done, did not the municipal architect inquire of Col. Grant's office as to the status of the plan? Here are two offices, constituted by law to carry forward the people's business. Here was a matter requiring the cooperative attention of the two offices. Yet each seemed to consider itself self-sufficient. Because of lack of cooperation plans have been bandied about for many months, and the preliminary work for a much-needed new school has been left undone.

It is true that work on the school could not have been started even had the highway plans not been lost, inasmuch as all of the land needed has not been acquired. No actual harm was done. But the situation that has been revealed is not pleasing. If these two offices insist on maintaing their absolute independence, how many others are administered on a similar basis? If cooperation is nonexistent between the many offices and bureaus that are constituted to carry on the people's business, taxpayers are spending more for their government than they should, and there can be no such thing as efficiency. TAXPAYER.

Mr. Johnson Utters a Few Pungent Remarks on District Architecture.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to see the State, War and Navy pile preserved, if for no other reason than as a heroic attempt to develop a type of American architecture. The French roof is abominable and could well be replaced with a design of concrete and copper.

It was a man named Mullins or Muggins or some such name, Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department, who some 60 years ago devised this substantial so-called art monstrosity. He was trying to originate American architecture, and built similar buildings for postoffices in Cincinnati, Chicago and New York, all of which were promptly torn down, so outrageously were the fine artistic sensibilities of these pork cultured cities upset.

The artistic gentlemen who originated Greek architecture (in Washington) with everlasting Doric, Ionic and Corinthian columns would have it remodeled at great expense, destroying a wonderfully substantial building so as to match the unsightly subway known as the Treasury Department. Every little village in the United States now has its bank fronted with a huge facade of gigantic Greek columns.

The business men are developing a fine American type of skyscraper architecture. Why was it such a henious offense for the patriotic Muggins to try to develop something original for a Government building? Admitting that the numerous columns are Puritanic and not Pagan, might not some architectural genius carry the design further and produce something really beautiful for our new State Department and presidential offices?

Just why is the Fine Arts Commission so deeply sunk in Greece? Of course, it will go ahead with its Periclean designs, and we will have two unsightly classical Treasury Departments instead of one. Maybe they will have enough Greek columns to put the name of each State thereon—vide Lincoln Memorial.

Maybe some American architect could remodel that old monstrosity, the Treasury Department. Then we could have the beautiful colonial White House residence, flanked by its two great arms of government housed in American architecture. But I fear me our new Washington is to be a forest of Doric, Ionic and Corinthian oaks. I have been an inhabitant of Washington some 40-odd years and have grown to like the monstrosity. I wish the man who ordered those gates torn down had a jail sentence for contempt. JEROME JOHNSON.

Old-Time Resident Expresses Average Citizen's Attitude Toward Proposal for District Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to the question of District suffrage I am rather lukewarm, and I suppose my state of mind is not unlike that of two-thirds or more of the District's residents.

From the patriotic viewpoint I do not enjoy the prospect of the possible complicated mix-up of National, State and pothouse politics which might result from the granting of statehood to the District. Also I am fairly well satisfied with the District government as at present administered.

On the other hand, the possibility of making Washington a model city politically is intriguing. And, having resided here since my schoolboy days, there is a strong attraction in the prospect of rounding out a not very notable career constitutionally qualified as a voting American freeman. So, you see, I am not much hotter against than I am for District suffrage. Washington will sure be a politician's paradise if we ever get it.

SOVIET AND BRITAIN RESUME RELATIONS

Prince of Wales Receives Red Ambassador Amid Pomp and Ceremony.

NOTES ARE EXCHANGED

London, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Soviet Russia and Great Britain today formally resumed full diplomatic relations in London. The Prince of Wales, acting for King George, received K. Sokolnikov, the first ambassador of the Communist regime to come to England, and accepted his letters of credence.

The prince, wearing the full dress uniform of a colonel of the Welsh guards, received M. Sokolnikov and his staff in his audience chamber of St. James Palace, which will be used by the five-power naval conference in January. The Russians were in diplomatic uniform.

M. Sokolnikov, who is the successor of Leonid Krassin and Christian Rakovsky, but has the rank of ambassador instead of charge d'affaires, drove to the palace with the embassy staff, who occupied two British state carriages from royal mews. The carriages were driven by scarlet-cloaked coachmen and accompanied by outriders, also in scarlet.

A detachment of horse guards, magnificent in scarlet uniforms, plumed helmets and shining breast plates, rode behind the Russians.

Ten minutes after the ceremony the Russians returned to their carriages and drove to the hotel, where they are staying temporarily. The Prince of Wales shook hands with the diplomats before their departure. After changing into civilian dress, Ambassador Sokolnikov went to the foreign office to see Foreign Secretary Henderson. They exchanged notes concerning propaganda, as provided in the agreement signed at Lewes, England, several months ago.

It was understood the chief notes provided undertakings between the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union, and that supplementary notes dealt with the dominions.

Pact Aims to Free World Trade Path

Proposed Protocol Would Call League of Nations to Convention.

Paris, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—A protocol which on June 1 will bring into force a League of Nations convention to remove obstructions in the path of foreign trade was agreed upon today.

With the provision that it be ratified by Poland and Czechoslovakia before June 1, delegates from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Roumania, Sweden, Switzerland and Jugoslavia announced that they were ready to sign.

The United States delegates are awaiting instructions and have not given their approval to signature. Refusal of ratification by Poland or Czechoslovakia would most probably, it was said, cause the withdrawal of eight or ten other countries.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THERE will be no yuletide joy for the lover of bigger and better senatorial investigations. What has happened to the Caraway lobby committee will sadden the holidays.

It is, indeed, with mournful mien and grief-laden heart that one has looked upon the committee the past few days. He was powerless to help though his heart went out to the committee in its plight. It was a touching thing to see, that is, for the lover of investigations to see—the committee members bent over their work, laboring along, trying their best to keep up their heads but with the heart taken out of them.

So stunned was the investigation lover that when he came upon the scene suddenly and realized there was sorrow, instead of the enthusiasm, the gayety, the merriment that had been the committee's wont, he could not ask the reason why.

* * * *

THAT something had happened, that a pall had overspread the committee room and crowded out the sun, was first realized with the appearance of Julius H. Barnes.

Ah, but this had been expected to be a field day, this throwing of Mr. Barnes to the wolves. What inviting, cannibalistic meat he afforded, the President's friend, his director of prosperity, the man who stole Mr. Hoover from the Democrats.

People arrived at this scheduled carnival still rubbing the sleep from their eyes, men about town whose custom it is to let the morning committee hearings go by, got up and came down.

* * * *

BUT was Mr. Barnes thrown to the wolves? Why, he never had a more pleasant conversation in his life, a conversation with a group of old friends, only one of whom was even inclined to argue, Senator Blaine. It was thought that perhaps it was Senator Blaine's attitude that made the other committee members treat Mr. Barnes with such tender regard.

That this was not the case developed Thursday with the appearance of Mr. Shattuck, another of the President's friends.

Why, here were two of them in a row. A feast for the gods of yore. But Mr. Shattuck was only gently chided. He was not pressed very hard. The perspiration did not even come to his brow.

It became quite apparent then that something had taken the wind out of the committee's sails; that it had lost heart in its work.

* * * *

AND one does not have to go far to learn the reason why.

The biggest story that the committee has yet uncovered involves its friends, the low-tariff sugar crowd. Just how this story happened to slip up on the committee is a tragedy that all investigation lovers will fully appreciate.

Early in its sugar hearings Mr. Lakin, the sugary writer of letters, appeared just after a representative of the high-tariff sugar lobby had been on the stand. Mr. Lakin's examination was nothing severe, and when he left he was commended for his frankness.

But Senator Robinson, the one high protectionist actively on the committee, insisted that it look into those letters about which Mr. Lakin had casually spoken. And the committee did.

Well, the committee's work has become more heartless as the story of the letters has steadily unfolded. References to the President, references to his friends? Meat, ordinarily, for the investigation epicure.

But in this instance everybody involved was on the side of the committee. The committee hooked its friends. You can't expect it to enthuse over that.

RULING ON BOLTERS SOUGHT IN ALABAMA

Attorney General Asked if Hoover Democrats Can Vote in Primary.

COMMITTEE'S ACT CITED

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Whether Alabama Democrats who voted for President Hoover can participate in the next party primary was asked today of Attorney General C. C. McCall. The Democratic presidential ticket carried Alabama last year by a 7,000 majority, as against nearly 68,000 in 1924.

The attorney general was requested for an official opinion on the effect of the action of the State Democratic executive committee in barring as candidates all persons who supported the Republican ticket or who openly opposed the Democratic presidential ticket. Specifically, his opinion was wanted on whether this ruling was applicable to those voters who supported the Republican candidates.

The committee's action barred as candidates United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, who is seeking another term, and Hugh A. Locke, an announced candidate for governor. Both stumped the State for Hoover.

The request for the Attorney General's opinion came on the day that supporters of Locke were gathering in Birmingham, his home town, to lay plans for a State-wide campaign. Locke announced that he will run as an Independent Democrat in the primary next August.

Senator Heflin, who was similarly barred from becoming a candidate on the Democratic ticket, has announced that he will run for reelection as an Independent Democrat.

The Attorney General said he had asked each Assistant Attorney General to interpret the law on the subject. He said he would also communicate with the chairman of the executive committee and give him the opportunity to present any matter he wished to be considered.

SENATOR QUESTIONS BARRING OF HEFLIN

Black Says That State Group Has Not Regarded Statutes.

QUOTES ALABAMA LAW

(Associated Press.)

The legality of the decision of the Alabama State Democratic committee to bar from the next primary candidates who failed to support the national ticket last year, was challenged yesterday by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama.

The decision would exclude Senator Heflin, of Alabama, from running for renomination on the Democratic ticket when he comes up for reelection next year, but Senator Black, in a formal statement, made no reference to his colleague.

Questions Action's Legality.

While questioning the legality of the committee's action, Mr. Black said the "courts should not be called upon to settle a question upon which there can be no reasonable grounds for disagreement."

"It is a situation," he added, "which calls for the best thought and action of all Democrats who respect the ancient rights of citizenship, and who love the traditions and principles of the Democratic party.

"A study of the resolution adopted by the Alabama State Democratic committee convinces me that the majority has acted in contravention of existing laws and statutes. The committee, in my judgment, has no legal authority to adopt one rule of qualifications for voters in the primary and another rule of qualifications for candidates in that primary.

Says Uniform Law Needed.

"The rule must be uniform with reference to both. The law does not contemplate a special privileged class to run for office and a subordinate class who can vote but not hold office. Citizenship carries with it the right of an elector to vote and hold office. An attempt to abridge the sacred rights of citizenship is fundamentally un-American.

"This is clearly provided in section 612 of the Alabama Code of 1923, limiting the authority of the committee on this subject, as follows: 'All persons who are qualified electors under the general election laws of this State, shall have the right to participate in such primary elections, subject to such political or other qualifications as may be prescribed for its candidates.'

"This law is not ambiguous. It is plain. It means what it says. A rule which bars a candidate bars a voter, and vice versa."

VATICAN SECLUSION ENDED BY POPE PIUS

ISOLATION BEGAN IN 1870

Rome, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The Bishop of Rome in the person of Pope Pius XI today took possession of his own cathedral of St. John Lateran, the mother church of Christendom, for the first time since 1870.

Pope Pius, ending the voluntary seclusion of Popes in the Vatican since their loss of temporal power, left Vatican soil early this morning and entered Italian territory to celebrate mass at St. John Lateran. The last Pope to do so was Pius IX, who ruled over all Rome as a temporal monarch.

The pontiff's exit took Rome by surprise and no one was aware of his history-making trip until the Stefani News Agency announced it in a bulletin at 9:55 a. m. He drove to the cathedral in an automobile of American make, which was recently presented to him.

Pope Makes Early Trip.

Profiting by the provisions of the Lateran treaties, by which Cardinal Gasparri and Premier Mussolini settled the Roman question on February 11, his holiness left the Vatican at 6:45 a. m. while workaday Rome was rubbing the sleep out of its eyes.

He went to the Lateran Hill, where on September 19, 1870, Pius IX, with the Italian forces threatening at the gates, went to pray.

In the cathedral Pope Pius celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination, saying mass at the very altar of the confession before which he was made a priest half a century ago to the day.

Cardinals Are Surprised.

He thus performed one of the most dramatic acts of his long career and took even the members of his own college of cardinals completely by surprise.

It had been announced some weeks ago that his holiness would celebrate his sacerdotal jubilee in the simplest fashion by saying mass at his own private chapel in the vatican apartments with only a chosen few present.

To the astonishment of the small company of prelates summoned to the vatican at 6 a. m. for these rites, Pope Pius announced he had decided to celebrate mass at the Cathedral of St. John Lateran.

Trip Made in Motor Car.

Soon afterward the papal automobiles left Vatican City territory and the pope, without advising the Italian authorities, and, without securing a police escort, aped across Rome at dawn through streets he had not seen for many years.

Everything was in readiness at the cathedral. By the simple expedient of arranging for a mass by Cardinal Pompili, archpriest of the Basilica and the pope's vicar general in the Diocese of Rome, preparations had been made without arousing suspicion.

At the last moment it was announced to those who were attending that the pontiff himself had been substituted for Cardinal Pompili.

Chalice Given as Memento.

He presented the beautiful golden chalice that he used to the chapter of St. John as a souvenir of the historic event.

After a frugal breakfast in the Lateran Palace, adjoining the cathedral, the first meal that a pope has taken outside the vatican in 59 years, he was shown through the long halls of the Missionary Museum, which contains gifts from all over the world.

TARDIEU WINS EASY VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

French Senate Supports Him, 253 to 2, Against Tirade by Millerand.

LOCARNO POLICY IS HIT

Paris, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The senate tonight voted confidence in the government of Premier Andre Tardieu after Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and former President Alexander Millerand had enlivened the proceedings of that generally staid body with an exchange of courteous oratory. The vote was 253 against 2, with 50 senators abstaining.

When M. Millerand expressed doubt of the efficaciousness of the Locarno policy of Briand and challenged the Young plan for reparations, he was met with the retort by the foreign minister, "France will go to The Hague with the fir mhope to have the Young plan adopted, thanks to the complete accord between the allies and Germany. At neither The Hague nor at London will questions of the security of peace and reparations be opposed one to the other."

Millerand had charged: "Your Locarno policy will transform Great Britain and Italy from contracting parties to the treaty into judges."

Briand retorted: "Other men who have negotiated direct with Germany did not return with hands full." He referred to the negotiations conducted by Millerand at Spa.

"The entire French government representing the French people will speak at The Hague and speak in a spirit of conciliation," Briand said in his defense.

Viscount Willingdon Received at Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Viscount Willingdon, governor general of Canada, and Lady Willingdon, arrived here today and were met by Governor Stubbs and a guard of honor. They will stay in Jamaica until the 1st of January and then sail for Bermuda.

Lord Willingdon said that he was impressed by the spirit of empire unity in the West Indies and by the development of trade resulting from the treaty between Canada and the West Indies.

Belgian Royalty to Visit Pope.

Brussels, Dec. 20 (A. P.).—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth will pay an official visit to Pope Pius on the morning of January 7 on the occasion of the wedding of Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

EMILE LOUBET DIES AT 91 YEARS OF AGE

Former French President Served the Republic During Crises.

CALLED PEACE APOSTLE

Montelimar, France, Dec. 20 (A.P.). Emile Loubet, former president of France, died at 9:35 p. m. He was 91 years old. The statesman was conscious to the last, although for hours he had been in such agony that his physicians had said that he could not live long.

At the bedside when death came were his son, Paul; his daughter Mme. De Saint Prix, and his physician, Dr. Albert. Dr. Albert told newspaper men that M. Loubet had suffered from no special disease. "His light was just extinguished by old age," the physician said.

M. Loubet had often been called a symbol of the French bourgeoisie and an apostle of the peace. During the seven years he served as first magistrate of France he was the arbiter of some of the keenest and most acrimonious religious and political dissensions which have shaken the third republic. The Dreyfus affair, the expulsion of the religious congregations, the scandal of Grande Chartereuse, murderous strikes and rupture of diplomatic relations with the Vatican all broke while he was in office.

First Cabinet Dinner Held in Stimson Home

Hoovers Are Guests of Honor at Event in Woodley.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover were the guests in whose honor the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson entertained at dinner last evening. Given at Woodley, home of Secretary and Mrs. Stimson, in which four Presidents have lived at one time or another, this was the first of the annual series of "Cabinet dinners," time honored institutions in Washington.

Customarily the Vice President entertains for the President before the members of his official family, but the dinner arranged by Vice President Curtis for President and Mrs. Hoover was postponed from December 3 to January 7 because of official mourning. And, as Secretary and Mrs. Stimson are leaving so soon for London, it was necessary for their dinner to be given at an early date if they were to have the opportunity to entertain at all for the Chief Executive.

There were but twenty in the company asked to meet the President and Mrs. Hoover. They were the United States Ambassador to Mexico and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, former Secretary of State and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mr. George W. Wickersham, Mr. Arthur W. Page, who is to be Secretary Stimson's special assistant at the London arms conference, and Mrs. Page, of New York; Dr. James R. Angell, president of Yale University, and Mrs. Angell; Dr. and Mrs. Henry Sloane Coffin, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Landon K. Thorne, New York, Miss Candace Stimson, sister of the Secretary; Mr. Bronson Winthrop, New York, and Capt. Eugene Regnier.

After a holiday moratorium, the Cabinet dinners will be resumed. The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, will presumably be the next to entertain for the President and Mrs. Hoover, and the other members of the group will entertain in their order of precedence—based upon the dates when the various executive departments were established.

Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. Jean Henry Large, with Miss Janet Large and Mr. Delano Large, have arrived at the White House to stay over Christmas.

Many Attend Ball Given by Mr. C. Huston

Event for His Daughter Proves Colorful Affair.

One of the season's most brilliant and colorful balls was given last night at the Mayflower by Mr. Claudius H. Huston, for his daughter, Miss Mildred Huston, who ws formally presented to society on Thursday. The guests, numbering nearly 1,000, included contemporaries of the host as well as members of the younger set and many visitors from other cities.

After midnight three acts from Earl Carroll's "Vanities," "imported" from New York for the occasion, were presented for the entertainment of the guests. Poinsettia plants and Christmas greens were seasonable decorations, and multicolored revolving spotlights added a picturesque touch and played strange pranks with the charming gowns of the women guests.

Miss Katherine Huston and Miss Mildred Huston assisted their father as hostesses, although only the debutante received with Mr. Huston. She wore an enchanting gown of pink tulle, the skirt ruffled to the waist. Supper was served at midnight.

Several dinner parties were arranged to precede the ball. Miss Betty Thorpe was hostess at a buffet supper for some 40 guests, who were asked to meet Miss Gertrude Lamont, daughter of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont. Others who took dinner guests to the ball were Miss Jocelyn Hibbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dilworth Hibbard, who entertained for a small group, and Miss Katherine Berry, daughter of Mrs. Georgia Knox Berry.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Seymour Lowman presented their daughter, Miss Katherine Lowman, to Washington society at a tea dance yesterday at the Mayflower.

The debutante was assisted by Miss Junia Culbertson, the Misses Katharine, Alice and Mildred Huston, Miss Marian Jardine, Miss Barber-Nell Thomas, Miss Helen Walker, Senorita Lucia Tessada-Guzman, Miss Mary Martha Wren, Miss Margaret Pilson, Miss Janet Elizabeth Murray, Miss Eunice Lee Evans, Miss Caroline Sanderson, Miss Mary Caroline Henry, Miss Helen Stone, Miss Phyllis Hight and Miss Eleanor Nichols, of Kansas City, Mo.

Minister Lauds Movies As Aid Against Crime

Motion pictures were described as a "powerful deterrent of crime" by Dr. Clinton Wunder, of Rochester, N. Y., formerly pastor of the Baptist Temple there, in an address before the National League of Pen Women last night at its headquarters in Stoneleigh Court.

"Any minister or individual seeking to drive a wedge between the film and the church is assuming a fearful responsibility," he declared. "The invariable message of the motion picture where crime is depicted is 'You can't get away with it.'" The lecture was the second in a series of six sponsored by the league dealing with crime. Dr. Frances Butts, Ph. D., is in charge of the lectures.

'La Tosca' by Puccini on Air Tonight

Never Before Heard Over Radio — Musical Impressions by Damrosch. Hadley Orchestra 9:30. Post News Over WOL.

"La Tosca" will be broadcast tonight at 7 o'clock over WRC and the National Broadcasting Co. network allied with WEAF.

This opera by Giacomo Puccini, founded on the drama by Victorien Sardou, has never been heard on the air.

As with the inaugural and with subsequent performances to be held in the first four months of 1930, tonight's opera will be directed by Gennaro Papi.

The major soloists will be Frances Alda, Mario Chamlee and Pasquale Amato. Their respective roles will be those of Floria Tosca, Mario Cavaradossi and Baron Scarpi. The operalogue, written by Robert Simon, will be read by Alois Havrilla.

"La Tosca," ever since its operatic premiere, nearly three decades ago, has been a favorite alike with audiences, conductors and soloists. Time after time it has been chosen to open the season of the Metropolitan and Chicago companies in the United States as well as the seasons at La Scala, Covent Garden and opera houses in the metropolitan capitals of the world.

"Amos 'n' Andy" will be omitted from WRC'S program, but listeners desiring to hear this feature may pick it up from WJZ direct at 7 o'clock, or from WMAQ, Chicago, at 11:30 o'clock.

"The New Business World," under the direction of Merle Thorp, will be broadcast from the studios of Station WRC at 8 o'clock.

Musical impressions as interpreted by six master composers make up the General Electric Hour which Walter Damrosch and his symphony orchestra will broadcast at 9 o'clock from WRC. Floyd Gibbons, journalist and author, will give another talk on "Adventures in Science." The program follows:

"Norwegian Dance" (Grieg), March Movement from the "Lenore Symphony" (Raff), "Polonaise" (Beethoven), "Impressions d'Italie" (Carpentier, "Dreams," from "Tristan and Isolde" (Wagner), and "The Morning Papers" (Strauss).

The swinging tango melodies of Latin America will contrast sharply with Broadway's favorite for trots in the Lucky Strike program to be heard at 10 o'clock. El Tango Romantico, famous Latin orchestra, will be guest artists of B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra and will play a group of South American favorites.

The Slumber Music program, which will be broadcast by WRC tonight, includes the overture to "Orpheus" (Offenbach), selection from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni), "Dance of the Hours" (Ponchielli), "Morning Journals" (Strauss), prelude to Act II of "Cyrano" (Damrosch), "Loreley" (Nevadba), and "Allerseelen" (Strauss).

A criticism and a defense of the recent intervention by the United States in the Republic of Haiti, viewed in contrast from the social and economic angles, will be heard at 1:45 o'clock from Station WRC.

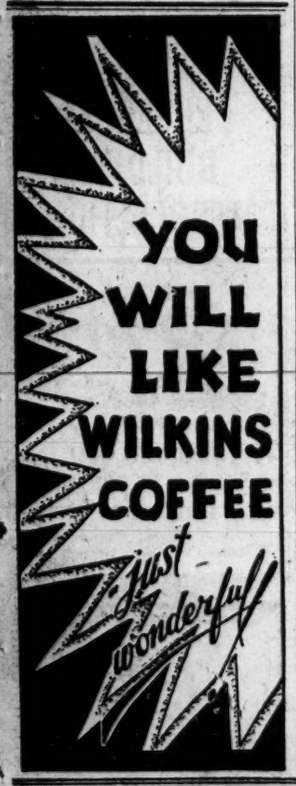
"Citizenship Rights for the Washingtonian" is the subject which Thomas P. Littlepage will discuss from Station WMAL at 6:45 o'clock.

Dr. Henry Hadley and his symphony orchestra will be heard in a half-hour concert at 9:30 o'clock, followed by the Paramount-Publix Radio Hour.

An hour of dance music will close WMAL's day on the air.

"Breakfast Brevities," from The Washington Post, will be on the air via WOL at 8:15 o'clock this morning.

A number of Christmas carols will be sung by the Women's City Club Ensemble from WOL at 7:15 o'clock. Other attractions earlier in the evening are the Walter T. Holt Mandolin and Guitar Club, Marie Howe Spurr and Jeanette Leipsiger, pianist, and an adventure story.



DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

With radio now so closely identified with the entertainment field it seems all the more unusual that Harry C. Butcher, newly selected as the Washington representative of Columbia, should be the third man chosen from the agricultural ranks. The other two were Sam Pickard, former director of radio in the Department of Agriculture, now vice president of Columbia, and F. M. ("Scoop") Russell, for many years chief buffer for the Secretary of Agriculture, now vice president of the National Broadcasting Co., in charge of the Washington offices.

Naturally in the broadcasting field one thinks of either a showman or an electrical technician in an executive capacity, but in so far as Washington is concerned, the farmers seem to have it.

It is taken as a foregone conclusion that Columbia's appointing a representative here and establishing Washington offices and studios means stiffer competition for the N. B. C. and that the gentlemen of the agrarian bloc, employed as they are by rival chains, will watch each other like hawks.

It appears at this writing that the Columbia headquarters, to be opened about January 15, may be located in the new Shoreham Building at Fifteenth and H streets, though the question has not yet been definitely decided.

Broadcasters who have not been able to get better waves from the Radio Commission are waiting expectantly the replacing of Capt. Guy Hill, U. S. A., acting chief engineer of the commission, who was been ordered to the Philippines. Capt. Hill, because he is an Army officer, has been hard for the politicians to reach.

Under the law, which President Hoover has just signed, the chief engineer of the commission is to receive $10,000 a year, the same salary as a commissioner. His is a strategic position, and if he happens to be amenable to political influence he can do much to disturb the broadcast allocations of the country.

This is the final appeal for headphones so that all the boys at the Naval Hospital may enjoy the Christmas programs. There was a generous response to the last plea made in these columns, but there are not yet enough headphones. Loud speakers are not permitted in certain wards, making headphones essential for the use of many patients.

Any one desirous of donating phones can leave them at American Legion Headquarters in the Transportation Building. If an overquota is received, the remaining headphones will be sent to Walter Reed.

Apparently Stokowski and Damrosch are squaring off for an encounter.

"Another of those tempests which always seem to be breaking loose in radio circles followed close on the heels of a statement issued by Walter Damrosch, music adviser of the National Broadcasting Co., in which he took exception to remarks passed by his colleague, Leopold Stokowski, with regard to the quality of N. B. C. transmission," writes Brown E. Bartlett, in the New York Sun.

"The reason for the Damrosch statement remains obscure in view of the fact that Mr. Stokowski will shortly be a guest of the N. B. C. for the purpose of working out with its engineering staff a perfecting of broadcasting symphony music. Friends of Mr. Stokowski yesterday were quick to resent what they felt was an unwarranted attack on the Philadelphia conductor's attitude on radio and his interest in securing the finest results possible in the transmission of symphony music."

Nor is the feeling likely to be any more chummy between these two directors if Columbia should finally be able to get Stokowski away from the N. B. C.

Both chains have been mum on this subject since Columbia recently announced it would broadcast the Philadelphia orchestra concerts next year, but subsequently backed down with a denial.

Baby Mine

What Today Means to You

"SAGITTARIUS."

If today is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger period is from 9 a. m. to 10:45 a. m. and from 8:15 p. m. to 9 p. m.

A difficult time is prognosticated, astrologically, for this date. Opposing factors will make the materialization of plans remote, if not impossible. Changes will be made without much profit. Conditions will be more favorable during the evening hours and many of the clouds of doubt and apprehension will roll away.

The child born on this December 21 will be straightforward and honorable in its character, popular with its friends and sunny in disposition. It will do well through its own merits, and, if a boy, will have great commercial ability.

If you were born on a December 21 you are an extrovert, and you freely express your feelings in words, gestures and actions. You have normal emotions and are only subject to normal, quickly passing moods. You anger rather quickly, but instead of bottling up your feelings of resentment, you voice your sentiments in plain language, and end it then and there. You lead a full, active life and have little time to worry about yourself.

You are not lonely, as you are not afraid to venture forth seeking friendships. You do not sit supine and wait for others to make first advances. You are endowed with a supreme patience and deep knowledge of human character. Flattery is a weapon which you tactfully and successfully use. It is never difficult for you to get others to do things for you; you make them think it is a privilege. You are very generous with your material possessions, but you are not so generous with yourself. You dislike discomforts and being pushed out of your self-made ruts.

You have a brilliant mind, love to read and to associate with intellectual people. You have a keen wit and your friends look upon you as good company. While your foresight is not very good, you profit by experience and do not have to learn a lesson twice.

Successful people born December 21:

1—Albert Payson Terhune, author.
3—Margaret Cameron Lewis, author.
4—Laura D. Bridgman, famous blind deaf-mute.
5—David L. Brainard, arctic explorer.
6—Henry Austin, lawyer.

Dare Interprets the Mode

A lovely and simply made semi-tailored blouse. (A Dahray Design.)

Paris, December 20.

START out to buy a blouse and see how far you can't go with $7.50! That's what La Chic Secretaire did just before we left New York, and muchly discouraged and not having too many $15 to throw around for all the different kinds of blouses she wanted, cast a speculative eye upon a certain blouse I have had a long time and which I wear with my black satin pajamas, sometimes with and sometimes without the jacket.

Hm-m-m-m, she mused, why couldn't she have that copied? Why not, indeed? So she did, but here's where she was a bit smarter than I—because she had it copied in eggshell satin crepe, using the satin part for the bodice and sleeves and crepe for turn-up cuffs and hem and collar.

* * * *

And then she proceeded to tell me that this was the only blouse she had ever seen that could actually be worn for sports wear with a tweed skirt, with a tailored business suit, and with a velvet skirt, yet would make an afternoon frock. And do you know? She was right! I have seen that same blouse evolve itself in just these several ways!

So, in order that you wouldn't miss anything I sketched for you both the back and front of the blouse that accommodates itself so well to several occasions and is made out of just 1¼ yards of material. And you may have it copied if you wish—that's why we sketched it for you.

* * * *

We did better than that, alors! We sat down and made an illustrated leaflet with directions for making this blouse, so clearly and simply given that any one can make it! La Chic Secretaire says a hearty "Yes," because you know she doesn't sew—yes, she made this blouse and very successfully, from our instructions.

Cut out today's illustration, sit down and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for leaflet and treat yourself to a new and really smart blouse!

Christmas Gift Suggestion.

None other than today's blouse! Because you can make it in half an hour, and shopping for the material won't be half bad, since that will be the one department that isn't crowded. Even if you don't have time to sew, turn our leaflet over to a dressmaker and tell her to make you a couple like it—one for your gift to some one else and the other a gift to you from you.

* * * *

Two color combinations are all the vogue. One of the most popular at the moment is that of beige and green, the latter being anything from a bright green to a deep, somber shade. In most cases the body of the garment is made up of the beige, and the green is used for little touches to liven it up. The two go together remarkably well.

Bois de rose (literally rosewood) is again enjoying some little favor, often in combination with brown. For evening wear black is less used, and the bright colors are favored, such as burnt orange and nasturtium, often with tiny touches of black. The off-color white for evening now takes on a pinkish cast, which sounds the death knell of the sunburned complexion.

Those cute kids' gifts! Oh-h-h, what a demand there was for that illustrated leaflet! Being as how there was, we had some more printed—so there are a few more that you may have if you wish to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post.

* * * *

Tomorrow, by all means, and each Sunday you should look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post.

WORK ON BRIDGE

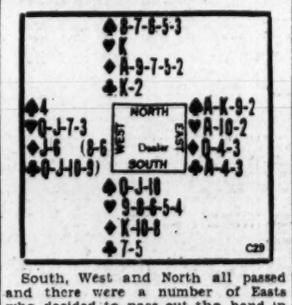
CONTRACT BRIDGE.

How strong must fourth hand be to open the bidding after three passes, rather than pass and throw out the deal? This is a question upon which expert opinion has not agreed.

Of course, fourth hand may be so strong or weak that there is no question what he should do; but in the multitude of deals in which fourth hand has a little more than would be needed for an initial bid, and yet not so much more than the safety of a bid is guaranteed, a trying situation arises.

In Contract, with its more accurate bidding than is necessary in Auction, second hand opens with a little less strength than a dealer would, and with considerably less strength than a third hand would; so fourth hand has less reason than any other player to depend upon a partner who has passed. But the partial score in Contract is so valuable that it pays to take some risk to obtain it, so it is a mistaken policy to rule that fourth hand must pass unless loaded with high cards.

A notable instance occurred in a hand which was played in a November Duplicate tournament. The cards were distributed as follows:



South, West and North all passed and there were a number of Easts who decided to pass out the hand in spite of their No Trump count of 18. Others bid one Spade and passed when West bid two Clubs. But there were others who were followers of the rule that 15 is a sufficient count to justify a bid of one No Trump in the fourth hand position, that 17 with four suits stopped is sufficient to justify bidding two; and who were willing to risk Queen and two others as a stopper. Such Easts bid two No Trumps and this invariably was followed by a bid from West and an eventual game-going three No Trumps or five Clubs. The game was easy at either declaration; at Clubs North and South would take in their two winning Diamonds at the start, and the rest of the tricks would go to East and West. At No Trump some Declarers made a small slam, others four or five odd.

LEADING ISSUES RISE DURING LIVE MARKET

Stocks Turnover Is Largest Since Their Return to Normalcy.

FOREIGN SHARES STEADY

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The bear crowd indulged in its first Christmas party in years on the stock market today, a ceremony in colorful contrast to the bull orgy of last yuletide.

Total sales of 5,532,600 shares were rolled up, the largest turnover since the restoration of normal, five-hour trading sessions. Stocks generally were beaten down 2 to 24 points, a few breaking through the bottom levels reached on November 13, and dozens of leading shares dropping below the resistance points on December 12. Heavy short covering in the final dealings, however, carried leading shares up 1 to 5 points from the day's minimum levels.

The bear movement, which took on an ominous aspect late yesterday, gathered strength during today's session, coming to a climax in the last hour. Trading reached violent proportions in the late trading, more than one-third of the day's turnover changing hands after 2 o'clock. The ticker ran for an hour after the close.

Montgomery Ward Drops.

Rumors of unsatisfactory holiday trade accompanied a break in the merchandising shares around midday, which depressed Montgomery Ward to a new low, and caused considerable nervousness throughout speculative circles.

Furthermore, a tightening of credit was unsettling. Call money again renewed at 4½ per cent, but touched 5 late in the day, for the first time since November 21. Scarcer credit was attributed to the holiday demand for funds, and continued outflow of gold, approximately $12,500,000 leaving on the S. S. Olympic tonight. The Federal Reserve was reported to be alleviating the situation by open market purchases of Government securities.

The weekly trade reviews did not seem to justify apprehensions over holiday trade. Bradstreet's stated, "the general trend, so far as can be measured, is for a total trade little different from that of a year ago in dollar volume." R. G. Dun & Co., said, "the volume of Christmas shopping has been larger, in the main, than had been anticipated in many quarters immediately after the culmination of the severe financial stress." It was generally acknowledged, however, that reports on the Christmas trade are at this date rather inconclusive.

Industrial Activity Declines.

Further evidence of the sharp curtailment of industrial activity in November came to hand. The Annalist preliminary index of business activity for last month dropped to 95.4 from the 103.5 of October, the sharpest decline in the post-war period. According to the Standard Statistics Co. index, the November decline was the sharpest since May, 1924. Uncertainty as to the speed with which business may recover has been responsible for the recent lack of constructive activity on the stock market, after completion of the technical rally from the November lows.

The stock exchange published its loan ratio figures after the close. Total borrowings by members on stock collateral on December 1 was but 6.32 per cent of the market value of all listed shares, a decrease of 3.50 per cent from October 1. For November the value of all listed shares showed a net decline of approximately $8,000,000,000. The drop from the peak of September 1 is approximately $26,000,000,000, reducing the total to $63,500,000,000.

Store Shares Fall.

Montgomery Ward dropped about 11 points to a new low for the year at 42⅝, and closed at 45½. Other shares touching new lows included May Department Stores, Spiegel May Stern, Abraham & Straus, National Bellas Hess preferred, Fox Film A, and International Combustion.

U. S. Steel dropped nearly 10 points to 158, only 8 points above the November low, and closed at 162. General Electric dropped 10 points and rallied 5. Shares closing about 5 to 11 points lower included American Tobacco B, American Water Works, J. I. Case, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Johns Manville, Macy, Sears Roebuck Simmons, Western Union, and Woolworth. Columbian Carbon dropped 24 points and rallied 3.

Commodities were also heavy. Wheat futures dropped about 3 cents in anticipation of a bearish winter crop report, and corn lost about a cent. Cotton lost 65 to 80 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges held steady, with strength of the French franc a notable feature.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Slight opening advances were followed by declines in cotton today under liquidation which appeared to be combined with a little Southern and local selling promoted by weakness in the grain and stock markets. Nearly all active months made new low ground for the season, with January selling at 16.73, or 18 points below the closing price of yesterday and about 3 cents below the high price of last September. January closed at 16.77, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 13 to 16 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points, with the more active months selling about 2 or 3 points during the early trading on covering and some trade buying. The demand was encouraged by reports of rallies from an early decline in Liverpool and continued talk of a reduction in Indian crop prospects, but the buying was in comparatively small volume and the market soon turned easier.

The census report, showing 13,461,630 bales ginned prior to December 13 against 13,144,333 last year, appeared to be about in line with expectations, but there was a little Southern selling here and after the initial demand had been supplied prices turned easier. A few stop orders were uncovered on the declines which followed and which extended to 16.73 for December, 17.05 for March and 17.29 for May in the late trading, or about 15 to 18 points net lower.

Closing quotations were a few points up from the lowest on trade buying and covering.

Liquidation of January contracts in anticipation of notices next week was considerably in evidence during the day, and there was a good deal of switching from near to late months. At times January showed relative weakness, but closing prices showed comparatively little change in differences between months.

Cable advices from Liverpool said there had been hedging and liquidation in that market early but that prices had steadied later on covering. Locally trade demand was reported more active around 17.30 for May and was referred to as a steadying factor in the late trading.

Exports today, 41,941, making 3,984,002 so far this season. Port receipts, 39,389. United States port stocks, 2,639,348.

BONDS' PRICES EASE IN INACTIVE MARKET

Currency Demands Feature Day's Business; Rails Lose Fractionally.

U. S. SHARES ARE FIRM

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Prices eased in a dull bond market today. Heavy demands for currency and the shipment of $12,500,000 in gold to France brought firmer money rates, although the effect of the gold withdrawal was reported to have been offset by Federal Reserve Bank purchases of Government securities, which were firm.

The sharp break in stocks during the final hour sent the convertibles skidding and net losses ran from 1 to 4 points. American Telephone 4½s, which after January 1 can be converted on the basis of one $100 bond plus $80 in cash for one share of stock, dropped to 132 and then rallied a point for a net decline of 4. Turnover was large in the final hour. Other debentures in this group affected by the general softness were American I. G. Chemical 5½s, Atchison 4½, Allegheny 5s, International Telephone 4½s and New Haven 6s.

Carriers Lack Support.

For the first time in a week the first-grade rails failed to get support and sold off in minor fractions. United States Governments were firm. Secondary rails, industrials and utilities sagged. Trading in all the domestic groups, however, was thin, and the market manifested the usual preholiday apathy which was increased by 5 per cent rates for both time and call loans. The weakness of stocks was accompanied by minor liquidation of speculative bond holdings.

The foreign list was active for an otherwise quiet session and offerings of leading European government loans found ready absorption at slightly higher levels. Argentine 6s added to their Thursday gains and at the close had virtually recovered their recent losses, but Brazilian, Colombian and several municipal and provincial Latin-American loans were heavy.

Utilities Lose Slightly.

Softening of the utilities brought losses of about a point in Louisville Gas & Electric 5s, New Orleans Public Service 5s and New York Telephone 6s. Among the industrials U. S. Rubber 5s, Lorillard 5s, B. F. Goodrich 6s, Goodyear 5s and a few others sagged fractionally. Foreign sugars weakened.

Columbian Carbon broke $24 a share and rallied $3. American Machine & Foundry fell $19, Brooklyn Union Gas $17.75, Pere Marquette $16, Simmons $11.25, J. I. Case $10 and a flock of others, including Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, American Tobacco B, American Water Works, Chesapeake & Ohio, International Business Machines, R. H. Macy, Reading, Sears Roebuck, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Union Carbide, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Woolworth, lost $5 a share or more.

Curb Review

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The selling movement on the New York Curb Exchange, which has been under way for a fortnight, gathered increased momentum today, carrying most of the active issues down 1 to 7 points, and a sprinkling of specialties 10 to 75 points, with at least a score stocks pushed to new low ground for the year.

While "bear" attacks accounted for much of the day's selling, it also was apparent that steady liquidation of investment and speculative holdings was taking place as a result of the disappointing action of the market and business in general.

Public utilities melted rather rapidly under pressure of a large volume of offerings. Electric Bond & Share fell nearly 6 points to 73⅜ and rebounded to 75¼. Cities Service sank 2¼ points to 23, and made only a feeble recovery. The stock sold as low as 20 in the November break and as high as 68⅛ a few weeks before. Standard Power & Light dropped 8 points, American & Foreign Power warrants 7¾, and a flock of others sagged 1 to 3 points.

Publication of an unofficial summary of the Interstate Commerce Commission's revised railroad consolidation plan probably accounted for the drop in Pennroad to a new low level for the year, as rairoads, stocks of which it holds, are allocated to systems other than the Pennsylvania. Fox Theaters finaly broke through its previous resistance price of $6 a share when another open break developed in Fox Film on the big board.

Some of the active oils broke rather sharply, though the late recovery cut down some of the losses. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania closed 5 points lower, Solar Refining dropped 5½, and Standard Oil of Indiana, Vacuum and several others declined a point or more. The Galena Signal (old) preferred moved to new highlevel for the year on the announcement that more than 93 per cent of that issue and more than 88 per cent of the common have been deposited under the reorganization plan.

Investment Trust, trading and holding company shares, also presented several points of weakness, Interstate Equities sinking to a new low, while several others dropped 1 to 3 points, some of them to within a few points of last month's bottom prices.

Among the inactive specialties, Safeway Stores second warrants dropped 75 points, Deere & Co., 45; Continental Securities, 36; Aluminum Limited, 25, and Neisner Bros. preferred, 17. New low records for the year were established by American Book, American Cigar Manufacturing, Butler Bros., De Forrest Radio, Guardian Fire Insurance, Metropolitan Chain Stores, Miller & Sons, Otis Elevator (new) and Utilities Power.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Wheat went hand in hand with the stock market today in descending to price levels not reached heretofore since November. Dearth of overseas demand for North American wheat except on pronounced setbacks in values was largely responsible together with correct forecasts that official figures this afternoon regarding domestic winter wheat acreage would show a material increase.

Much interest was shown in the fact that on today's breaks the price of December delivery of wheat here and elsewhere tumbled down to below the Federal Farm Board's basis for loans on wheat.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at nearly the bottom point reached, 2⅝ to 3⅛ below yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛ to ⅞ and 1 cent down; oats varying from ⅜ decline to a shade advance and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20 cents.

Notwithstanding that the wheat market today acted in more or less disregard of the Federal Farm Board's standard of wheat values, bids were posted here after the close of business offering to pay the Farm Board's full price of $1.18 a bushel for No. 1 hard winter wheat 20-day shipment. The bids were made by the rural grain company, a subsidiary of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation and were generally taken to indicate that the Farm Board in upholding wheat prices was ready to go further than merely making loans and that notwithstanding adverse market fluctuations would back up actual purchases of wheat at the scale of values which the board has heretofore steadfastly maintained as a loan basis. This emphasis on the board's stand came too late to affect future delivery prices today, but served to focus attention on possible market results tomorrow and later on.

General selling of wheat future deliveries forced the market downward today to about 17 cents a bushel under recent top figures and was largely associated with the circumstances that no wheat exports of consequence either from the Gulf of Mexico or Atlantic seaboard had been announced during the last three days. Export purchases of 1,000,000 bushels of North American wheat today came after the market had undergone decided setbacks in price, but had only a transient effect as a rallying influence.

Washington messages quoting President Legge of the Federal Farm Board as saying that representatives of the organization are now abroad preparing market outlets were likewise of only temporary effect, and so, too, were continued unfavorable harvest advices from Argentina, as well as messages received from various points telling of better demand from domestic mills. The Government report after the close showed 870,000 acres increase of domestic winter wheat area for the 1930 crop and that the condition of this wheat is 1.4 per cent above a ten-year average.

Corn and oats sagged owing to sympathy with wheat weakness.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

In making inquiries, address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self - addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Securities Are Worthless.

J. S. D.—I am inclosing a list of securities which were found among the effects of my sister-in-law, who recently died. Although they probably have little or no value, your opinion in the matter of disposal, whether there is a market for them and to whom I should apply will be greatly appreciated. It will be necessary to settle this estate in about six months' time, and it is desired to give the securities whatever consideration they deserve.

Answer—Unfortunately, the securities on which you seek information as to their value and marketability are worthless. The L. R. Steel Co. went out of business some years ago and at a great loss to people who invested in the enterprises.

American Re-Insurance Co.

L. F.—Would you consider the stock of the American Re-Insurance Co. a good investment? If this stock does not appeal to you, would like to have you suggest some other issue at about the same price for which I could exchange my holdings.

Answer—Adjusting the balance sheet of American Re-Insurance Co. of September 30, 1929, to include $1,500,000 of new funds, and valuing investments at their market value as of November 15, the liquidating value of the company is equivalent to approximately $67 a share on 100,000 shares of capital stock now outstanding. At current prices the stock is selling slightly below its liquidating value. Dividends are at the annual rate of $3 a share, which are amply covered by current earnings. The issue would appear to be selling below its real worth, and therefore can be regarded as attractive as a conservative investment. There seems to be no reason why you should sell this stock for the purpose of investing in some other issue. Long-term holding should be profitable.

Bulova Watch Co.

W. F.—I have noticed considerable advertising for the Bulova Watch Co. and inasmuch as I have learned that the stock has recently been placed on the New York Stock Exchange, would like to have your opinion as to its merits as an investment to be held for a year or two.

Answer—The progress of the Bulova Watch Co. in the last three years has been particularly impressive, the company having gone ahead considerably faster than the industry as a whole. At present market levels, Bulova common stock is selling for approximately only six times the earnings expected for 1929 which are estimated at better than $5 per common share for the year. The issue is on a $3 annual dividend basis, which would appear secure, due to excellent present earnings. Under the circumstances, the issue may be favorably regarded for long-term holding.

Davison and Virginia Carolina.

T. L. B.—It would seem to me that the Federal Farm Loan Plan should place the farmer in a stronger position and eventually reflect increased business for the fertilizer companies, therefore, would appreciate your opinion on Davison Chemical Co. and Virginia Carolina Chemical Co.

Answer—The Federal Farm Loan Plan, while as yet untried, should augment the credit of the agriculturalist and thus aid the placing of orders with the supliers of farm merchandise. Davison Chemical reported impressive results for 1929 and a successful year of operations is reflected in the annual report covering the 12 months ended June 30, 1929, for which period earnings were equivalent to $3.34 on the capital stock. With a much brighter outlook for the industry during the coming year and with present earnings running ahead of the same period last year, it is officially estimated that the next annual report will show earnings far in excess of those reported this year. Therefore, stock of the Davison Chemical Co. as a long-term speculative investment is quite attractive. Present outlook for business for the Virginia Carolina Chemical Co. is somewhat improved. However, the company does not appear to be in the same strong position as Davison Chemical and the participating preferred and common issues of the company involve a speculative risk to be avoided by conservative investors.

McKeesport Tin Plate Co.

F. B.—Would like to have your opinion on McKeesport Tin Plate Co. as an investment. What do you think the possibilities are for an advance in price?

Answer—McKeesport Tin Plate Co. manufactures coke tin used largely in canning and lithographic work. The company reported net income for nine months ended September 30, 1929, of $1,763,400, or $5.88 per share. Net for the third quarter was equivalent to $2.26 per share. Earnings for the full year are estimated at approximately $8 per common share. Present $4 annual dividend basis was inaugurated April 1, 1928, and an extra dividend of 50 cents in cash was recently declared. Profits have shown steady growth in recent years and this year's earnings will establish a new high mark since the war period.

It is officially estimated that 80 per cent of the amount of this year's business has already been booked for 1930. Present dividend requirements are amply covered by earnings and while this column does not attempt to predict at what price any issue might sell at any given time, McKeesport Tin Plate, due to present earnings and future prospects, appears most attractive at current price levels.

Has $15,000 to Invest.

D. B. S.—I would like your advice as to the investing of $15,000 in common stocks with a view to safety, yield and appreciation over a period for permanent investment.

Answer—You no doubt realize that for maximum safety of principal high grade bonds and seasoned preferred stocks are the best media for investment. However, you have asked for common stocks and a list of several seasoned issues, well regarded in conservative financial circles is submitted: American Smelting & Refining, Anaconda Copper, Bethlehem Steel, Corn Products Refining, Baltimore & Ohio, Gillett Safety Razor, Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Checker Cab Manufacturing Corporation. Diversify your investments; don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Ludlum Steel.

A. G.—I will be glad to receive any information you can give regarding Ludlum Steel.

Answer—Dependence on automotive demand will probably prevent any rapid return of the common stock to past high levels. At current prices, however, the stock is not unattractive for eventual realization on new alloys currently being developed. Earnings this year are estimated at about three times the current dividend.

U.S. OFFICIAL URGES EXPANSION OF BANKS

Institutions Here Are Able to Branch Out, Says Comptroller.

FINANCIAL DATA GIVEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

National banks of the District of Columbia, which under present regulations can establish branches only within the District line, could place them in Maryland and Virginia or broader "trade areas" in the Fifth Federal Reserve District should suggestions of Comptroller of the Currency J. W. Pole in his annual report, made public today, become law.

Stating that in nine years about 5,000 banks, nearly all in agricultural communities, have closed, tying up deposits of approximately $1,500,000,000, he declares the economic movement away from many independent local utility and industrial units toward a stronger and more centralized form of operation in large cities has curtailed opportunities of country banks for diversity and extension, while broadening them for large city banks.

Asserting that due to the Federal Reserve system no general financial panics have occurred since the war, Mr. Pole reminds that while any bank has access to the system's benefits, the decline of country banks has taken place notwithstanding its assistance; that a Federal Reserve bank is not charged with the responsibility of preventing bank failures, and it is beyond the system's or any governmental agency's power to stand between these banks and insolvency.

Says New System Advisable.

While the holding company movement has been inaugurated to cope with the situation, he explains it is attempting this under existing laws crudely adapted to the purpose and new legislation simplifying the process is advisable.

Such conditions, he believes, seem to warrant legislation permitting national banks with the Comptroller of the Currency's approval to establish branches within trade areas of cities where they are situated, such being in some cases coextensive with Federal Reserve district lines; in others, of more limited extent, but never extending beyond Federal Reserve district boundaries save in cases where a trade area from one district might enter another. Banks, however, Mr. Pole suggests, should not be permitted to establish branches in another city where Federal Reserve bank or its branch exists.

Rural Banks Would Be Sound.

Under such an arrangement, he thinks there would gradually be extended to agricultural communities from large city banks a safe and sound system of banking rendering remote the possibility of failures. There would, he points out, be no compulsion on unit banks to enter branch organizations and the two systems, unit and branch banking, would no doubt operate side by side for an indefinite period. There would be in every rural section, well organized, competently managed unit banks continuing to operate advantageously.

These suggestions, Mr. Pole states, are made not primarily to deal with the decline in number of national banks through defection from national to State systems, but rather as a remedy for what appears a serious and fundamental weakness in both systems.

Listing 127 large national banks giving up charters to operate as State banks in the past ten years, declaring State legislatures have given State banks operating advantages which national banks did not possess, he says legislation giving a real advantage to the national charter would be justified under conditions seriously jeopardizing maintenance of the national banking system.

Recommendations for District Banks.

Comptroller General Pole renews previous recommendations that the following laws be enacted for the District of Columbia:

1. Giving the comptroller the right and power to make regulations governing savings banks or trust companies doing a banking business in the District, with a penal provision for enforcement of such, regulations being limited so that they shall not in any case place restrictions upon such banks which are not placed upon national banks.

2. Prohibiting the use of the words "bank" or "trust company" by any firm, copartnership, company or corporation doing business in the District and not doing a banking or fiduciary business under the supervision of the comptroller, and providing, in the event such title shall be used by them, it shall be subject to his approval.

3. Prohibiting corporations with their principal places of business outside the District from establishing offices in the District, and doing a fiduciary business without permission of the comptroller, and without complying with general conditions of corporation laws of the District for the protection of those who do business with corporations with their principal place of business in the District.

While the building and loan associations in the District are examined and supervised by the comptroller, he reminds there is no provision of law which prohibits any such from organizing and doing business in the District, regardless of its merits. He recommends a law be passed which would prohibit any building and loan association from doing business or maintaining an office in the District without first secuirng the approval of the comptroller. Any violation shall constitute a penal offense and be punishable in the same manner as now provided by the act of April 26, 1922, regulating corporations doing a banking business in the District.

$72,000,000,000 Bank Resources.

The aggregate of all the banking resources in the United States, the report states, is about $72,000,000,000, held by a little more than 25,000 banks (as of June 29, 1929), but 250 banks hold resources to the aggregate amount of aproximately $33,400,000,000.

The resources of the 22 building and loan associations operating in the District of Columbia under the supervision of the comptroller June 30, 1929, totaled $65,964,000 and exceeded by $6,109,000 the resources of a like number of associations on June 30 a year ago. The loans, which aggregated $63,566,000, showed an increase in the year of $6,061,000. Installment payments on shares increased also from $53,738,000 to $58,916,000.

Fifteen of the associations operated on the permanent plan, six on the serial plan, and one on the terminating plan. The total membership was 71,205, as compared to 66,219 members a year ago, and of the total in the current year the numbers borrowing and nonborrowing were 19,428 and 51,777, respectively.

One of the highest honors for a banker is again conferred on President John Poole of the Federal-American National Bank, who has been selected to represent the Fifth Federal Reserve District on the Federal Advisory Council to the Federal Reserve Board for the term ending December 31, 1930.

The Federal Advisory Council is composed of twelve men, each representing one of the twelve Federal Reserve districts. Mr. Poole represents the Fifth Federal Reserve District, made up of Maryland, Virginia, the District of Columbia, part of West Virginia, North and South Carolina. The council acts in an advisory capacity to the Federal Reserve Board and holds four regular meetings each year.

American Security Dividend.

At the latest meeting of the board of directors, of the American Security & Trust Co., the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, with an extra dividend of 2 per cent on the stock of the company, was declared payable on January 10, 1930, to the stockholders of record December 31, 1929.

Columbia National Bank announces the regular quarterly dividend of $3 per share, to stockholders of record December 31, 1929, payable January 2, 1930.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of Security Storage Co., the regular dividend of $1.25 per share was voted payable January 10, 1930, to the stockholders of record January 7, 1930, both dates inclusive. An extra dividend of $1.50 per share was also voted payable December 30, 1929, to the stockholders of record at the close of business December 26, 1929, both dates inclusive.

The board of directors of Liberty National Bank yesterday declared a dividend of $3.50 per share out of the earnings of the bank for the six months ending December 31, 1929, payable December 31, 1929, to stockholders of record December 23. The books are not to be closed.

1,000 MEN CONQUER FIRE IN LOS ANGELES

ZOO'S DIN ADDS TO PANIC

Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—A brush fire raging over the dry hillsides of beautiful Griffith Park, on the edge of the city, before a 30-mile-an-hour wind, threw residents of the exclusive Los Feliz District into a panic today, burned one home, and was battled to a standstill by a thousand men after five hours of frantic effort.

In the confusion attending the blaze five men were injured, one probably fatally, in traffic accidents as all available fire apparatus in the city was speeded to the scene of a five-alarm call.

A zoo in the southwestern corner of the park narrowly escaped damage when a timely change in wind swung the flames away from their initial course toward the reserve.

Los Angeles Under Pall.

The yellow clouds of smoke, billowing from the mile-long fire front, spread a pall over Los Angeles and Hollywood.

The blaze originated from an undetermined cause at the end of Nottingham avenue, on a knoll in the park. The brush, rendered tinder-like by the lack of rains, provided an extremely dangerous situation, and at one time residents in the adjoining Los Feliz District were ordered to evacuate their homes.

The house destroyed was located farther back in the park than the other homes, which were saved by the efforts of their owners and the firemen who poured constant streams of water from garden hose about the grounds.

Animals Add to Din.

As city and county fire chiefs shifted their forces constantly to meet each advancing line of flames, the wild screams of frightened animals in the zoo rose above the roar of the blaze, which flared up in spots to a height of nearly 50 feet.

Late today the principal danger had passed, although sections of the hillsides still were ablaze.

The men injured are J. G. Dollar, believed fatally hurst; J. S. Montoya, J. H. Calvin and G. E. Davis, all park employes whose car overturned as they sped to the blaze. The fifth man is M. J. Lakey, a fireman who was run over by an automobile.

The park is located between Los Angeles and Glendale. It comprises 2,751 acres and contains golf links, tennis courts, swimming pools, a zoo, horse stables, bridle paths and picnic grounds.

Two Parachutes Fail To Open; Officer Dies

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Lieut. Elmer R. Miller, of Dodd Field, Fort Sam Houston, was killed today when his parachute failed to open on a jump from a plane at an altitude of 2,500 feet.

The plane, piloted by Lieut. Leroy Hudson, had circled over the field for the jump. The officer wore two parachutes. The rip cord on his regulation chute had been partially pulled. He pulled the cord of the emergency parachute just before striking the ground.

The bag company building adjoins the warehouse in Plymouth street. The bandits carried the liquor out through the Feitel offices and placed it in trucks. Willliam Guthrie, the bag company watchman, said there were a dozen men in the gang.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

TODAY and tomorrow are the "shortest days" of the year on this continent. The sunlight lasts not quite nine hours and a quarter. But Monday there will be a slight gain, and Tuesday will be a minute longer than Sunday.

The daylight will keep on growing at a faster rate as the months go by, until the days in late June, which will have more than 15 hours of sunlight.

We know that this will happen because it has been happening in the time gone by. Of course something might happen to change it, but that is not likely during our lifetime.

The feast of Christmas is coming soon, and it will arrive just after the days have begun to grow longer. That will be a gift for all of us, even if Santa Claus should forget to fill our stockings.

As you know, Santa must be given a good deal of help when it comes to filling stockings.

If you have not bought all the presents for your friends, give a thought to books. They make excellent gifts if you choose them to fit the tastes and needs of those to whom you give them.

When you buy a book to give away, ask yourself some questions. Does he like to read history? There are many fine books of history. Maybe the chief interest of the person is science or history or travel—you will have many books of this kind to choose from.

Boys and girls, as well as older folks, like books of science, history and travel—provided the books are well written and have pictures. When you buy such books, try to choose an author who is careful in the way he writes, so that what is read may be true.

Among the fine story books for boys and girls are "Hans Brinker, or the Silver Skates," a story of Holland; "Heidi," a story of Switzerland; "Ruggles of Red Gap;" "Little Men," "Little Women," and "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Mark Twain's famous books, "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" are good, and everyone ought to read the story of "David Copperfield," by Dickens.

An excellent book for older folks is "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." It is filled with laughs. Students just finishing high school, or in the university, may well read "Les Miserables," by Victor Hugo.

Maybe these ideas will help you if you are going to buy someone a book for Christmas.

Wives of Tomorrow

"Rights"

MARY, who is 38, wants to know about her rights. For some reason this vital matter never worried Mary before. She has been married nine years and has been existing in the sort of daze that enwraps about 80 per cent of all women who have been married nine years.

Now for some reason Mary is coming out of her daze. She is beginning to notice things, different things about her husband, and things like that. And she wants to know just what her rights are. And after reading Mary's letter we just wonder what are the rights of all these Marys who go to sleep for nine or ten years and wake up suddenly and start yelling for their rights. Has Mary any rights vested in the husband she describes that would not be amply covered by a friendly farewell and a first-class recommendation as a competent housekeeper?

"I am 38 years old, married nine years, and would like to know how I can make my husband recognize my rights, if a wife has any rights. I gave up a splendid position to marry. And I married to make a home. This I have done competently. Even he admits this. But assures me that 'there's more than that to being married.'

"We have one child, a perfect child in every respect, aged six years. He discusses the child as if she lived up the street somewhere. Says she is unnatural, overopinionated and spoiled. I look at him and wonder how I came to marry such a person. He has ordered me to stop teaching the child, and insists she be dressed like a janitor's child and put out to play with children 4 years old. This bores her and I sympathize with her. She is not very fond of her father anyway and this situation does not help any. She is not demonstrative and so seldom approaches him voluntarily. This he claims is unchildlike. I claim in her it is normal, as I am very undemonstrative and she is like me.

"He is just the reverse. He makes great-to-do over children and acts rather foolish with them. I never talk down to a child as I think it insults the child's intelligence. To this his reply is 'holy mackerel,' or something similarly characteristic.

"Now this is my child and I intend to rear her as I think right. He even threatens to move to the country. This infuriates me and he knows it.

"For over nine years our relations have been perfectly pleasant, although never enthusiastic. I am, as I have said, not emotional and he has seemed perfectly content. Now this controversy has started and in addition I have heard of certain outside interests of his, which, while they do not disturb me in the slightest, are still a bit extraordinary for a man with a wife and child. One woman in particular has considerable to do with his ideas on child training. She is a widow whose child is a savage, hanging on people's necks and demanding pennies. The mother is above any intrigue with my husband, but monopolizes considerable of his spare time.

"Now his personal behavior does not interest me, except that I happen to be his wife. I do not want my child a savage. Nor do I want my husband to spend his leisure hours with another woman, and his affections upon another child while he criticizes his own.

"Just what are my rights?"

MARY.

Well, what are these things we call "rights?" Mary seems to be getting about what she set out to get. She has a home, a legal husband and a child. If she has not the companionship of a man, the key to his heart or the least conception of what goes on behind his eyes, is that his fault or hers. What rights of Mary's have been infringed upon? And by the way has the poor little 6-year-old any rights? Why is it our sympathy goes to the man and the child, each so bereft of rights?

Lad on Tail of Airplane Flies for Seven Miles

Camden, N. J., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—A 17-year-old farmer's boy had a terrifying 7-mile ride from the tail of an airplane today.

The lad, William Coumbe, with other farm hands, was asked by Don Darby, a Curtiss-Wright flying pilot, to hold down the tail of his machine while he warmed up the engine. William readily assented.

When the motor was ready Darby signaled to the volunteers to let go. Young Coumbe did not hear the warning and soon found himself clinging to the tail unit. Unaware of his passenger, the pilot flew his craft for the 7 miles between Moorestown and Camden at an altitude of 1,500 feet. As the plane leveled to make the landing the boy jumped and rolled over several times. He was taken to a hospital, where it was said he suffered only a shake-up.

PROPOSALS

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, Bureau of Public Roads, Washington, D. C., December 18, 1929. SEALED BIDS, subject to the conditions contained herein, will be received until 11 o'clock a. m., January 23, 1930, and then publicly opened, for furnishing all labor and materials and performing all work for Unit II of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway. Unit II begins on Columbia Island, in the Potomac River, at a point approximately 1,300 feet south of the center line of the Arlington Memorial Bridge Plaza and extends to the entrance gates of Mount Vernon, being located partly in the District of Columbia, partly in Alexandria, Va., and partly in Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va. Unit II consists of the grading, drainage and incidental construction for the highway as detailed hereinafter. Alternate bids will be received for vitrified clay pipe in place of concrete culvert pipe for all of the several sizes listed. No distinction between these kinds will be recognized; the total cost of the alternate selected or, if bids are tendered upon both, the lower total cost will be used in computing the total bid. The award will be upon the basis of one kind only. The right is reserved to let the work as a single contract, including the item, "Special Borrow," or to award the item, "Special Borrow," as a separate, independent contract to the same or other bidders, as may appear to the best interest of the Government. If the "Special Borrow" is awarded as a separate, independent contract, the date of execution of the contract, beginning of work and of completion of the work shall be as hereinafter provided for the entire work, but for such independent contract the amount of liquidated damages for failure to complete the work within 400 calendar days will be $50.00 for each calendar day of delay until the work is completed and accepted. In the event the item, "Special Borrow," is awarded as a separate, independent contract, the amount of liquidated damages for failure to complete within 400 calendar days, the remainder of the work awarded to contract will be $200.00 for each calendar day of delay until the work is completed and accepted. Bidders must submit with their bids a plan and equipment questionnaire showing in complete detail the proposed manner of handling the contract, the organization of forces, the equipment and equipment layout, camp set-ups and other pertinent information. BILL CARRIGAN RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF RED SOX

SCOTT'S SWOON BLOT ON ART OF DIVING

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—Mr. Fat Meade, the manager of Dangerour Dan Daly, who was rendered very innocuous by Arthur, the late Great Shires, in the maiden pugilistic success of the Chicago first baseman has written your correspondent an indignant letter, complaining that an injustice has been done his fine old plunger, Diving Dan O'Dowd. In commenting on Mr. Meade's nimble dexterity in dashing up the steps to the ring and fielding Dangerous Dan Daly on the first bounce, your correspondent related that he had learned to do this in the days when he was touring the country as the manager of Diving Daniel. A comparison was made between Diving Dan O'Dowd and Painting Phil Scott, the flying fish of the dry tanks, and Mr. Meade sends an emphatic artistic protest against any attempt to couple Diving Dan with the Flying Fish, even for purposes of comparison.

"Sir," Mr. Meade begins, "I am writing to you to offer you a chance to retract and apologize for your recent libelous remarks about Dan O'Dowd, that gallant old dry diver with whom I used to make the local stops along the Katy, the Cotton Belt route, and the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley.

Injustice Worked on Master Artist.

In this article you worked an injustice to a master artist whose like has not been sene in my lifetime, and certainly not be seen in your lifetime, as you are ful of poison and I expect to read where you have stuck yourself with your own stinger any day. However, I have my pride to think of and I must not degrade myself to the point of abusing you, so it will suffice for me to say that you are not only poisonous but quite ignorant of the art and technique of dry diving.

"I have seen all the great dry whales of the last 20 years, including Joey Beckett in his master performance with Georges Carpentier, when he introduced the backward corkscrew dive, Al Reich, Quintin Romero-Rojas, Tumbling Tom Cowler, Sailor Martin and Old Smackover, himself, Fred Fulton whom I regard as having been in certain respects an original genius of the art, although a slave to his own peculiar specialty, that curiuos skidding movement, executed on the point of his chin, and therefore not comparable to Dan O'Dowd, who was a many-sided artist.

Decries Corkscrew Dive of Beckett.

"Most of these celebrated tankers were partial to some one style of plunge. The corkscrew originated by Joey Beckett was mere trumpery, a cheap and tawdry novelty conceived by him for the special honor of the Prince of Wales that evening when Joey met Carpentier. You will notice that it has been rejected by the more conservative and ethical vat workers as being contrary to the established canons of dry diving. But aside from this, Joey was really a consummate master of the backward dive, and the only criticism I would have to make of his work was that he dwelt on this to the exclusion of all other graceful figures of the plunge. He was like an artist who can draw nothing but beautiful profiles, and so were the majority of the others, each in his favorite movement.

"Perhaps you will recall Al Reich, although, to judge from the uniformed tenor of your remarks on the subject, I am tempted by the opinion that you have never actually seen the work of any of the real masters, but have been listening to the reminiscences of Dumb Daniel Morgan, and are pretending to acknowledge a background which you do not possess, like a critic of literature who has familiarized himself with the classics by reading capsuled synopses of the same.

Rojas Rather Crude in Earlier Dives.

"At any rate, Al Reich was without peer in the execution of the swan dive, taking off with a light, soaring motion, with his arms outstretched, his knees and ankles together, and Romero Rojas was rather crude in his earlier exhibitions at the Od Garden, and if you saw him only in those days, and did not see him in such places as Newport, Ky.; High Point, N. C., or Tucson, Ariz., you did not see Quintin at all.

"In fact one does not see good vat

Threat of Injunction Cause; Horsemen May Run Races.

Miami Officials Say Hialeah Will Opperate as Planned.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 20 (A. P.)—Directors of the Florida Jockey Club, operators of Keeney Park track, near here, met in secret today while a race card was being run off and decided to close down the plant for the duration of the present 27-day meet, and until such time as pari-mutuel betting may be legalized in Florida.

The meet was opened last Saturday, and since that time has been under constant threat of injunctive court action.

Announcement of the decision to suspend racing, made in a statement issued by Frank A. Keeney, president of the club, said the action was due to such court actions "contemplated by Fred O. Elberhardt and other reformers who see in racing not the clean sport that it is, but a violation of State statutes relative to gambling."

Closing of the track will remain in effect, the statement continued, "until such time as the fair-minded citizens of Florida shall insist that their legislators pass laws legalizing the pari-mutuel system of betting."

Horsemen May Run Track.

W. E. Ford, vice president of the club, announced that a number of horsemen would meet tonight to consider the possibility of taking over the plant and reopening within a few days. Several hundred horses are in the track stables.

The envelope system of batting has been in open evidence throughout the week the track has operated. Elberhardt, a Tallahassee publisher, had announced he would file injunction proceedings tomorrow at St. Augustine against the race meet as a "nuisance."

That the closing of Keeney Park would have no effect on other race meets planned for Florida this winter was indicated in announcement by Maj. Barclay H. Warburton, president of the Miami Jockey Club which operated the track in Hialeah near Miami, that plans for a 4-day meet there beginning January 16 would go through, and continuation of preparations at Pompano, near Fort Lauderdale, for a two weeks meet beginning Christmas day.

Intend to Use Charter.

Promoters of the Pompano project were unavailable for comment, but Maj. Warburton at Palm Beach was most emphatic.

"Why should we close," he asked. "We have a charter to operate in Florida and we shall cretainly use it."

The Hialeah track recently was bought by Easern interests headed by James H. Carstairs, of Philadelphia, and Maj. Warburton. Joseph E Widener recently acquired an interest. It was announced by those interests that the track would be operated in strict conformity with Florida anti-gambling laws.

Reservations for more than 1,800 horses already have been made at Hialeah.

Maj. Warburton would make no comment on prospective court action against the Miami Jockey Club by Eberhardt.

EMANUEL GAINS DECISION.

Boston, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles heavyweight barrister, gained a 10-round decision over Jack Gagnon, Boston battler, here tonight in the Boston Garden's feature contest. The victor was off to a poor start, taking terrific body punishment in the second, but his boxing skill accounted for most of the other rounds. The Californian yielded seven pounds to Gagnon, who scaled 190½.

G. W. BEATEN AFTER SLOW START

Baltimore U. Quintet Gains Early Lead in 26-18 Victory.

THE first four minutes of play cost George Washington University its first basket ball defeat of the season last night, when a Baltimore University Five scored enough points within that time to give it an advantage which the Colonials were unable to overcome.

Although the home team recovered after this unforunate start to match their opponent point for point during the remainder of the evening, the Baltimoreans left the H street gym with a 26-18 victory.

With Capt. Elliott and Chandler finding the cords for a pair of field goals each, the visitors had run up a 9-to-0 lead before Capt. Bob Gray gave G. W. its first marker from the foul line. After Chandler had added another goal for the visitors, Perry, Castell and Gray again scored for the Buff and Blue, although only the first named was able to tally from the floor. The trio of counters boosted G. W. total to 5, leaving it on the short end of a 11-5 count as it left the floor at half time.

Approach No Nearer Than Six Points.

But flashing a burst of speed directly after intermission, the Colonials kept step with their scarlet-clad guests and had the Baltimore quintet on the go for the balance of the game. Castelle, Jeweler and Harris led the valiant rally, but all in vain, for George Washington. Whenever a Colonial player scored, a visitor followed with a tally, and not once was the home gang able to get within six points of the pace-setters.

Although suffering a loss, the Buff and Blue five flashed a much improved form over that of its debut on Tuesday night and at times its teamwork was a treat to watch. Its passing was more accurate and its guarding good, but until the later stages of the game, none of the home players was able to get his eye on the basket, Jack Perry, diminutive guard, played a bang-up game for the Colonials, several times breaking away from a horde of enemy players to dribble the entire length of the floor. On one of these occasions, he pushed the ball through the cords himself, while other times his teammates were waiting to receive his passes.

Jeweler Sinks Two Shots From Afar.

Max Jeweler, another midget, at forward, after potting away at the basket from great distances all eveing, finally was rewarded by seeing two of his flings drop through the net, while at one time Dick Castell found the loop for a goal after taking the ball away from two Oriole performers.

Hagen and Von Elm Tie for Pasadena Lead

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 20 (A.P.)—Walter Hagen, Detroit professional and British open champion today tied with George Von Elm, Detroit, America's send ranking amateur for the lead in the opening day's 18-hole round of the $4,000 Pasadena open golf tournament. Hagen and Von Elm turned in cards of 69, two under par.

Stroking one under par, four professionals tied for the opening round second honors with cards of 70. They were Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio and Dave Hackney, Lawrence Mass.

Larry Montes, Manila pro champion of the Philippine Islands, and Hutt Martin, Reno, Nev., professional, stroked 71 to tie for third.

Of the record field of 225 starters, many were only half through the round as darkness began to close in and will be forced to finish their first round tomorrow. Teeing off ahead of the second round play, the 100 high cards and ties in the first round will be eligible to enter their second day's play.

Tulsa, Dakota To Play G. W. In 1930

Intersectional Games Feature Colonials' Grid Schedule.

Rutgers, Dickinson, New York Aggies Also Listed.

FOR the first time in football history at George Washington University a Colonial grid team will engage in intersectional games next season. Games with South Dakota University here and with Tulsa University at Tulsa, Okla., are included in the official 1930 schedule which was learned yesterday.

The entire schedule arranged for George Washington's 1930 team is far above the order of Colonial football schedules of former years. Games with American University and Catholic University are listed, while others are slated with Rutgers, New York Aggies, Albright and Dickinson. Negotiations for a game with Temple on September 27, the date set for the opening of season, failed to materialize and that date remains to be filled.

Arrangements for the Tulsa-Colonial game were drafted on a home-and-home basis, the Westerners coming here in 1931. The contest with South Dakota U. may pave the way for future grid engagements between the two universities, but to date no agreements have been made concerning other meetings.

Several Teams Seek Opening Date.

The two intersectional games promise to furnish the highlights of the 1930 campaign. Booking these games placed a large financial burden on G. W., the athletic director indicated, and the future program in regard to intersectional games will depend largely upon the success of these two ventures, it is understood.

Several teams are seeking the opening date on the Colonial schedule. Director of Athletics James E. Pixlee is anxious to schedule a comparatively strong foe for that date as Rutgers is listed for the following week.

In view of the sensational record of the 1929 freshmen eleven and the fact that several capable candidates will be retained from the varsity squad, George Washington is looking forward to a successful grid campaign next fall.

South Dakota, which gave Army a hard battle the past season, has been scheduled by Wisconsin and Minnesota next year and is expected to rise to new heights next year. Tulsa, the other intersectional foe carded, has been one of the outstanding teams of the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Conference in recent years. Tulsa's team scored the lone touchdown registered against Detroit in 1928, being defeated, 19 to 14, by the same team that humbled Georgetown, 33 to 13. The past season, Detroit defeated Tulsa, 21 to 6, before winning from Georgetown, 14 to 13.

Rutgers Expects Better Season.

Rutgers had a fair season the past fall and expects to return to its one time prominent position next year. Albright was one of the few teams to score against Western Maryland the past season and boasted one of the best records compiled by a Pennsylvania college eleven. The New York Aggies of Farmingdale, Long Island, have been pushing forward in the football world for several seasons and are expected to have one of their best teams next fall.

A third intersectional game with Oklahoma was partially arranged by Pixlee, but the Oklahoma officials placed a ban on distant trips and all negotiations were halted.

Temple Pinmen Take Three From Hallmen

Maxie Rosenberg's Northeast Temple Team halted the march of the Convention Hall Five in the District League last night by scoring three victories. George Friend and Paul Harrison led the victors. Al Work carried the burden for the losers. Red Morgan, the league's high average man, dropped 25 pins.

Cadet Flying to Join Army Team on Coast

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 20 (A.P.). The Army took more than 100 football players West for the intersectional battle with Stanford December 28, but reinforcements are on the way by the air-mail route.

John M. Lazar, one of the best Cadet centers, failed to pass his mathematics examination early this week and was left behind when the West Point special, bound for Palo Alto, pulled out last Wednesday.

Today the Chicago youth passed a special make-up test, became eligible again and immediately left to join his teammates. He was booked for passage tonight on the Transcontinental Air - Rail Line that will put him in Los Angeles Sunday afternoon, about the same time that the main party reaches Palo Alto.

WRAY NAMED PENN GRID COACH

Assistant for 7 Years; Freshman Coach Resigns Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—J. R. Ludlow ("Lud") Wray, line coach of the University of Pennsylvania Football Team for the last seven seasons, was today selected as head coach by the football committee of the Pennsylvania athletic council. Wray succeeds Lou Young, who recently declined reelection as head coach in order to become assistant to the chairman of the University of Pennsylvania athletic council.

It was also announced that Sydney E. Hutchinson had resigned as chairman of the football committee and that Lou Young had been appointed as chairman to succeed him. Hutchinson remains chairman of the council of athletics.

No Connection, Is Statement.

It was stated that Hutchinson for some time had been wanting to be relieved of the football chairmanship and found the present the best opportunity for so doing. It was denied that Wray's election as football captain had anything to do with Hutchison's resignation.

Jack Butler, coach of the 1929 Pennsylvania Freshman Eleven, announced his resignation tonight, declaring that he "will not work under Wray."

Larry Fitzgerald Wins In Left-Handed Tourney

Larry Fitzgerald added a 561 set to his total last night at the Coliseum and won the left handed duckpin tournament by a margin of five pins. Eugene Raney, the Kensington stra, added a big set to his stack and copped second money with 1,162 total. Lonnie Krauss, the Coliseum boss overtook a dozen other contenders to grab the third place with 1,151 and Bennie Wormsley was one pin to the rear. George Tew gained the fifth place purse with an 1,145 string.

Fitzgerald went into the eighth box of the final game in need of a mark and a five pin count. He struck in the eighth box and got a seven pin count, missing a triangle spare to get a ten.

Fitzgerald's 606 set for the opening block was high and Louis Brisker's 144 game last night was high in that respect.

The young couple will make their home in San Francisco.

Bass Knocks Morgan Out, Wins Title

Wild Right in Second Round Ends 4-Year Reign of Tod.

PURSES ORDERED HELD PENDING INVESTIGATION

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Chairman James A. Farley, of the New York State Athletic Commission, tonight ordered the purses of both fighters withheld by Madison Square Garden after Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, knocked out Tod Morgan, of Seattle, in two rounds to become the junior lightweight champion of the world.

Farley said that a rigid investigation of the match would be conducted by the commission, and in the meantime the purses of both fighters would be retained by the fight club. He indicated his belief that the match had not been fought on its merits. He summoned both Morgan and Bass to appear before the commission Tuesday with their managers.

As a general rule, unless there is suspicin of a 'fake" fight the commission withholds purses of fighters only when a foul occurs. Before the match Bass ruled a favorite as high as 6 to 1 to win the crown. . .

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Two sweeping right-hand punches, the first thrown almost in full retreat, set Benny Bass tonight upon the junior lightweight championship throne and ended the four-year reign of a worthy king, Tod Morgan, of Seattle.

Fighting back through a first-round bombardment that left him groggy and weak, the "Little Fish" from Philadelphia knocked Morgan out in 51 seconds of the second round in a reversal of form that both thrilled and startled the 9,000 of the faithful who gathered for the fifteen-round title test.

Never, in all the fifteen battles Morgan has waged in successful defense of his crown during the past four years, has the clean-cut blonde youngster from the State of Washington appeared to better advantage than in the first round. Almost at the start he rifled a right hand into Bass' chin that nearly sank the challenger. Throughout the whole round he pressed his advantage fiercely.

Challenger Jolted By Punches.

Right-hand punches shot from the shoulder straight down the alley to Bass' chin, jolted the sturdy challenger back on his heels, staggered him and sent him back to his corner dizzy and reeling when the first round was over. It seemed as if Bass, a 3-to-1 favorite, could not last more than another round of such punishment.

But the chance for victory that always rides with a deadly puncher, switched the situation entirely in the second round. Bass tore from his corner, swinging a right hand punch that started from his heels, picked up momentum at midring, and crashed with deadening force on the champion's chin a step or two from Morgan's corner. The title-holder went down on his face, squirmed to his knees and barely reeled to his feet at the count of nine.

Bass was upon the tottering king like a tiny squall of thunder and lightning, driving him this way and that under a fury of blows that tore Morgan's bowed head and protecting arms. Tod's eyes were closed and he groped frantically for the wild puncher, who was slinging them from near and far in his desperate bid for victory.

Smash Lands Full On Chin.

Morgan reached out to hold and as he did Bass unleashed the mightiest of all his rights, a smash that landed full on Tod's chin. Again Morgan went down, this time without a hope of ever reaching his feet again in time to continue the struggle. He lay face down, eyes closed and right cheek buried in the resin, until Referee Jimmy Crowley counted nine. Tod shivered once then, and he tried to draw his legs up under his body, but it was impossible. The count of ten found him motionless again.

It was a gallant ending to a title career that began four years ago with victory over the old champion, Mike Ballerino. Since then Morgan has met every challenger, 15 of them in all, and though in desperate straits at mites, always managed to pull through with his crown intact. Among his victims were Joe Glick, Johnny Dundee and Cannon Ball Eddie Martin.

Bass Lost Bount To Canzoneri.

Bass, the new champion, made his first bid for fame over a year ago when he challenged Tony Canzoneri for the featherweight title, but lost the decision in an exciting battle. He claimed that he fought 13 rounds that night with a broken collarbone.

Bass was little more than a featherweight tonight in winning the championship that was designed seven years ago by the late Texas Rickard for Johnny Dundee, the great Scotch-Wop, who was too big for the pounders and not quite hefty enough for the lightweights. Bass scaled 127, Morgan 128.

ARMY TEAM HAS SHORT WORKOUT

Cold, Frozen Field Limits Practice at Hutchinson.

HUTCHINSON, Kans., Dec. 20 (A P.).—Bad breaks on the weather, which have disorganized the transcontinental schedule of the Army Football Team en route to California to play Stanford December 28, continued today and cut short an emergency practice session arranged by Coach "Biff" Jones here. Frigid temperatures and a frozen field caused cancellation of plans for an hour's stiff workout and only 20 minutes of limbering up exercises was given.

Dressed in sweat clothes, the squad boarded buses when the special train stopped here and was transported to the local gridiron a mile from the station. Most of the time was used for a series of kicking. The session was closed with a run.

Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the academy, said that the twelve-hour delay in the schedule of the Army special due to the Midwest blizzard, in addition to spoiling the plans for practice, also had ruined arrangements for receptions at various stops along the route.

Galesburg Drill Called Off.

The workout planned for yesterday at Galesburg, Ill., had to be called off, but the Cadets were routed from their berths when the train reached there at 3:30 o'clock this morning in order not to disappoint the parents of two of the players wno had waited hours at the station to greet the team.

The stop at Hutchinson was hastily arranged today by Coach Jones when it was found that the train would not reach Syracuse, Kans., in time to hold the scheduled workout there.

News that John M. Lazar, brilliant center, who was left behind at West Point because of scholastic difficulties had been restored to eligibility and was leaving for the Coast by air tonight, heartened his teammates.

Maj. Fleming said that because of the changed train schedule, it had been necessary to cancel arrangements made by city officials and business men for elaborate receptions at La Junta and Trinidad, Colo., and Raton, N. Mex.

N. Y. Boxing License Asked for Art Shires

New York, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—An application for a New York State boxing license in behalf of Art Shires was filed today by Charles Murray, Buffalo promoter, who wants to pit the battling Chicago White Sox first baseman against an opponent not yet chosen in a bout in Buffalo, December 26.

The license will be granted when Arthur sees fit to make formal application himself, Bert Stand, secretary of the State Athletic Commission, said.

Deciding that Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight who was suspended for fouling Phil Scott in the recent Madison Square Garden affair, had been punished enough, the commission sanctioned his return to the ring in a bout with the Spaniard, Paulino Uzcudun, at the Garden, January 10.

Boston Owner Fails to Sign Veteran

Wagner, Assistant, Is Seen as His Successor.

For Second Time Carrigan Answers Call of Business.

BOSTON, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Bill Carrigan, who piloted the Boston Red Sox to two world championships, today resigned that baseball berth for the second time in 13 years. He told President Bob Quinn, who visited him at his home in Lewiston, Me., that he had to quit baseball or neglect his own affairs.

When Quinn returned to Boston tonight, he said he was not ready to announce Carrigan's successor, who will probably be "Heinie" Wagner, "Wild Bill's" first lieutenant for many years.

Carrigan's business interests, which are extensive and varied in and about Lewiston, forced him out of baseball in 1916, when he was at the peak of his managerial career. During his two years at the helm, he had led the club to two world championships.

Lured Back by Quinn in 1927.

Bob Quinn lured him back in 1927, when the Red Sox fortunes were at a low ebb. Carrigan tried to strengthen the team, but was unable to obtain needed players and, as a result, the team finished last in the next three American League campaigns. During the last month of the past season, Carrigan assembled a team which played better ball than any Red Sox outfit since that of 1916.

Carrigan, now 46 years old, has spent most of his baseball career in Boston as a catcher and manager.

Although the Red Sox finished last in the 1929 American League race, students of the game admit that Carrigan has made considerable progress toward rebuilding his baseball machine, and fans, as well as club owners, would like to see him remain and finish what he has started.

Acquired Young and Scrappy Talent.

Carrigan came to the Red Sox when they were a hopeless baseball combination, made up largely of fading old-timers. He immediately began using the pruning knife, and the team he had last season showed possibilities of better things. The Red Sox squad now is made up of young, scrappy players with considerable latent ability hid in it.

The team played consistently good ball last season and, unlike previous years, was no est-up, even the pennant-winning Athletics being extended to the limit to win.

With the groundwork laid, only a little improvement is needed to make the Red Sox first division possibilities, and there is general regret here among the fans that Carrigan can not see his way clear to remain and further improve the baseball machine he has welded together.

Tunney Will Attend Dinner for Carey

New York, Dec. 20.—Gene Tunney will attend the William F. Carey dinner, tendered to the Madison Square Garden president by the Madison Square Garden Club at the Hotel Commodore on January 14.

The retired and undefeated heavyweight champion yesterday accepted James I. Bush's invitation to grace the dais. Tunney will sit alongside Mayor Walker, who will be toastmaster.

"I am very grateful for the invitation to honor Mr. Carey," read part of Tunney's acceptance, "and I assure you I will be present."

SAM WEST IS LARGE FIGURE IN 1930 PLANS OF NATS

Great Hitting Streak of Outfielder in '28 Is Remembered.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WHILE the punch is the big thing in baseball these days and Manager Walter Johnson declares that power will be given preference over defensive ability in the selecting of talent for the 1930 Washington team, there is no question but what the Nats' leader will do considerable thinking before he wishes Outfielder Sam West out of the picture as a regular.

With the Nationals hopelessly out of last season's race early in the year, there is no question but what West's fancy fly-chasing was the bright spot of most of the games staged here during the last two or three months of the season. This young fly-hawk saved game after game with brilliant catches and performed sensationally so consistently that the newspapers kept the subhead "West Stars Afield" set in type, ready for regular use.

Not only did West roam all over the outfield and frequently contribute fine pegs which erased runners taking liberties with his wing, but he made one catch which undoubtedly is the best ever turned in at the Griffith Stadium. The comparatively few fans who saw it, no doubt will remember it forever, while Babe Ruth, at whose expense it was made, probably is still wondering how Sam did it.

Ruth Astounded At Catch.

The play came in a series with the Yankees late in the season. Ruth crashed a liner toward the stands in left-center. At the crack of the bat, West was off for the ball, racing at a tangent toward the wall. When close to it, he leaped high, snaring the ball well over his head and smack against the wall near the top of the stand-base. So far was the drive that Ruth reached third base. He did not think it possible that the ball could have been caught and twice had to be ordered off the sack by the umpire. He finally left the field, shaking his head and mumbling: "He couldn't 'ave caught it."

And Ruth is not the only one who is surprised at West's great fielding ability, for Birmingham fans, who saw the youngster perform as a Baron before he was purchased by the Nats, oddly enough never rated Sam highly on defense. While with the Alabamans, West was regarded as a demon hitter, but only a fair fielder, although he always had a good throwing arm. West's fall-down as a batter can be explained, but no good reason yet has been advanced for the youngster's sudden jump to the top rank of the American Leagues fly catchers.

Bat-Shy Following Blow on Head.

In 1926 West hit right-handers and left-handers alike, and his batting was the talk of the Southern Association. Shortly after Scout Joe Engel had purchased his contract for the Nats he was unintentionally beaned by Pitcher Mel Settlemire, who since has been tried and found wanting by the Boston Red Sox. The blow sent the outfielder to the hospital with concussion of the brain and almost resulted in his death.

Reporting to the Nationals at Tampa in the spring of 1927, West complained of dizziness while working in the sun, and because of his brilliant possibilities as a prospect he was allowed to take things easily. After finally getting started he pulled a bad Charley horse, and after being kept on the bench for nearly two months he suffered a recurrence in the first game following his return. That year he was at bat but 67 times, and his puny average of .239 was not held against him.

West, however, showed signs of being bat-shy, especially against left-handed pitching, and this fault was apparent the following year until the last month or so, when he suddenly came to life and slugged all types of pitching so consistently that he pulled his hitting mark from around .240 to .301.

This great hitting streak was borne in mind by Johnson, who succeeded Stanley Harris as manager at the start of 1929, and West was used regularly practically all of last season. At one time he looked so poorly at the tee that he was benched, but he earned the right to get back into the line-up by coming through with a homer in a pinch-hitting role to change an apparent Red Sox victory into a Washington triumph.

While West ended the season with a batting average of but .266 and failed to impress as a hitter, many of his 136 hits in his 511 chances came at most opportune times, for he drove home no less than 74 runs, only being topped in this respect by two mates—Goose Goslin and Buddie Myer.

Manager Johnson admits that West's case is puzzling him. He has seen plenty of outfielders and declares that Sam does not have to doff his cap to any of them. While he is seeking a punch for his 1930 Nats, West has shown enough batting promise to justify even another chance, and, in view of his proven ability as a fly chaser and the timeliness of many of his blows of the past season, he is sure to figure prominently in plans for next year's team.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

HUGHIE CRITZ, great second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds whose name does not rhyme with the hits he makes out does with his baseball lights, is a philosopher.

The Mississippi collegian, who has few equals in double-play execution either on the starting end or in the middle, was talking of the difficulties of batting against major league pitching. He remarked:

"The good Lord takes you up to that plate and then leaves you flat."

He qualified, too, as a diagnostician of baseball ills besetting players in a batting slump. A batsman in a slight slump, from which he is likely to emerge any time, has a bad cold. If the lack of hits becomes more protracted he is threatened with an attack of appendicitis, but if there seems to be no end to the slump, then he has sinus trouble.

THERE will be no lack of color next summer in the high school stadium where the Shawnee Club of the Western Association plays its baseball games. President Blake Harper has decided that his players will wear red pants, white shirts and blue stockings. He has grown tired of the conventional white for home wear and gray for road uniforms and will pep up the Oklahoma landscape in his part of the fast Class C league.

President Harper is no novice at introducing novel stunts into baseball. He once had a terrapin race in his ball park and on another occasion put on vaudeville acts at the home plate.

MARYVILLE COLLEGE, 16 miles from Knoxville, Tenn., is baseball's gift to the Detroit Tigers. Three promising players of the array of talent Bucky Harris is assembling, won their first baseball honors with the Maryville Highlanders. The trio consists of a hard-hitting first baseman, Dale Alexander, who is a Tiger fixture, and two outfielders, Arthur Ruble and John Stone, who have been in and out of the major leagues, but threaten to make places for themselves at any time now.

A STRANGE football field is in use at Chattanooga, Tenn. The "gridiron" is only 60 yards in length instead of the regulation 100, and when the ball has been pushed over the goal line, instead of a touchdown being scored it is taken back to the 40-yard line and an effort made to repeat.

Spectators who have watched contests on the abbreviated field say that the second 40 yards seems to be the harder to negotiate.

The style of the quarter backs is somewhat cramped when they are down in the vicinity of the goal line for their choice of plays is limited and if they are fortunate enough to uncover a scoring maneuver, they have not scored, but have merely crossed the goal line with 40 yards more of rocky road to be traveled.

The difficulties work both ways, however, for the team about to crash over the goal line knows that it is only 60 yards to the other marker, and its opponents will have the same worries at the other end of the field.

HARRY A. WILLIAMS, president of the Pacific Coast League, predicts that ultimately the "split-season" plan in baseball will be adopted by all leagues, including the majors.

The split-season plan is to divide the season into two parts, and if different clubs win, have a play-off at the close of the season for the championship.

"This statement," said Mr. Williams, a former newspaper man, "no doubt will cause more than one smile tinged with skepticism, for it sounds revolutionary in the extreme, but I am willing that the scoffers should paste it in a convenient place for future reference.

"Nothing which brings legitimate results can permanently be ignored. It is certain of ultimate universal recognition and utilization. The divided season has brought results in the Pacific Coast League, an organization a shade below the majors and one of the three highest minors, making it, in my opinion, the ideal circuit for a test which is really representative of baseball. Baseball men who are frank and analytical freely admit that baseball as a whole has new and changing conditions to meet, as well as increasing competition. Unlike industrialists and great amusement concerns, it has done little to meet these conditions.

MR. WILLIAMS continued that he opposed indiscriminate splitting of the season without adequate safeguard. This safeguard, he submitted, can be provided through the medium of a cash bonus, to be awarded the club which wins both halves, or be played for on a 60 and 40 per cent basis of division, should different clubs win the first and second halves.

The players should not share in the receipts of any play-off, but the bonus must be large enough to provide every incentive for a club to win both halves, if possible, and to win the play-off, if one is necessary.

"After all, the so-called split season is but two short seasons, instead of one long one," said Williams, "and I know of no argument which can be advanced against two short seasons, with their great dramatic possibilities and the danger of a drab situation reduced to a minimum. Too, it is the fairest system of settling baseball championships."

PHILIP SCOTT NO ARTIST AS DIVER

work in New York except by some rare accident. By the time a dry whale has reached artistic maturity he is doing all his work in the leaky roof clubs far from Broadway, where the prevalent bad taste in everything precludes any fair hearing for persons of true artistic integrity. Any gim-crack movement, any flashy spin or acrobatic flip deceives the critics and the public alike, and when Fainting Phil, the Flying Fish, comes along with his unconventional soaring swoon, you have the gall to compare him to Diving Dan O'Dowd.

"My only criticism of Quintin would be that he was rather mechanical, lacking that impulsive, inspirational quality which is all the difference between a man falling off a fire escape and another man climbing down a fire escape. He had every thing but abandon. He was at home performing in any trajectory from the hump-back flight to the long, low plunge, and he could go to either side or backward, but there was always an instant of awkward hesitancy just before the take-off and he was a mite too rigid in flight.

Bombardier Wells Copied by Cowler.

"Tumbling Tom Cowler never fulfilled his early promises. I marked him for genius the night of his first dive, but he quit the game too soon, and there is no sense of discussing what he might have done. His early works showed great precocity, strongly influenced by the style of Bombardier Wells, of whom he was a great student. Posterity will exalt Sailor Martin and in time to come you will see his statue, a loose, graceful figure, executing the pinwheel on a pedestal in the Garden lobby beside the Tunney-Muldoon trophy, if the boys have not scratched too many uncouth sentiments on the metal of this mounment by then, necessitating its removal. I need not testify to Fred Fulton's artistry. Old Smackover will live beyond his time in the hearts of all true lovers of the dry dive and my man, Diving Dan O'Dowd, alone will rank above him.

"Sir, in comparing Fainting Phil to Diving Dan O'Dowd you have wronged the most versatile plunger of them all. You speak of his low, bouncing dives, his distance plunging, as though he had never turned a flying one-and-a-half spin, or a standing-sitting jackknife. Is this ignorance or malice on your part? It must be malice. No man could be that ignorant. Forgive me if I underrate your ignorance."

Hawks and Lansdowne Clash Here Tomorrow

Washington's big time sandlot football season will end tomorrow when the Mohawks will tackle the Lansdowne eleven of Baltimore, at Griffith Stadium, starting at 2:30 o'clock. The Mohawks are particularly anxious to close their season with a victory and have been practicing hard for the contest. In five contests with Baltimore clubs this season the Hawks have won four and tied another. Lansdowne was defeated early in the season, but that club has since won the Baltimore League championship with an improved combination.

Baltimore fans have been stirred by these battles with the Hawks and a large number of fans will come over for the game. The Hawks will have Abbattichio, Dewey, and the other stars primed to turn back the invaders.

CLOSE 38-YEAR GAP

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 20 (A.P.) Purdue and Butler will resume football relations in 1930, after a lapse of 38 years. The game, which completes Purdue's schedule for next season, will be played at Lafayette, November 15. They last met in 1892.

SHIRES' PAST FORGOTTEN, SAYS BUSH

Chisox Pilot Tells of Plans for Handling Art (The Great).

Special to The Washington Post.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 20—Arthur "The Great" Shires, bad boy of baseball, who believed, until last Monday, that he was the greatest boxer since the days of John L. Sullivan, Peter Maher and a few old timers, who took their socks on the button without having it ballyhooed throughout the universe, should avoid pulling any of his capers on Donie Bush, fiery and peppery manager of the Chicago White Sox next season.

Bush, let it be known to his personal friend, Vic Neilan, former fire captain, this city, recently that Mr. Shires would take only one swing at his chin. And Donie told Neilan in these terms:

"I expect Shires to obey every rule laid down while I am at the head of the White Sox. If Shires disobeys any rule I am going to call him the same as the greenest rookie on the outfit. I have forgotten Shires' past reputation. All that has gone before does not concern me, and is history. What I am interested in now is whether Shires will give his whole-hearted efforts for the welfare of the club."

Blackburn's Chin Target.

As most every baseball fan knows, that the "One and Only" Shires took two swings on his roommate and former manager, Lena Blackburn's chin, when reprimanded for his breach of discipline last season. It is going to be a different tune this coming season if "the peerless" Mr. Shires tries to pull the same rough stuff on Bush.

"I have been in baseball a long time; I respect every player in my charge and in return demand the same courtesy," Bush said.

"I never took water when a player took a swing at me," Donie said. Bush was emphatic in discussing how he intends to handle the "Terror." Under no circumstances would he hold Shires' past conduct against him. "The boy is a youngster and a good baseball player. I believe that he possibly has been misadvised, and all that is needed is getting him straightened out," the new White Sox manager told Neilan.

"All that I ask of Shires is that he gives the White Sox his best and forgets what has happened. I am going to have a heart-to-heart talk with Shires before the season opens," Bush said.

"But one thing is certain, Shires had better not take a punch at me—I have never gone down yet, and you can bet it won't be Shires who will have the honor of sending me to the dust at this stage of my career. If Shires keeps his head and plays baseball, instead of emulating a prize fighter, everything is going to be fine and Shires will be the best first baseman of the league."

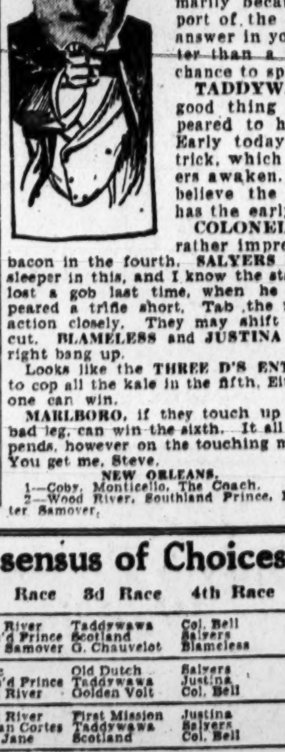
COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER



COBY. This is the old fashioned pickler, sent along by the chief of staff down at New Orleans. Personally, I fancy him and in addition I look for the price to be right. This primarily because MONTICELLO will have the support of the dope and some others. You have the answer in your lily white duke. THE COACH, better than a flash in the pan, and has an outside chance to spill the frijoles. Yewekkum.

TADDYWAWA is taken to beat the well-timed good thing SCOTLAND, which, by the way, appeared to have the old nine o' hearts last time. Early today I noted commissions on the Bryson trick, which usually has the effect of making sleepers awaken. On the other hand, the clean one, I believe the Jones trick can trim "Scottie." He has the early foot. Anything is liable to be third.

COLONEL BELL, which won his last two starts rather impressively, is taken to bring home all the bacon in the fourth. SALYERS is a sleeper in this, and I know the stable lost a gob last time, when he appeared a trifle short. Tab the ring action closely. They may shift the cut. BLAMELESS and JUSTINA are right bang up.

Looks like the THREE D'S ENTRY to cop all the kale in the fifth. Either one can win.

MARLBORO, if they touch up the bad leg, can win the sixth. It all depends, however on the touching mitt. You get me, Steve.

NEW ORLEANS.

2—Wood River, Southland Prince, Master Samover.
3—Taddywawa, Scotland, Germaine Chauvelot.
4—Col. Belle, Salyers, Blameless.
5—Three D's entry, Patricia Marian, Inception.
6—Marlboro, Comet, Laundryman.
7—John T. D., The Huguenot, Isoard.

TECH FIVE DEFEATS HYATTSVILLE IN DEBUT, 33-25

Three Teams Employed in Triumph

Scholastic Champions Win Despite Absence of Regulars.

Draw Away to Huge Lead But Score at Half Is 15-10.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, JR.

TECH HIGH SCHOOL'S championship basket ball team, making its season debut, looked anything but the part of a titleholder yesterday in its own gym, as it barely shoved enough points through the basket to defeat the Hyattsville High Five, 33-25.

As an explanation of its mediocre showing, however, the winners of the last interhigh series were playing without the services of four of its championship squad, Capt. MacCartee, Johnson, Johns and Talbert, all being absent from the line-up. This quartet of Maroon and Gray stalwarts is at present working in the Postoffice Department during the Christmas rush and is unable to devote much time to basket ball. When the four return to the team, Coach Artie Boyd may be able to put on the floor a team looking the part of the title it holds.

True, there was no evidence at any time that the Techites were in for a trimming, although the visitors did succeed in tying the score on two occasions early in the game, but the meager 8-point advantage which the winners held at the end of the game was in direct contrast to the overwhelming defeats administered to the same foe by two of Tech's rivals in the approaching series. Both Business and Western all but slaughtered the pigmy Hyattsville Five, and the fact that the Marylanders were able to come within striking distance of their hosts, was a distinct surprise.

Boyd used three complete teams during the melee, substituting his reserves one by one, instead of as complete fives. A combination of Russell, Lassise, Beach, Wills and Sklar opened activities, but before the fray was over ten additional players had broken into the game. Probably the brightest showing of any was made by Olverson, a center, inserted in the second quarter. The tallest of the Tech Team succeeded in leading his team in scoring, making three field goals and one foul toss for 7 points.

After getting away to a 4-0 lead on baskets by Russell and Lassise, Tech saw the count knotted on double-deckers by Hurd and Jarrell, after which foul shots by Russell and Stanley Lewis of the rivals again placed the score on an even basis. Here Tech spurted, and three field goals and two free shots gave it a 13-5 lead before the visitors could score again at the start of the second quarter. Holding the scholastic champs to a lone two-pointer during the second quarter, the Hyattsville five scored an additional 5 points to match its score in the first period, and leaving the floor at half time on the short end of only a 15-10 count.

Although double-deckers by the Lewis brothers right after the resumption of play had placed the visitors within 3 points of Tech, the champions once again spurted and succeeded in drawing further away from their rival than at any time during the afternoon. With Olverson leading the way, Tech scored 13 points in a row to boast of a 30-14 advantage, but Hyattsville then called a halt on activities. Holding the local boys to 3 points for the remainder of the game, the Orange tossers scored intermittently for the balance of the time and three field goals plus five free tosses carried it to within 8 points of the home team before the final whistle ended activities.

Col. Russler to Head Club at Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 20.—Col. Nelson W. Russler, county commissioner and chairman of the Republican State central committee in Allegany County, was unanimously elected president of Community Baseball, Inc., of Cumberland, at a meeting of the fifteen newly named directors last night. Col. Russler succeeds Dr. Homer B. Walker, who did not seek reelection. Police Commissioner Herbert Lee Blye was unanimously reelected vice president and M. F. Prendergast was unanimously reelected secretary. Jacob Gottlieb succeeds Harry Footer as treasurer. All officers act without pay. Col. Russler headed the Cumberland Team in the days of the old Georges Creek League.

The directors instructed Dr. Walker and Mr. Russler, who will attend the impending Middle Atlantic League meeting, to vote against curtailing the schedule, and to use their judgment in voting for the extension of the schedule. It is proposed to have the schedule run next year two weeks longer than in other years. The question of a split schedule was also left to their judgment, as was the selection of a league president. The three-year term of the incumbent, Elmer M. Dailey, Windber, Pa., expires January 1. It is believed Dailey will be a candidate for reelection.

Bucknell Won Game For Each Senior Player

Special to The Washington Post.

Lewisburg, Pa., Dec. 20.—Bucknell's football team won a game for each senior who played regularly on the squad, it is revealed in the list of lettermen announced here this week by the athletic council.

Eight of the ten seniors performed in part of all the games, and there were eight of the ten games played credited as victories. All of the ten men played against Dickinson Thanksgiving Day except the injured George ("Lefty") James and, consequently, sang their "swan song" together. Incidentally, all these men made their debut on the varsity squad with the coming to Bucknell of Head Coach Carl Snavely.

Real footballs were awarded to each of the eight men who played in all games. The varsity "B" was also given to the large group of seniors, except Otto Huffman, who had not played in enough time and who had not been a member of the varsity squad long enough to receive an honorary "B."

Seniors receiving the awards were Capt. Ernie Woerner, Caldwell, N. J.; Albert Elior, Bloomfield, N. J.; Frank Kostos, Mount Carmel; Tom ("Pottsville") Jones, Llewellyn; Eddie Bollinger, Youngwood; Welland Wadsworth, McGraw, N. Y.; George James, New Cumberland; Marlin Stephens, Johnstown, and Carl Truxel, Youngwood.

INDIANA PLAYS PENN FIVE.

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The University of Indiana basketball squad today was en route to Philadelphia, where it will meet the University of Pennsylvania five in an intersectional contest Saturday night.

SPORTS YEAR IS GOOD AT LEHIGH

Teams Better Than .500 First Time in Several Years.

Special to The Washington Post.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 20.—For the first time in several years the athletic ledger of victories and defeats at Lehigh University shows a favorable balance. This is for the calendar year, 1929. The ten varsity teams at Lehigh participated in eighty-nine dual contests during the year, which has already come to a close as far as Brown and White athletics are concerned. During this period, Lehigh teams won forty-six contests, lost forty-one and tied two, for a percentage of .529. This does not include intercollegiates in wrestling, swimming, tennis, track and cross-country.

With a perfect record of eight wins and no defeats and the eastern intercollegiate championship to its credit, the Brown and White wrestlers eclipsed all the other teams of the year wearing the same colors, and in fact boast of one of the greatest records in Lehigh athletic history. This record included defeats of practically all the strongest college wrestling teams in the East.

Four of the ten teams split even in their respective seasons. These were the basketball quintet which won its seven home games and lost a corresponding number away; the natators who also won their three home splashes; the racquet wielders, who won five and lost five and the lacrosse team which had a four-and-four record. The basketball and baseball teams had the better of their opponents in the aggregate score for the season.

The football, baseball and soccer teams turned in more victories than defeats. The gridiron eleven won four, lost three and fought two teams to a draw, being the only team to include any stalemates on its record. The nine just managed to be on the right side with seven wins and six defeats; a few of the other scheduled games having been washed out. The soccer team struck its stride at the end of the season and won its last four successive games over major opponents, giving it a six-to-four record. The track and cross-country team lowered the general percentage, each having one victory in six-and-four meets, respectively.

The wrestling team was not the only Lehigh aggregation which fared well in intercollegiate meets. The tennis team won the indoor intercollegiate at Cornell, and the swimming team placed second in the Middle Atlantic meet at Delaware. The Brown and White mile relay team captured second place at the Penn relays last spring in the Middle Atlantic division, N. Y. U. winning the race. The track team was not represented at the Middle Atlantic intercollegiates at Haverford because the examination period was under way at that time at Lehigh.

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pct.
Wrestling	8	0	0	1.000
Swimming	3	3	0	.500
Baseball	7	6	0	.538
Tennis	5	5	0	.500
Lacrosse	4	4	0	.500
Track	1	5	0	.167
Football	4	3	2	.555
Soccer	6	4	0	.600

Ossie H. Wins Blanket Finish at New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—In a blanket finish in which the first five horses came to the wire heads apart, here today, Ossie H., got the decision, with Captain J. S., second; John Speed, third; Robina Seth, fourth, and The Abbot fifth. It was one of the best and most spirited finishes seen at the local track this winter. It brought the small crowd to its feet and the winner received much applause.

The field of twelve got away to a good start, with Captain J. S. rushing to the front, followed by Ossie H. and John Speed. Robina Seth was back about fifth or sixth. The field ran in this order to the stretch, where they spread out and they came to the finish in cavalry formation. It was any one's race right to the final stride and only the official numbers determined the result. Ossie H. got the decision, with Captain J. S. second and John Speed third. Time was 1:13 4-5.

The Engineer Winner In Havana's Feature

Havana, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The Engineer, at 4 to 1, won the featured attraction at Oriental Park today. Bobbin Along was second and Rumba third. The start was good. Rumba and Ranch Lass were off quickest. There was a general closing up rounding the stretch turn, where The Engineer was able to get through on the inside.

The attendance improved with the warmer weather.

Colgate Track Team Drills Without Captain

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The Colgate indoor track team has begun its workouts without Capt. George Stolwerck, Montclair, N. J., who was injured in football practice and will be out of the running for the entire season. The schedule for the season includes: February 8, Millrose games at New York; 12, Meadowbrook games at Philadelphia; 15, Crescent games at Brooklyn, and March 1, intercollegiate games at New York.

PLAYED HERE AND THERE.

Charles F. Crowley, who resigned as coach at Columbia, played football at both Harvard and Notre Dame.

BAD DAY TO PLAY.

New York University has been beaten in its Thanksgiving Day game for the last five years.

Bonner, New Temple Captain, Versatile Star

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Jack Bonner, newly-elected captain of the Temple University Football Team, is one of the greatest athletes in college ranks. Besides playing the grid game, he participated in basket ball and baseball. In football he plays tackle, basket ball, forward and baseball, first base. Mr. Bonner, a son of Jack Bonner, one of the leading middleweight boxers twenty years ago, has won seven varsity letters.

VA. TANKMEN GET BUSY JAN. 3

Five Veterans Form Nucleus for Good 1930 Team.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 20. The University of Virginia swimming squad will resume training on January 3, at the end of the Christmas recess. Five veterans from the last season form a valuable and experienced nucleus for the 1930 team.

Brooke Maury, of Brookline, Mass., is captain of the Cavalier tank team. Maury, who has just won his cross-country letter, gives his time to track in the fall and spring, but during the winter his full attention goes to water sports. The longer swimming races are his specialty.

Fred O. Hatch, of Akron, Ohio, and Fred A. Johns, of Norfolk, Va., for the shorter races and the breast stroke, and Guy Robertson and Robert H. Swindell, of Baltimore, Md., for the diving events, are all valuable men, who won the minor award as natators last season.

Two Ex-Captains Acting As Coaches.

Added to these on the varsity tank squad are Edmond P. Walmsley, of Annapolis, Md., who was not in the university last year, and Carl T. Goldenberg, jr., of Lynchburg, Va.; John A. Paul, of Watertown, Fla.; Giles A. Penick, jr., of Tulsa, Okla., and Thaddeus B. Lampton, jr., of Jackson, Miss., all from the '29 first-year swimming squad.

Two former team captains both students in the law school, are coaching the tankers this season. Gordon Peyton has charge of instruction in the fine points of swimming, while Jimmy May is polishing up the divers.

Last year the Cavalier swimmers lost only one meet. The tentative schedule includes meets at home with Washington and Lee and William and Mary and a trip to engage the University of Delaware and the Wilmington (Del.) Y. M. C. A. Two swimming matches with Duke University are pending, one at home and one in Durham, N. C.

Army Medicos Beat Woltz Quintet, 33-24

Army Medicos defeated Woltz Photographers on the Walter Reed "Y" floor last night by 33-24, averaging a 26-19 defeat sustained earlier in the season at Central High.

Woltz were in the lead once in the game, holding a 12-10 advantage just before the half, which ended 12-12.

Daine was in rare form for the soldiers and was ably assisted by Bohlender and Wood. Woltz played during the last two minutes with four men, Shikles having his quota of fouls and no substitutes being available.

Gross receipts were $1,788,408.24, the tax on which amounted to $80,402.16. The rest of the total is made up of money collected from licenses, fines and forfeits.

3 Sets of Star Half Backs Will Play in Charity Game

McEver-Hackman on Northern Section Against Banker-Armstrong, Thomason-Mizell, in Southern Group.

Special to The Washington Post.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 20.—Three of the most famous pairs of half backs ever developed in the Southern Conference will be seen in action New Year's Day in the conference all-star football game.

Gene McEver and Buddy Hackman, the famous "Hack and Mack" of Tennesee, have accepted to play with the Northern division squad. Two great pairs will play with the Southern division—Billy Banker and Ike Armstrong, of Tulane, and Stumpy Thomason and Warner Mizell, of Georgia Tech.

The prospect of settling these three combinations in action in one game is unique and will prove a powerful attraction for football fans all over the South.

Great half backs usually occur in pairs. One makes interference for the other or one throws forward passes to the other. Neither is complete without his running mate, whose steps naturaly fall into harmony with his own.

McEver and Hackman will have their own brother quarter back to call their signals, for Bobby Dodd, pilot of the Tennessee Vols for two years, is the signal caller for the Northern team. Thomason and Mizell will have Earl Dunlap to send them away on their long runs. Banker and Armstrong are types that will fit in smoothly with either Dunlap or Crabtree, the Southern quarter back.

All in all, indications points to a game of heavy scoring, spectacular runs and uninterrupted excitement. No fan imagines that McEver and Hackman, Thomason and Mizell, Banker and Armstrong, can be held in check for long. Natural rivalry will spur them to make their best showing.

And the cause—the increase of the fund for crippled children's hospitals in Greenville, S. C.; Lexington, Ky.; Shreveport, La., and Atlanta, Ga.—will be no small incentive.

PENN PLAYS INDIANA TONIGHT

Revenge for Beating Last Year Sought by Penn Five.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—Indiana University led by Branch McCracken, one of the best court players in the Western Conference, will meet the University of Pennsylvania Five in the Palestra tomorrow night. In a preliminary contest the Pennsylvania Freshmen will meet West Philadelphia Catholic High School.

Last year Indiana dealt Pennsylvania its first defeat when the latter five was making a tour of the conference. The score was 34 to 26 and was due in a large measure to the brilliant playing of McCracken.

The big center of the Bloomington quintet finished in a tie for second in the individual scoring race in the conference last season and was named center on the second All-Conference team. He is one of the flashiest players in the Middle West.

Strickland and Ashby Are Back.

Strickland and Ashby, both of whom had a hand in the Pennsylvania defeat of a year ago, will start at the forward positions for the invaders. Veller and Gill, who were members of the squad last season but not regulars, will hold down the guard posts.

Since the 27-to-24 defeat by Michigan Coach McNichol has made a change in his varsity line-up that involved the benching of Capt. Edward Lobley. His place will be filled by Fred Ullrich, former Trenton High School star. The remainder of the line-up will be the same as started against the Wolverines.

State Field Ball Final Lost by Preston High

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., Dec. 20.—Accurate tossing at crucial moments, a deceptive passing game and superior teamwork brought to Catonsville High School the State interscholastic field ball crown here this afternoon as a large gallery watched the Western Shore champions administer a 14-to-6 defeat to feminine tossers of Preston High, title holders of the Eastern Shore.

The tilt, played on the Chestertown High School pitch, marked the final setto of the series, staged under auspices of the Playground Athletic League of Maryland. Two rapidly pivoting attackers in the persons of Margaret Klein, center forward, and Alma Mules, left inside, of the Baltimore County combination, were the rocks upon which the hopes of Caroline County tossers to annex the Maryland title were dashed. In the final quarter a trio of tallies were hung after a determined and well-executed frontal attack that clinched the game for the team from beyond the Chesapeake.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lewisburg, Pa., Dec. 20.—Prior to leaving for the Christmas vacation today, Walter "Sandy" Moore, manager of boxing at Bucknell, gave out a list of opponents he has booked for his Bisons. Definite dates for all the matches will be settled January 1, Moore stated.

The home schedule includes Temple University, one of the two teams to beat the Bison boxers in their two years of intercollegiate boxing. Catholic University, the only other fighting group to triumph over Bucknell, will be met at Washington.

Matches are also booked with New York University and Pennsylvania Military College. The home schedule will also include a match with either Franklin and Marshall College or George Washington.

Local interest centers in the Temple engagement, since the series stands at a draw, the Owl fighters triumphing in 1928 and the Bisons at Philadelphia last year.

Feature at Keeney Won by St. Prisca

Keeney Park Race Track, Florida, Dec. 20 (A.P.).—G. D. Widener's St. Prisca won the featured attraction at Keeney Park today. J. J. Burns' Wacket was second and W. T. Anderson's Aut was third. The purse was worth $650 to the winner's owner. St. Prisca paid 11 to 5.

St. Prisca forced the early pace and won by three-quarters of a length over Wacket. The latter weakened and was unable to reach the winner. Apt was five lengths behind Wacket. Only five horses ran.

Addition of Greene Boosts Penn Hockey

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Pennsylvania's problem in building an ice hockey team has been partially solved by the addition of Charles Greene, full back on the football team, to the defense. At Exeter, Greene was considered a star hockey player and judging his two weeks' practice, should assume the same role at Pennsylvania. With only two weeks of practice, he won a regular position on the team at right defense.

Greene's appearance as a regular enabled the coach to make some shifts. Klein, a former forward, has been moved to goalie, where he has displayed better form than his two predecessors at the post. The hockey team will idle during the holidays, but will plunge into an extensive schedule immediately thereafter.

Belle the Devil Wins Pinehurst Field Trials

Pinehurst, N. C., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Belle the Devil, pointer bitch owned by Raymond Hoagland, jr., of Rumson, N. J., today won the members stake in the annual field trials of the Pointer Club of America. Rumson Farms Cleo, pointer bitch, also owned by Hoagland, was second.

Kirk's Dominent, pointer dog, owned by Harry D. Kirkwood, of Buffalo, N. Y., finished in third place. The same owner's famed pointer bitch, Kirk's Frolic, took fourth place. The field trials concluded with the members' stake.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

LONGEVITY IN AMERICA.

NOT long since this column carried a letter from E. D., who told of longevity in his family. The average age of his relatives at death was about 78, or about 20 years above the American average. Where E. D. made his mistake was in challenging anybody to produce so good a family record. So many reports came in following the publication of that challenge that printing them became impracticable. Most of the families reporting surpassed E. D.'s family in their longevity records, and some were far in advance.

One man, 83 years of age, wrote that his family average was slightly less than 79 years. He writes: "I lived near Abraham Lincoln and remember him well as a country lawyer. I am hale and hearty, spend my summers with my eldest child, who is 64, on a farm in Kentucky, where I walk on an average of 1 to 3 miles a day, picking wild berries or just tramping the woods. I accompany my great-grandsons to the creek and swim races with them. Am fond of detective stories and spend much of my time in winter reading them."

The number of families in which the only deaths prior to 70 years of age, except those due to mechanical accidents or disease accidents, is suggestive that longevity is largely a matter of inheritance, and for this there is ample proof. The members of certain racial stocks tend to live longer than the average. There are certain preponent individuals who mark their descendants for longevity even unto the third and fourth generation. In spite of out-crosses with shortlived families, the tendency to longevity persists as a family quality. And doubtless it is a good quality. It connotes hardness of constitution, bodily vigor and resistance to disease during infancy, childhood and the earlier years of maturity and senescence.

As to whether old age of itself is of value depends much on such qualities as disposition, character, energy and capacity. Speaking generally, the span of life is increasing faster than the provisions of society for using the capabilities of old people. Unless society speeds up in its adjustments, growth of longevity is due to cause hardships.

FEAR BACK OF NIGHTMARE.

M. C. writes: When I was a child I had nightmares very often. Since I grew up it has taken a different form. I dream I am smothering and imagine I am calling to some one to help me. Most of the time I really wake up, realize where I am, but can not move a muscle, can not call but make some kind of a sound from my throat, and then some one will waken me. I told a doctor about it one time, but he did not make anything of it. From what I have told you do you think it is anything to be alarmed about? Have never had much sickness of any kind.

REPLY.

Back of all this lies fear. To be cured you must grub it out by the roots. Eating a light supper and sleeping in a comfortable bed helps to ward off the trouble. A bowel movement at bedtime also contributes to this end. But these are of secondary importance.

Gloth Replies to Hedrick on Alleged Water Tax Debt of Waycraft Plant.

MRS. PICKIN RITES SET

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Norbert Melnick was elected chief patriarch of Arlington Encampment, No. 28, at its annual meeting and election of officers held last night in the Odd Fellows Hall at Clarendon. This is the second honor to be conferred upon Mr. Melnick during the past week. He was elected noble grand of Arlington Lodge, No. 193, I. O. O. F., at its meeting held in the Odd Fellows Hall Monday night. Other officers are Wallace Johnson, senior warden; E. A. Newman, high priest; J. W. Myers, junior warden; Walter B. Huffman, scribe, and Thomas S. I'Halloran, treasurer.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the meeting to be held Friday, January 3, by District Deputy Grand Scribe George Corder.

Harry A. Fellows, of East Falls Church, has been elected chairman of the newly organized executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation.

In accordance with the recent amendment to the constitution providing for the consolidation of the offices of recording secretary and secretary and authorizing the employment of a paid secretary the office has been filled by the election of E. L. Bennett, a resident of the county for many years and an active civic leader.

President William C. Hull announces the following committee chairman appointments: Membership, Robert E. Plymale, Fort Myer Height's Citizens Association; constitution and by-laws, Gilson Gardner, Hume School and Civic League; transportation and communication, Emmert Scott, Ballston Citizens Association; legislation and legal action, Robert N. Anderson, Lyon Village Citizens Association; sanitation and public health, George F. Cook, Patrick Henry Parent Teacher Association; roads, streets, highways and sidewalks, George M. Out less than one hour, a jury in the Circuit Court of Arlington County yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant in the case of Robert J. Allen, former policeman in Washington, against the Brumback Realty Co. for alleged salary amounting to $480 claimed due during his employment as a salesman for the company.

During the course of the trial, which lasted nearly four hours, Mr. Allen on the stand at one time caused the court and many persons attending the trial much laughter when he, in the course of his testimony, said he had many times called a client he only knew by the name of "Mary" regarding the purchasing of a home but said he lost the sale on account of there being so many "chiggers" in the vicinity of the property.

Clarence R. Ahalt and State Senator Frank L. Ball represented the defendant while the plaintiff was represented by Attorney Amos C. Crounse.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, replying to the statement issued yesterday by Superviser B. M. Hedrick, relative to the charges of indebtedness to the county by the Arlington Investment Corporation, issued the following statement last night:

"I do not expect to carry this controversy on with Mr. Hedrick in the newspapers. I reiterate that the Arlington Investment Corporation, of which Mr. Hedrick is manager, a stockholder and director, has not paid to Arlington County a single cent for installation of water and sewers in its subdivision at Waycroft, and the public has access to these records and can ascertain whether Mr. Hedrick's corporation has made any payment of any kind.

"I further say that my salary never was $4,000 and has never been more than $2,500, and furthermore my salary has nothing whatsoever to do with the Arlington Investment Corporation, of which Mr. Hedrick is the manager, getting water and sewers at the expense of the county, without payment of the same to this date."

Mr. Gloth announced that he has sent a letter to J. Foster Hagan, secretary of the corporation, asking that a meeting of the board of directors be called, as he wishes to appear before them in an effort to have the county paid for the work done.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles N. Pickin, 71 years old, who died Thursday night in Sibley Hospital, Washington, will be conducted this afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. M. Dawson, 144 Rucker avenue, Lyon Village, Arlington County, at 2:30, by the Rev. George H. Fielding, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. Henry Miller, pastor of St. George's Episcopal Church, of Ballston. Interment will be in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Alexandria.

Besides Mrs. Dawson, the deceased is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Ralph Thomas, of Washington, and two sons, Wilbur R. Pickin, of Fort Myer Heights, and Roswell Pickin, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Henry C. Littlefield, of Jewel Station, has been elected president of the Guild of Neighborhood House for the new year. Other officers are Mrs. Vincent Phelan, of Franklin Park, first vice president; Mrs. N. J. Jewett, of Jewell Station, second vice president; Mrs. Call, of Livingston Heights, secretary, and Mrs. Oscar Smith, of Livingston Heights, treasurer.

Plans for the holding of a reception for the eight former presidents of the guild early in January were discussed. Mrs. Charles Cooper and Mrs. Carl Cassaway were appointed a committee to arrange time and place for the holding of the reception.

The Sunday school of the Mount Olivet Methodist Church at Ballston will hold its Christmas tree entertainment at the church Friday evening, December 27, at 8 o'clock.

The choir of the Clarendon Methodist Church will give its annual Christmas concert tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. The cantata to be sung is Matthew's "Eve of Grace." Carl F. Kuldell is the leader. The soloists will be, Mrs. D. A. Defandorf, soprano;

INQUEST SCHEDULED IN CAR-CRASH DEATH

Man Hurt in Prince Georges Wreck Later Dies in Baltimore Hospital.

ELECTION IS DUE TODAY

An inquest into the death of Albert Nichols, 46 years old, of Laurel, Md., will be held Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Maryland State Police declared yesterday, at the Central Police Station in Baltimore. Nichols died Wednesday at the University Hospital in Baltimore, where he was taken following an accident on the Bowie road near Laurel Monday.

According to State police, Nichols was riding in a truck driven by Joseph Hall, also of Laurel, and owned by E. T. Gross, jr., of Beltsville, which was in collision with an automobile driven by H. B. Millard, of Laurel. Millard claimed that the truck had no lights. The accident took place about 6 o'clock in the evening. Nichols was taken to the Baltimore hospital presumably suffering from a few minor bruises and a broken nose, police say.

Prince Georges County police are searching for the man and woman who early yesterday abandoned an expensive automobile and 48 gallons of alleged liquor when they were pursued by county police. Deputy Sheriffs A. W. Hepburn and Harry Robertson and Policeman V. M. Nichols had stopped a car on the southern Maryland pike near Surrattsville when they saw a car pass occupied by a man and a woman. The high speed of the car aroused their suspicions and they gave chase.

About a half-mile farther along they found the car abandoned with the alleged liquor on board. In searching the nearby woods they found a woman's handkerchief with 70 cents tied in the corner. The car was taken into custody and the alleged liquor confiscated.

Members of the Exchange Club of Prince Georges County plan to ask the assistance of the mayors and town councils of the towns in the suburban area of the county which border the Baltimore boulevard in their campaign for the installation of traffic signal lights. A meeting of these officials with the club is planned shortly after the first of the year.

The feasibility and necessity of these lights along the boulevard will be demonstrated to the town officials at the meeting. It is probable that a vehicle-operated light such as was demonstrated at the last meeting of the club will be shown. The following committee is in charge of the club's campaign for traffic lights: A. H. Seidenspinner, chairman; the Rev. Clyde Brown, Elmore Power, James W. Rogers, W. A. Middleton and H. C. Fleming, according to O. B. Zantzinger, jr., president of the club.

A special election will be held at Capitol Heights today to decide whether persons moving into the town can vote without having registered twelve months before the election. The town charter is to be amended to make it possible for residents to vote without this formality, if the voters so decide today. The election will be held in the firehouse from 7 o'clock this morning until 8 o'clock tonight. Walter Oliver, Dr. A. H. Lee and George Finger, jr., are judges and George Horstman will act as clerk, according to Mayor Thomas J. Luckett.

The mayor said yesterday that the assignment of State Policeman W. T. Booker to patrol Central avenue has greatly bettered traffic conditions on that boulevard. The policeman is detained to Upper Marlboro and has a large territory to patrol. After the council of Capitol Heights had made urgent representations to the State police, Booker was directed to put in part of his time patrolling the avenue.

Two men were fined for alleged driving while intoxicated yesterday in Upper Marlboro branch of Prince Georges County Police Court by Judge J. Chew Sheriff. William C. Joiner, of Washington, was fined $101 for driving while intoxicated and reckless driving. He was arrested by State Policeman W. T. Booker after he had gone to sleep and his car left the road, the policeman said.

Jack West, colored, of Upper Marlboro, also arrested by Booker, was fined $100 for driving while intoxicated, $1 for reckless driving, $1 for failing to have his registration card in possession, $10 for driving without a license and $5 for failing to keep to the right of the road. Amos Talbott, colored, was fined $25 for unauthorized use of an automobile, $5 for reckless driving, $10 for driving without a license, $5 for driving without his registration card in possession, and $5 for failing to stop after an accident. Talbott was arrested by Booker after his car had been in collision with two other cars near Forestville on the Marlboro pike. Booker had sixteen traffic violation cases before the court yesterday, the largest number credited to a single officer in one day's hearing for a long time.

Nelson Degore, of Washington, was fined $100 on charges of transportation and possession of intoxicants. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Harry Robertson and County Policeman V. M. Nichols, who testified that he had 118 quarts of alleged liquor on his automobile when they arrested him on the Southern Maryland pike.

Building of Valley Pike Discussed at Meeting

Special to The Washington Post.

Strasburg, Va., Dec. 20.—A meeting of the Strasburg Chamber of Commerce last night was attended by representatives of the Edinburg and Woodstock bodies to discuss the problem of securing right of way for the reconstruction of the Valley pike in northern Shenandoah County.

A committee consisting of Frank Stover, C. M. Chiles and C. D. Smith was appointed to take charge of the work. The State plans to move the large convict camp from Gore, Va., to a point near Strasburg, but will not do so until assured that the right of way will be provided. The addition of this camp will enable the department to complete the reconstruction work in this county at an early date, 7 miles having been finished during the last year.

Charlottesville Woman Dies.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20 (Special.).—Mrs. T. M. Johnson died yesterday at her home on Bolling avenue after a brief illness. The funeral was held at the residence at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Johnson was, before marriage, Miss Lucy M. Bickers, of Nortonsville, Va. Besides her husband, she is survived by four children, Mrs. W. H. Reed, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. James S. Ramsey, of Keswick, Va.; C. B. Johnson, of Roanoke, Va., and W. V. Johnson, of this city.

Rover Will Push Dreyfus Inquiry

District Attorney Repeats Intention to Give Case to Grand Jury.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday reiterated his decision to present to the January grand jury the facts in connection with the death of Mrs. Aurelia Fischer Dreyfus, who met death October 13 last at the Potomac Boat Club.

Decision to give the case to the grand jury was made by Rover Thursday after he had conferred with Miss Freda Fischer and Mrs. Elsa Knorr, sisters of the dead woman. Both amplified affidavits previously given to the United States attorney. Both sisters are said to have told the prosecutor that there were finger marks on the throat of their relative.

No such evidence was given at the coroner's inquest and only recently has the new development in the case been revealed. The new angle is an attempt to connect the dead girl with the mysterious murder of Dot King, "the Brodway Butterfly," in her New York apartment several years ago. It is claimed that the dead Dreyfus woman is the mysterious witness in the King mystery.

JUDGES HOLD FATE OF THURMONT PAIR

EARLY VERDICT LIKELY

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 20.—The fate of Charles Lewis and Leslie Clark, charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Clyde L. Hauver in a moonshine raid near Thurmont, Md., last July 31, were in the hands of three judges tonight.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judges Albert A. Doub and Frank G. Wagaman, before whom the accused chose to be tried in preference to a trial by a jury, heard the arguments in the case today and announced they would render a verdict in several days.

Arguments started at this morning's session, State's Attorney Harper Balantine, of Washington County, opening for the prosecution. He was followed by D. Angle Wolfinger for the defense. Albin M. Wood appearing for Clark, and Samuel Lewis for Charles Lewis, who is his nephew. State's Attorney William M. Storm, of Frederick County, concluded.

Since little contradictory testimony was submitted by either side, the court will be saved the trouble of segregating the testimony of each side and an early verdict was forecast.

Balantine in his argument stressed Lewis' alleged statement that he intended to get Deputy Redmond, a fellow officer of the slain man, for being instrumental in destroying a moonshine plant on Lewis' farm. He also laid weight on the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Osby McAfee, who said Lewis dashed from the scene of the shooting and told them he must hide his gun at once, and on Clark's story to his sister that Lewis had done the shooting. Mr. Wolfinger, opening for the defense, attacked the story of Hazel Clark, sister of Clark, as one concocted by a sister to save a brother.

Midshipmen Mark Yule Song Service

Christmas Leave Begins at Noon Today With Majority Going Home.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 20.—Christmas enthusiasm of the regiment of midshipmen at the Naval Academy, rampant for several days, reached its peak tonight as the 2,000 students gathered along the terraces of Bancroft Hall to participate in the annual custom of singing Christmas carols. An audience of several hundred residents of the naval reservation and Annapolis stood in the chill wind to witness the celebration.

The singing was under the direction of J. W. Crosley, organist and choirmaster of the academy.

Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the academy, attended the celebration and wished the midshipmen the compliments of the season. Christmas dinner then was served in the mess hall.

The midshipmen begin their leave tomorrow at noon, and a majority of them have planned to eat Christmas dinner with home-folk, but Washington, Philadelphia and New York will be the mecca for many whose homes are in distant States. Not all of the boys will be able to avail themselves of the full extent of the holiday, for it is stated that a number "hit" the bad conduct grade, and are doing penance aboard the station, or prison ship, Reina Mercedes. Others are below the standard in academic work.

JURY IS DEADLOCKED IN MARION SLAYINGS

40-PAGE CHARGE IS READ

Burnsville, N. C., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The fate of the eight deputy sheriffs on trial here for second degree murder of six men was undecided tonight as the jury retired without reaching a verdict. The jury got the case shortly before noon today.

Before retiring, the jurors sent out a message asking additional instructions, but on being advised that Judge G. V. Cowper had retired, decided against disturbing him.

The deputies are on trial here on a change of venue from Marion where officers and strikers at a cotton mill clashed in the early daylight hours of October 2.

Judge G. V. Cowper, of Kinston, presiding over a special term of court ordered by Gov. O. Max Gardner, delivered a 40-page charge to the jury this morning. The nine farmers, two loggers and a carpenter who compose it began their deliberations immediately.

Court Calls Case Important.

The case, trial of which began here on December 10 and in which more than 100 witnesses have testified, was described by the court as "very important."

Judge Cowper reviewed the State laws on conspiracy, murder, manslaughter, pleas, legal rights to strike and picket, the defense of the defendants, the contentions of the State, self-defense, defense as public officials and other questions involved.

No intimation of the position of the jury came from the jury room to which it retired as the afternoon waned.

Those on trial are Robert Ward, Webb Fender, Charles Tate, Broad Robbins, Taylor Greene, James Owens, William Twiggs and Dave Jarrell.

Charges Considered Two Ways.

Judge Cowper instructed the jury it should consider the indictments against each of them separately and jointly. Each of the defendants is charged separately with killing the six, and all are charged jointly with responsibility for the deaths.

The eight deputies were among a group of officers who went to the Marion Manufacturing Co. mill at daybreak on October 2 in response to a call from mill officials who said strikers were refusing to permit workers who did not join in a strike called at 1:30 that morning to enter the mill.

The officers released tear gas to disperse the strikers, and the battle followed. The defendants took the stand during the trial, admitting shooting the strikers, but asserted they did so in defense of their own lives.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY.

Luella, having in mind a report for the newly appointed Research Commission on Social Trend, called attention to significant changes in our national life during the past few years.

"There should be a law, or something," she declared, pursing her lips.

"Yeah?"

"Really, the situation is serious!"

"Suppose it is. Hasn't President Hoover appointed a commission?"

"It can't stop there. The commission will need help, and lots of it!"

"Let somebody else volunteer. You've plenty to do here at the old manse ——"

* * * *

"I'M tired of working at the Old Man's," she sighed. "What I need is a change ——"

"A change and a rest, eh?"

"There is no rest for the weary, but a little change would come in handy, now and then ——"

"Pin money?"

"Call it that, though it won't even buy pins!"

"Ho, ho," I hummed, "Needles and pins, Needles and pins. When a girl marries her pocketbook thins ——"

"What a fine singer you turned out to be!"

"Perhaps that's one of the big social changes, my singing. Once, I used to sing in a quartet. Now, you see, I go it alone."

* * * *

"WHAT you ought to get is a saxophone. Then you'd have plenty company."

"Is the commission going to investigate the saxophone evil?"

"In a way. It plans an extensive survey of the maladjusted, which takes in the feeble-minded——"

"What else will engage the commission's attention?"

"Oh," enthused Luella, "we're going to handle such subjects as the improvement of national health and vitality — everybody's interested in health, you know—and old age, and the effect of urban life upon mental hygiene, in its lower forms, and the problems arising from increased leisure——"

"Just a moment, young lady! Increased leisure? Has anybody——"

* * * *

"HAS anybody seen you extend yourself?" she charged.

"Well, my work——"

"That's just it. Your work is liable to be investigated, too; for we plan a study of the great changes taking place in various occupations likely to diminish in importance, as yours; changes in family life, in housing, in education, and the effects of invention upon the life of our people."

She paused, out of breath.

"While studying the effects of invention, you'd better get back to first principles and——"

"And what?"

"Interview the Mother of Invention—Necessity."

"It isn't necessary," she said. "Necessity is one thing in the social order that never changes."

That's true—at least in our circle—and it ought to be reported to the research commission.

LIMESTONE CHOSEN FOR $500,000 JAIL

Montgomery County's New Courthouse Plans Ready for Approval.

FIREMEN'S FROLIC IS SET

Buff Indiana limestone was decided upon as the most appropriate material for the front of the proposed $500,000 Montgomery County Courthouse and jail at a meeting of the subcommittee on materials, equipment and specifications of the Montgomery County Courthouse building committee held yesterday at Rockville. George P. Sacks is chairman of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee at first considered white lime stone but finally concluded that white would be too cold for a north exposure and chose the buff as a warmer color. The rear elevation will be constructed of either pressed brick of white Indiana limestone, the subcommittee suggesting that alternate bids be obtained.

Following a lengthy discussion of window casement suggestions by representatives of various firms, the subcommittee reported favorably the type presented by the International Casement Co. for the windows of the courthouse and especially for the jail which is to be located in the top floor. The jail windows are to be of steel.

Jail Walls to Be Strong.

The subcommittee decided upon terrazzo stripped with brass with terrazzo borders, for the flooring or corridors. Terra-cotta tile with steel and sheet cork linings was chosen as the material to be used in the construction of the jail walls. The lining will deaden sound and at the same time provide a strong guard against breaking through.

The recommendations of the subcommittee will be presented to the general building committee at its next meeting and then will be presented to the Montgomery County Commissioners for final approval. Besides the chairman, the committee includes Berry E. Clark, clerk to the county commissioners and secretary of the general committee; Lacy Shaw vice president of the board of county commissioners; Capt. Chester Wells, County Commissioner Clagett C. Hilton and Henry F. Taff. Another meeting will be held December 31.

Three on Subcommittee.

The appraisal subcommittee which has charge of the demolition of the properties on the block west of the present courthouse, upon which the new courthouse is to be constructed, met last Tuesday and made plans for submission to the general committee on the disposal of the buildings now standing on the block. General advertisement of bids will be recommended, with the opportunity to make private bids left open. Members of this subcommittee are Lacey Shaw, chairman; Berry Clark and Preston B. Ray, clerk of the circuit court.

The subcommittee on submitting plans for the courthouse to the Fine Arts Commission and employing an engineer for the construction work will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the county building at Bethesda, according to an announcement by Capt. Chester Wells, the chairman.

Faced with the problem of raising funds otherwise than through the lottery scheme which has been ruled illegal by the Postoffice Department, the Takoma Volunteer Fire Department has decided upon the staging of a "Firemen's Frolic," to be held on the evenings of January 21 to 23. The frolic will be held in the fire department building on Carroll avenue.

It was decided to stage the frolic without the aid of outside promoters so that all of the proceeds could be devoted to paying of a part of the debt on the building and equipment, which amounts to $65,000.

Methods of promoting the entertainment were explained to the members of the department at a meeting held Thursday night by J. Bond Smith, corporation counsel; Mayor Ben G. Davis, former Mayor H. F. Taff and F. Barnard Welsh, president of the Rockville Volunteer Fire Department. Welsh told of the methods used by his department in paying off a $52,000 debt with the exception of about $5,000. Cooperation by the civic and business organizations of the town and the citizens was urged by the Rockville president.

Chester C. Waters, who is a candidate for president of the Takoma Park department, was named chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, to be assisted by Martin F. Iverson, first vice chairman; Clarence M. Kieffer, second vice chairman and I. H. Ware, secretary.

MOTHER IS ACCUSED OF SLAYING INFANT

JURY CALLS HER INSANE

Lonaconing, Md., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Marian Izat, 34, was charged today with causing the death of her 5-week-old daughter by throwing the child into an abandoned iron ore furnace, just outside the town, yesterday. Police who found the baby on a pile of junk at the bottom of a 40-foot drop believed poverty and ill health had deranged the mother's mind.

Mrs. Izat's sister became suspicious of the mother's replies when she asked why the baby was not in the house, late yesterday, and reported to police. After telling several stories Mrs. Izat led the officers near the old furnace and one of them heard the baby's cries. The child was found on a pile of discarded automobile parts and died a few hours later from a fractured skull.

The woman's husband, Robert Izat, a miner, who had been in poor health for some time, recently was taken to a sanitarium, and this fact, together with the poverty the family had experienced, was thought to have disturbed the other's mental condition. Mrs. Izat was held at the jail here while Coroner Joseph B. Finan made an investigation.

The coroner's jury found Mrs. Izat was temporarily insane, and on the jurors' recommendation she was taken to Cumberland to be placed in an institution.

CROPS IN VIRGINIA INCREASE OVER 1928

Total Value $163,913,000; Tobacco and Potatoes Best Products.

WHEAT YIELD IS POOR

Richmond, Va., Dec. 20 (A.P.).—The total value of Virginia's principal crops produced in 1929 is estimated at $163,913,000, an increase of $11,146,000 or 7.3 per cent above the estimated value of $152,767,000 for the same crops in 1928, according to the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

Tobacco and potatoes, the most important money crops, showed a considerable increase in value over last year, while the value of wheat, cotton and peanuts, three other important money crops, was slightly less than in 1928.

The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service estimated the total crop acreage harvested during 1929 at 4,202,000 acres, about 3 per cent less than the acreage harvested in 1928. Crops showing an increase in acreage were wheat, rye, barley, sweet potatoes, peanuts and cotton, while there was a reduction in the acreage of corn, oats, buckwheat, hay, potatoes and tobacco.

Most Yields Better.

The yield of most crops, according to the Reporting Service, was slightly better than in 1928. The production of barley, rye, peanuts, sweet potatoes, tobacco, cotton, peaches and pears was greater than last year, while the production of apples, wheat, oats, buckwheat, potatoes, soybeans and cowpeas was considerably less, and corn and hay slightly less than in 1928.

Tobacco, the principal source of income for approximately one-fourth of the farmers of Virginia, showed an increase in production as a result of better yields, although the acreage was reduced about 5 per cent the total crop was estimated at 118,320,000 pounds, compared with 104,864,000 pounds produced last year. Based on sales to December 1, prices were expected to average slightly better than last year, so the total value was estimated to be $20,706,000, an increase of 23 per cent over the 1928 value of $16,778,000.

"The early potato crop," continued the report, "while much smaller than the 1928 crop, brought growers considerably more money due to improvement in prices. The price of late potatoes was also much better than last year, so the total value of both the early and late crops was estimated at $21,826,000, which is about twice the value of the 1928 crop of $10,809,000.

Wheat Crop Poor.

"The wheat yield was poor, due to unfavorable weather conditions in the spring, and the production was about 10 per cent less than in the preceding year, although the acreage was slightly higher. The average price was also slightly lower, so the total value of the wheat crop was $11,200,000, compared with $13,173,000 last year.

"The total apple crop was about 20 per cent less than in 1928, but prices have been better, so the estimated value is $14,300,000 compared with $13,685,000 last year. The production of peaches and pears was slightly larger than in 1928, but the prices were not as good, so the value was smaller than last year. The cotton and peanut crops, which are the principal source of farm income in the southeastern section of the State, were slightly larger than last year, but prices have been lower, so the estimated value is less than last year. The value of the cotton crop, including both lint and seed, was $4,466,000 this year, compared with $4,661,000 last year, and the peanut crop was valued at $5,697,000, compared with $6,630,000 last year.

"The value of the principal truck crops, exclusive of potatoes, is estimated to be $7,331,000, compared with $7,956,000 last year. Lower prices and smaller yields for some of the principal truck crops explain the reduced value this year. The production of the feed crops, corn oats, barley and hay, was practically the same as last year. The corn crop is estimated at 44,138,000 bushels, compared with 44,715,000 last year; oats, 3,841,000 bushels and 4,641,000; barley, 504,000 and 406,000; hay, 1,400,000 tons and 1,479,000 tons."

Total Value Estimated.

The total value of the principal crops of Virginia for 1929 and 1928 in order of their rank was estimated by the reporting service as follows:

Corn, $44,138,000 for 1929 and $44,715,000 for 1928; potatoes, $21,826,000 and $10,809,000; hay, $21,628,000 and $22,522,000; tobacco, $20,706,000; apples, $14,300,000 and $13,685,000; wheat, $11,200,000 and $13,173,000; truck crops, $7,331,000 and $7,956,000; sweet potatoes, $6,034,000 and $4,435,000; peanuts, $5,697,000 and $6,630,000; cotton, lint and seed, $4,466,000 and $4,661,000; oats, $2,573,000 and $2,970,000; peaches, $928,000 and $1,232,000; sorghum for syrup, $770,000 and $980,000; rye, $750,000 and $745,000; barley, $434,000 and $345,000; pears, $297,000 and $242,000; buckwheat, $289,000 and $309,000; soybeans for grain, $287,000 and $364,000.

The report was made public by Henry M. Taylor, agricultural statistician of the reporting service.
